DUCE ASSURES STIMSON ITALY DESIRES PEACE

Mussolini Says Nation Takes Disarmament as Objective.

REGARDS REDUCTION AS AID TO RECOVERY

Political and Morale Crises Need Early Solution, Premier Holds.

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

Rome, July 9 (A.P.).—Premier Mussolini informed Secretary of State Stimson in an interview today that peace and disarmament have been chosen as the objectives of Italy.

"There are two roads," the Duce declared after the two statesmen had conferred for some time—"a road toward war and a road toward peace. I told Mr. Stimson today that I have chosen the road toward peace."

Italy, he said, will go to the disarmament conference at Geneva next February "with a sincere desire for peace." In order to solve the world economic problem, he said, it is also necessary "to solve the political crisis and that of morale."

Peace Will Speed Recovery.

"The success of the disarmament conference," Mussolini said, "is indispensable so that peoples may have faith in their governments. The people must not be disillusioned. The date of the conference must not be postponed."

He and Secretary Stimson agreed, he said, that European tranquillity would insure economic recovery. "Secretary Stimson told me," he said, "and I agreed with him, that if Europe is tranquil, we are going ahead toward certain economic recovery."

In explaining that Italy had chosen the road toward peace the premier declared that "Mr. Stimson and I find ourselves in accord in choosing that road."

The Secretary spent an hour with Mussolini this afternoon in the premier's office. The two statesmen talked alone and afterward Mussolini briefly told newspapermen about the conversation, but he added much from his own thoughts without indicating specifically what was, and what was not, expressed during the conversation with the Secretary.

Pledges Italy's Sincerity.

At the disarmament conference, to which he said Italy would go with "a spirit of perfect loyalty and sincerity," the premier insisted that arms reduction should be discussed on the basis of general principles, rather than guns and tons.

"Italy is disposed to accept the lowest figure of armament—even a limit of 10,000 rifles for all Italy—provided no other nation has more," he said. "Of course, if any other nation had more such a reduction would be placing Italy in the position of defending herself with a club against a pistol."

The present econodmic crisis, he said, is largely "one of morale." It is easy to borrow 1,000 lire for a week, he said, by way of illustration, but it is difficult to get 100 lire for a year.

Citing Italy's recent experience when an issue of 7,900,000,000 lire was subscribed, he said this was "fine for the government," but that the country would be better off "if the people, instead of wishing to clip coupons, would put their money into business, quickening commerce and giving work to the unemployed."

Hopeful of Speedy Return.

"I have a great optimism over the prospects of economic recovery during the coming years," he said, "especially if the disarmament conference is a success. Disarmament success would clear a horizon which would be obscured if the conference does not produce results."

The Hoover moratorium he described as a momentous event. "Italy seconds fully President Hoover's initiative," he said, "an initistive that I consider one of the greatest political factors since the war.

"Secretary Stimson's visit to Europe is highly important even though it is not official, because he is Secretary of State of the largest republic in the world.

"I am most favorably impressed by the secretary. Besides being a likable and cordial gentleman he is also a very wise statesman."

Stimson Meets Grandi.

Secretary Stimson had a long talk this morning with Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, the first of the numerous statesmen he will meet during his visit to Europe.

The conversation prepared the ground for Col. Stimson's meeting with Premier Mussolini. There was no official statement after the conference, but it was revealed that their talk touched on the Hoover moratorium and probably included a discussion of new proposals which France is understood to have made regarding a naval accord with Italy.

Mussolini received nineteen American newspapermen at his office following the conference with Secretary Stimson. He gathered them about him with a smile and gracious handclasps, reminding them that he also was a newspaperman himself. He was dressed in a white flannel suit, white shoes and a soft blue shirt. Sunburned and apparently in the best of health, he talked with the greatest good humor, laughing and joking, beginning in English and finishing in Italian when his English failed under the deluge of questions.

Favors Early Conference.

He painted a picture of the possibility of the failure of the disarmament conference, or even its postponement, declaring that either

Pope Pius XI (right) and Premier Mussolini, whose reported rapprochement may be jeopardized by Il Duce's latest pronouncement forbidding Fascist members to join the Catholic Action.

FASCISTS MUST QUIT CATHOLICS' SOCIETY

Mussolini Issues Order as He Launches New Attack on Church Group.

Rome, July 9 (A.P.).—The question of the stability of the concordat and the Lateran treaty with the Vatican was raised today when Premier Mussolini launched another attack upon the Catholic Action Society by forbidding Fascists to belong to its several organizations.

The duce himself initiated the instructions, which were issued to the approximately 2,000,000 members of the Fascist party, in which it was declared that membership in the party and in the societies attached to Catholic Action is incompatible. The premier's pronouncement was regarded here as his answer to the question raised by Pope Pius on the differences between Fascism and loyal Catholicism.

The Vatican was regarding Mussolini's order with a degree of calm, Vatican circles saying that it served to clarify the question of membership in the Fascist party and Catholic Action which has been troubling both sides for more than a year. This question, the Vatican believes, is at the bases of the present strained relations.

The same question was put, the Vatican recalled, to Augusto Turati when he was secretary of the Fascist party. He then answered that it was possible to subscribe to both activities at the same time, and even to hold office in both. This answer has been abrogated up to now and the Pope referred to it in his speech made to the Catholic University students at the end of May.

At that time, however, President Righetti, of the student group, told the pontiff that difficulties were being raised in the way of students belonging to both organizations and that they were being told that they must choose one or the other.

The number belonging to both the Fascist party and the Catholic Action is not large, it was said in Vatican circles, and it was added that the large proportion of those who do are members of the university groups, where 70 per cent of the membership of Catholic groups also belong to the Fascist University organizations.

London Denies Rumor Princes Were Gassed

London, July 9 (A.P.).—A report which spread through London tonight, but which was soon afterward denied, said that the Prince of Wales and Prince George had been gassed while watching a sham battle between units of the guards in the Aldershot district.

Tear gas was used in the mimic fray. At the guards' mess, however, where the princes dined this evening, the report was denied. The adjutant in command said that the princes had not been near the gas and had not been affected in any way.

Mrs. Newton Tumbles Into River From Horse

Mrs. Walter Newton had the unusual experience of going swimming in a riding habit in the Rapidan River near President Hoover's camp in Virginia.

Mrs. Newton, whose husband is one of the President's secretaries, was horseback riding. As she passed along a narrow trail near the river she fell off and rolled into the stream. She suffered no ill effects.

CONSUL'S CONTEMPT ACTION IS QUASHED

Chicago Judge Voids Case After Protests From Mexico to U. S.

Chicago, July 9 (A.P.).—Municipal Judge Thomas Green today quashed the contempt of courts proceeding against Adolfo Dominguez, acting Mexican consul. He had previously sentenced Senor Dominguez to six months in the county jail.

Judge Green issued the following statement in expunging the previous order:

"To remove any possible belief that my act was any indication of my feeling toward Mexico or the Mexican people or was intended to create any unfriendly relations between the two countries, and to promote the general good feeling between the two countries (the order being directed only as to the individual) at the request of John J. Sonsteby, chief justice of the municipal court of Chicago, Judge Thomas A. Green entered an order expunging the order of July 7 which held Adolfo G. Dominguez in contempt of court * * * thereby closing the case."

Representatives of Gov. Louis Emmerson and United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson conferred with Mexican attorneys and municipal court jurists most of the day.

The acting Mexican consul was cited for contempt and held in jail for several hours Tuesday after an argument with Judge Green, in whose court several Mexicans were being tried. Divergent stories were told of the encounter, which apparently started when the judge criticized the consul's supervision of unemployed Mexicans.

An attorney for the consul said Judge Green refused to allow Senor Dominguez to defend his supervision of his countrymen and had him jailed after he tried to talk. The judge said the Mexican official interrupted the hearing of a case and refused to be quiet.

Ambassador Tellez of Mexico, filed a formal protest at the State Department in Washington today, acting on instructions from Mexico City.

(Associated Press.)

Mexico's protest against the jailing of its acting consul at Chicago was held in abeyance last night while the State Department awaited a report on the incident from Gov. Emmerson of Illinois.

The Mexican official, Adolfo Dominguez, was sentenced to a jail term of six months on a contempt charge in Municipal Court by Judge Thomas Green. After two hours in jail he was released on his personal recognizance. Green today quashed the charges.

Earlier, Ambassador Tellez delivered a note from Mexico City formally protesting the incident. Its contents were not made public, but Tellez said his government was seeking the acting consul's immediate and unconditional release.

Learning the case had been closed by Green's order, Tellez said he would immediately advise his government.

State Department officials declined to comment on the Mexican protest. Legal experts of the department spent the day studying the American Federal statutes involved in seeking to determine whether consuls were exempted from contempt proceedings.

The Mexican protest climaxed a series of incidents involving her citizens, which have attracted international attention recently.

The first was the fatal shooting at Ardmore, Okla., early last month of two Mexican students, one a relative of President Ortiz Rubio of Mexico. Deputy William E. Guess was recently acquitted on charges of killing one of them and the State Department is awaiting from Gov. Murray a record

Petters Desecrate Church, Pastor's Complaint Says

Charges that petting parties are carried on in a church and church yard in Suitland, Md., are contained in a letter sent to the Prince Georges County commissioners by the Rev. W. M. LaRoche, of 1540 Twenty-fifth street southeast, pastor of the Suitland Christian Church.

Mr. LaRoche says that his parishioners have told him several times the church has been entered by unknown parties who do not turn on the lights. About 10 o'clock at night, he says, the church yard is a popular parking place for a number of machines with Washington license tags. "Bottles and other debris" have been found about the church, he says, showing that "some kind of a party had been held there."

Mr. LaRoche's complaint was turned over to Chief of Police J. J. Crowley for investigation. The minister also asked that the speed limit near the church be fixed at 25 miles per hour, to lessen the danger to members of the church, and this request was passed on to the State Roads Commission.

Mr. LaRoche said last night that he had not witnessed any disorder himself at the church, but that many of the residents of the town had complained to him. He quoted neighbors as saying that the noise was terrible and the parties disgraceful.

WIND BUFFETS, POOR VISIBILITY END TOKYO HOP

Texas Fliers Turn Back After Starting Over Bering Sea.

SHIP UNMANAGEABLE IN FUELING CONTACTS

Landing Is Made at Solomon After 27 Hours in Air, 2,100 Miles on Way.

Nome, Alaska, July 9 (A.P.).—Inability to manage the plane Fort Worth in heavy winds with more than 300 gallons of gasoline was given by Reg L. Robbins and Harold S. Jones, Texas aviators, as the reason for abandoning their Seattle-Tokyo flight today at Solomon, 30 miles east of here.

"We are sorry we were unable to continue the flight," Robbins said. "We tried as hard as we could.

"We could not manage the plane after we had loaded 300 gallons of gasoline. We could not keep it in line long enough to take aboard a full load of 435 gallons.

Saw Threat of Death.

"It's tough, but we couldn't see any other way out and the weather was so bad and visibility nil, we would have killed ourselves outright in attempting to get through, so we decided to land at Solomon."

The fliers indicated they would not attempt to fly the route again to Tokyo with the same plane, but would sell it in Alaska, if possible.

Failure to reach their objective was a blow to crews of both the Seattle-Tokyo plane and its refueling mother ship. Three hours after the landing at Solomon, when the fliers brought their ships to the Nome landing field, they were unanimous in saying it was a "terrible blow."

Flight Ends in Gold Field.

Solomon, Alaska, July 9 (A.P.).—Two Texans, Reg Robbins and H. S. Jones, seeking $25,000 for the first nonstop Seattle to Tokyo flight, were forced by unfavorable weather to abandon their attempt today in the district where thousands sought in vain for riches durmg Alaska's gold rush days.

The aviators ended their flight here, just 30 miles from Nome, of gold rush fame, after bumpy weather balked attempts to take on enough gasoline to complete their journey to Tokyo.

Before leaving Seattle the aviators had said they would probably attempt the flight again if forced down.

The monoplane Fort Worth and its refueling ship had made five contacts over Alaska when the flight was ended before the half-way mark was reached.

3,000 Miles Short of Goal.

Since leaving Seattle at 6:57 a. m. (E. S. T.) yesterday, the Fort Worth had covered 2,100 miles. It landed at 3:50 a. m. (9:50 a. m., E. S. T.) after 26 hours and 53 minutes in the air. The fliers were still 3,000 miles from Tokyo, which they had expected to reach in 55 hours.

Headwinds and poor visibility hampered the plane and its refueling ship during the flight here from Fairbanks, where the first refueling was made last night. Two contacts were made between Fairbanks and Solomon, one here and another at Nome.

Another refueling had been planned over the coast of Siberia and after the last contact over Nome the planes headed in that direction. They returned and landed unexpectedly twenty minutes later. Although the weather was rough here reports from Seattle said that it was clear about 100 miles west of Nome and that the fliers would have had a tail wind to aid them on their last lap to Japan.

Near Schedule at Fairbanks.

The Fort Worth and the refueling ship, piloted by Jimmie Mattern and Nick Greener, also Texans, flew together from Fairbanks. Robbins, pilot, and Jones, navigator, had flown from Seattle through British Columbia and Yukon Territory, meeting the refueling plane at Fairbanks.

Robbins and Jones were close to their schedule when they soared over Fairbanks at 12:33 (E. S. T.) this morning, having flown about 1,600 miles in 17 hours and 36 minutes. After putting 200 gallons of gasoline into the Fort Worth's tanks, the refueler and the nonstop craft headed for Nome.

Head winds cut their average time to 70 miles an hour on the 520-mile hop. They flew over Nome for an hour and twenty minutes before heading over the Bering Sea to the Siberian coast, only to return within a few minutes.

Surrender Is Surprise.

They had planned to fly down the coast of the Kamchatka Peninsula and over the Kurile Isles to Japan.

Nome's entire population was assembled to greet the fliers when the refueling plane landed here, loaded gasoline and took off again for another contact.

As the planes were lost in clouds and fog above Bering Sea, it was believed Robbins and Jones were headed for Tokyo. The landing and termination of the attempt was a surprise.

Seattle, July 9 (A.P.).—Although Reg L. Robbins and Harold S. Jones, crew of the Fort Worth, Seattle-to-Tokyo plane, ended their flight about 3,000 miles short of their objective, they made aviation history by completing the first nonstop flight between Seattle and the Nome district.

While the Texas fliers were resting in the North today after their more than 26 hours in the air, the Seattle Chamber of Commerce was preparing a banquet for them when they arrive here.

COAL MINERS PARADE AT WHITE HOUSE

COAL PARLEY FAILS AS STRIKERS MARCH

Operators and U. S. Officials Fail to Make Headway; Miners Orderly.

Two opposing angles of the troubled situation in the bituminous coal industry were aired in Washington yesterday, with both factions apparently reaching the same conclusion.

A band of "pickets" of the National Miners Union, insurgent body of workers, marched on the White House and demonstrated for about half an hour as five of their representatives gained the anteroom of President Hoover's office to present a petition protesting against the "conspiracy of the Hoover-Mellon Government."

The pickets were called away from their pacing along the Pennsylvania avenue front of the White House, as their spokesman, from the vantage point of the shoulders of two of his sturdiest followers, told them their petition would probably find its way "where the miners' demands always end."

Almost at the same time the secret conference of operators with Government officials disbanded with the concensus that "little could be accomplished by the summoning of a national coal conference at this time."

The pickets, exactly 50 in number, descended from battered trucks near the White House about 3:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Marching in twos, and bearing placards reading "Down With Hoover's Strike Breaking Conference," and "We Demand a Six-Hour Day," they headed from East Executive avenue along the sidewalk in front of the White House.

Although there were no police in sight when they arrived, and very few civilians, the marchers made no attempt to enter the White House grounds. There was some attempt at cheering and singing, led by a tall youth in a red and black striped sweater.

As the pickets neared West Executive avenue, two lone policemen in a Third Precinct radio car, jerked to a stop at the curb. The police dashed across the sidewalk and began to snatch the placards from the hands of the marchers. The miners offered no protest, and as they filed by the policemen, quietly handed over their banners.

Seeveral of the women bore little pasteboard cylinders with a coin slot in the top. The police reached for these too.

"No! No!" said one woman, plaintively. "Those are for our relief fund."

All but three of the coin boxes were empty, but in the others a single coin rattled. The police handed these three back to the marchers. In the meantime, White House police had ap-

Wealthy U. S. Felons Bribers, Paper Asserts

New York, July 9 (U.P.).—Department of Justice agents are investigating an alleged Federal prison scandal, in which wealthy convicts are said to have bribed prison officials into letting them take summer vacations in Army camps, the New York Daily News will say tomorrow.

According to the News, the agents already have traced $70,000 in bribes alleged to have been paid by prisoners to gain temporary freedom. The cost of a "transfer," the article states, varied from $800 to $1,000.

GANDHI DISPARAGED IN DEBATE ON INDIA

Moslems Fear for Rights in National Congress, Says Sir John Simon.

London, July 9 (A.P.).—Mahatma Gandhi should not be considered "the whole of India," Sir John Simon, Independent Liberal chieftain, declared in a speech in the House of Commons today.

Referring to Lord Irwin, former viceroy of India, who sat in the peers' gallery, the Liberal leader said the Moslems had read into the Irwin-Gandhi agreement a recognition by the British government of the strength of the Indian Congress, if not a surrender to it.

Among the Moslems, he said, the impression is now current that in the coming constitutional changes for India Moslem rights will not be adequately safeguarded.

"I say with all respect to that distinguished man," Sir John said, "that Gandhi is not the whole of India. I am quite sure that the peace of India can not be secured until the Moslem community feels that it is adequately safeguarded."

The two great Indian communities, Hindu and Moslem, he said, constituted conscientious religious beliefs which amounted almost to revulsion to each other and, as a social system, clashed at a hundred points.

Then tension between them, he said, as illustrated by the Cawnpore riots in March, was increasing and until that tension was relieved there could be no lasting peace in India.

"Let us remember," he said, "that we shall be forgotten but history will record what is being done now between Great Britain and India as one of the great events of the world."

As Sir John spoke, David Lloyd George, Liberal chieftain, from whom he recently parted company, nodded from time to time in approval.

WhiteHouseQuizzesAgents, Reporters on 15 News Leaks

Hoover's Heroic Dash Back From Camp at Rapidan Robbed of Glamour by Probe of Scribes' Sources of Information.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

In the wake of President Hoover's history-making debt holiday plan, there followed yesterday an aftermath that somehow seemed like a transition from heroic drama to trivial melodrama.

The White House secret service men, all crack sleuths, are themselves being investigated, it was revealed, to determine whether any of them talked to reporters about President Hoover's dash from Rapidan to Washington last Sunday.

What puzzled newspapermen was why that particular incident should call for an investigation. The President rushed back to Washington to break the deadlock between the United States and France over the debt moratorium plan. None of the stories written about the incident contained anything unfavorable. To the contrary, they pictured the President in a heroic role, hurriedly leaving his camp to get back to the National Capital and deliver the final stroke that brought France into an agreement.

Theodore Joslin, who "used to be a newspaperman himself," but who is now Secretary to the President, held a half-hour press conference yesterday with his former colleagues, and sought to justify the investigation.

All White House news, he said, should come through stated official sources. What these sources are, Mr Joslin would not say, but it was inferred that he meant himself and President Hoover.

This would mean that no other individual in the White House might give any information whatsoever to reporters. The reporters who cover the White House, as a matter of fact, never look to anybody other than the President and his Secretary for important announcements. There are occasions, however, when they pick up little human interest stories from others.

For example, when they want to know how many persons shook the

Full Force of Diplomatic Prestige Given London Parley of Experts.

(Associated Press.)

The full force of American diplomatic prestige yesterday was thrown into the adjustment of unsettled details of the intergovernmental debt moratorium.

President Hoover selected his close friend and adviser, Hugh S. Gibson, Ambassador to Belgium to serve as official observer for the United States on the experts committee to which further negotiations have been consigned.

He will be assisted by Frederick Livesey, assistant economic adviser of the State Department, who is now on his way to London where the experts will meet next week. Livesey is an acknowledged authority on reparations and war debts.

Until yesterday State Department officials, including Acting Secretary Castle, had indicated American participation in the experts sessions would be perfunctory. At most, officials had said, Treasury experts would participate.

In May and early June Gibson was a house guest of President Hoover. He had many talks with the Chief Executive on the European situation. Speaking recently at Brussels, he said he participated in the development of Mr. Hoover's moratorium proposal.

The Ambassador will enter the London meeting with a full knowledge of the President's hopes that the goodwill manifest in the debt proposal will advance the cause of international disarmament.

Gibson served as delegate to the League of Nations Preparatory Disarmament Conference and is being mentioned prominently as a delegate to the forthcoming General Disarmament Conference at Geneva.

In announcing Gibson's appointment Castle made it clear the American Government is confident an arrangement will be reached so that Germany will not be in technical default when conditional reparations payments fall due July 15.

He reiterated a previous statement by the administration that the moratorium plan was considered morally effective when an agreement was reached with France on July 6.

Since the President's proposal was first made, State Department officials said last night, the United States has proceeded on the assumption that Germany would not be required to pay the annuities due July 15, either under a general acceptance of the President's plan or by a moratorium which she could declare under the Young Plan.

London, July 9 (A.P.).—Word from Washington that Hugh Gibson, American Ambassador to Belgium, will represent his country at the conferences of Young Plan experts here next week was warmly welcomed today.

The hope was expressed that if a meeting of statesmen is to follow that of the experts, Andrew W. Mellon, American Secretary of the Treasury, may participate.

President Hoover in a telegram to President von Hindenburg, of Germany, yesterday expressed his "sincere hope and expectation" that the moratorium would "revive confidence and promote prosperity among all peoples."

The telegram in reply to Von Hindenburg's telegram of appreciation for Mr. Hoover's proposal, said:

"I have received with great appreciation your communication of July 7. It is my sincere hope and expectation that this proposal which has been presented to and accepted by the nations of the world will revive confidence and promote prosperity among all peoples."

U. S. Drafts Acceptance Of Bid to Arms Meeting

(Associated Press.)

State Department officials had virtually completed last night the draft of America's acceptance of the League of Nations invitations to the general disarmament conference next February.

There was no announcement at the State Department regarding the receipt of the invitation, which arrived from Geneva Wednesday. Acting Secretary Castle of the State Department, in response to questions, indicated yesterday, however, the American Government would whole-heartedly accept.

BERLIN WANTS COMING LOANS UNRESTRICTED

Demands Freedom From Forced Political Concessions.

DR. LUTHER IN PARIS AFTER LONDON VISIT

$400,000,000 Credit Sought by Germany in Capitals of Europe.

Berlin, July 9 (U.P.).—Germany tonight demanded the privilege of borrowing money in European capitals unencumbered by political concessions which the other nations wish to impose upon her.

An official informant told the United Press that the cabinet of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening would resign rather than agree to political conditions which it was understood had been advanced by France and possibly by Britain.

These conditions involve abandonment of the Austro-German customs union and a "naval moratorium" which would end the German plans to build a second "pocket battleship," at least during the year of the Hoover debt holiday.

The foreign office met such hints coolly, and it was obvious that such a concession, in the view of Chancellor Bruening, would merely give the Nationalist opposition in Germany a great advantage with the voters. The newspaper Deutsche Allgemeine, for instance, said that even after six new pocket battleships are built "we will not have reached the minimum naval power essential to defense of the country and protection of commerce."

$400,000,000 Sought.

Dr. Hans Luther, president of the Reichsbank, was understood to be seeking a credit of $400,000,000 in London, Brussels, Paris and at Basle. The loan is needed to give German finances the full benefit of the Hoover debt holiday plan and to arrange for protection against future declines.

The boerse was in a nervous mood, opening bearish and impressed by the weakness of foreign stock exchanges and decline of the metal market. There was a marked improvement later, however, chiefly because of Dr. Luther's mission abroad. On the strength of the belief that he will be successful there was a strong rally.

The Reichbank's report for the week ended July 7 also showed some alleviation of financial distress. The covering of Reichsbank notes, gold and foreign currencies, increased 3½ per cent to 43.6 per cent. The gold stock was practically unchanged and foreign currency reserves increased, despite the withdrawal of foreign credits, due to the gold discount bank's credit of $50,000,000 from the United States.

Luther Reaches Paris.

Paris, July 9 (A.P.).—Presumably seeking fresh credits for Germany and the removal of old ones, Dr. Hans Luther, president of the Reichsbank, arrived in Paris tonight from London.

Dr. Luther, who was met by Walter Doehle, counsellor of the German Embassy, refused to make any statement about his purpose in making speedy trips to London and Paris. He said he intended to go direct to Basle, Switzerland, when he leaves here.

Asked whether he would confer with Clement Meret, governor of the Bank of France, the Reichsbank president replied:

"As a bank president I reserve all my liberty of action."

M. Flandin and Clement Meret, governor of the Bank of France, conferred regarding the aid France may be able to offer Dr. Luther and also discussed the meeting of the council of the Bank for International Settlements to be held July 13. At that meeting the question of mobilising capital to aid suffering European countries other than Germany and the French guarantee fund, in case Germany seeks a Young plan moratorium, will be thrashed out.

Experts to Be Named.

In financial circles it was believed that the decision by the Bank for International Settlements to permit France to make guarantee installments in monthly payments as foreseen by the Franco-American agreements, would facilitate the task of the debt experts who meet in London July 13.

At its meeting tomorrow, the French cabinet will name the experts who will represent France at the London meeting and will discuss the possibility of a conference of ministers at the conclusion of the meeting of the experts.

The French expert representatives probably will be M. Flandin and Andre Francois Poncet, undersecretary for national economy.

Interpellations Announced.

It was announced that Premier Laval and Foreign Minister Briand probably will return the visit Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius, of Germany, will make to Paris in the near future. The French cabinet members expect to repay the German visit at Baden Baden.

Three interpellations were announced in the Chamber of Deputies today on the Hoover plan and on disarmament. One came from Deputy Henri Guernut, of Chauteau Thierry, who gave notice that he will ask the government about the measures it intends to take "to remedy the insufficiencies of the Hoover plan."

The interpellations will not be taken up, of course, until the Chamber reconvenes in the fall. The fact that they were laid down on the eve of the visit of Secretary of State Stimson was taken as an indication that Premier Laval would face a stiff debate on disarmament as soon as Parliament was reopened.

Luther's London Visit.

London, July 9 (A.P.).—Accompanied by Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, Dr. Hans Luther, president of the Reichsbank, left this afternoon for Paris, after a short conference with British financial leaders, ostensibly over the projected long-term German loan.

It was understood that Mr. Norman's ultimate destination was Basle. Dr. Luther's plans to fly to Brussels tonight were abandoned in favor of a train and boat journey to Paris. The reason for this change in plans was not disclosed.

The head of the Reichsbank had come to London earlier in the day by air and everything possible was done to shroud his arrival in secrecy. He and Mr. Norman hurried to the train after only a brief conference.

Despite the absence of an official statement concerning the visit of Dr. Luther, it was understood in authoritative circles that the German request for long-term credit ranging as high as £80,000,000 (about $400,000,000) would be further discussed in Paris with the view of grouping the strongest elements in British, French and American finance into an underwriting group.

This group would place huge sums at the disposal of Germany and thus strengthen the Reichsbank position and exert a beneficial psychological effect on German foreign investors, whose withdrawals brought about the present acute situation in Germany.

Naming of Gibson Hailed.

The availability of long-term credit, observers declared, would have the effect of giving Germany a cleaner breathing space and of relieving her of the necessity of continually facing financial stringencies in order to meet a series of short-term commitments.

Although London was chiefly interested in the flying visit of Dr. Luther, another development in the international situation attracted much comment. The announcement that Hugh Gibson, American Ambassador to Belgium, would be the United States representative at the experts' moratorium conference here, was warmly received.

Hope was expressed that before the conference was concluded, and particularly if a meeting of major statesmen were decided upon later, Andrew W. Mellon, American Secretary of the Treasury, would be asked to participate.

Despite the fact that it was definitely known France had agreed to attend the London meeting which opens July 17, the British foreign office today still was without final official information about the French intentions. The government decided to hold up invitations to other countries until the French have replied.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Snowden announced in the House of Commons the government would not agree to any measure giving effect to the Hoover proposal which would lay any additional burden on the British taxpayer.

Best-informed commentators were convinced that the problems of the guarantee fund and of deliveries of reparations in kind could be solved without diving further into John Bull's pockets. There was strong hope in London that the conference of experts would show how the feat was to be performed.

HOOVER PLAN POLICY REVEALED BY BERLIN

$46,000,000 Is Ear-Marked for Payment of Loans From Banks.

Berlin, July 9 (A.P.).—The Bruening government today gave the first practical demonstration of what it intends to do with the Hoover plan reparations savings by earmarking 184,000,000 marks (about $46,000,000) for repayment through the Reichsbank to the consortium of German banks. Late last month the banks tided the government over its difficulties.

The total credit from the consortium was 250,000,000 marks (about $62,500,000). The fact that so large a part of the credit has been earmarked for repayment July 16 is due to "savings effected by the Hoover plan," according to an official communique.

The communique pointed out that the government might have exercised its option to extend the loan.

The decision of the finance minister not to make use of the option was emphasized in the government's statement as being in line with Germany's announced determination to use Hoover plan savings for reduction of the floating debt.

Financial Circles Pleased.

The news was received with utmost gratification in financial circles, where it was taken as an indication that the government now feels capable—thanks to reparations relief—of paying its way with the tax revenues instead of running to the banks for help.

This means that the banks can concentrate on the task of reviving industry instead of rescuing the government.

It means, also, that money devoted to the reduction of the floating debt—beginning with the 184,000,000 marks announced today—will be released from unproductive tasks to flow into capital-starved industrial channels.

Germany had optimistic feelings about the outcome of the visit of Dr. Hans Luther, president of the Reichsbank, to London and Paris.

News of his activities was followed with close interest, and the feeling was general that an arrangement of international credit, sufficient to offset the recent heavy withdrawals of short-term loans, would certainly result.

May Stop Warship Work.

A suggestion in the London press that Germany might make a timely gesture of conciliation toward France by announcing suspension of work on her new 'vest-pocket' battleship "in view of the economic situation" has not met with approval here.

The battleship already is under construction, it was pointed out in official quarters, and it would hardly be good economy to let an uncompleted vessel lie in the shipyard until it rusts. The sensible course, it was said, was to protect the investment and also the livelihood of shipyard workers by finishing the job.

Obviously, however, no money is available at present for undertaking the construction of other cruisers permitted under the Versailles treaty, and Chancellor Bruening already has stated publicly and emphatically that no new naval construction will be begun during the debt holiday year.

Lead Tariff Battle, Robinson "Dared"

Watson Denies That Law Has Slaughtered Foreign Commerce.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Watson, the Republican leader, challenged Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, to "assume the leadership in a fight to make a serious revision of the present tariff law."

Replying to a recent criticism of the Hawley-Smoot tariff by the Arkansas Democrat, Senator Watson, in a statement issued through the Republican national committee, said "facts show there has been no slaughter of either our export or import trade because of the tariff."

Senator Watson said President Hoover has set an example of leadership in seeking to improve present conditions.

"It is too bad that at such a time Senator Robinson can not see his way clear to emulate the President's example," the Indiana senator added, "instead of making it the occasion and the excuse to indulge in shopworn and discredited charges about the tariff."

Wall Street Sees German Recovery

Predictions Place Upturn at Early Date; Luther Seeks Credits.

New York, July 9 (A.P.).—Wall street bankers were optimistic today over the German financial situation. While Hans Luther, head of the German Reichsbank visited foreign financial capitals seeking a huge loan, the New York Stock Market developed a more confident tone, and closed with numerous gains in the principal issues ranging from a few cents to $3 a share.

Reports that the Federal Reserve might extend a further large credit to Germany were described as premature. Whether the directors of the New York Federal Reserve discussed the matter at their regular meeting today could not be learned.

International bankers felt that adequate credit would be forthcoming to take care of Germany's needs. There was considerable difference of opinion as to how much these requirements were. It was felt that what was needed primarily was a restoration of confidence. There is little doubt that the $100,000,000 German credit maturing a week from today will be renewed.

Mellon Basks on Beach As Police Turn Crowds

Cap Ferrat, France, July 9 (A.P.).—Apparently much refreshed by a good night's sleep at the seaside, Andrew W. Mellon, American Secretary of the Treasury, enjoyed today on the beach in company with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. David K. E. Bruce.

Police precautions to keep the curious away worked out successfully and Mr. Mellon was not bothered all day long.

Toy Gliders Popular.

Leipzig, July 8 (U.P.).—The most popular toy in Germany today is the model glider which is shown in great variety at the Leipzig Fair. The fascinating little aircraft fly for more than a mile and remain aloft for 10 minutes. Boys' clubs of model fliers are being formed all over Germany.

I'M ALONE SINKING DEFENDED BY U. S.

State Department Insists to Canada Rum Ship Was American-Owned.

(Associated Press.)

The United States yesterday defended the sinking of the rumrunner I'm Alone, subject of protracted arbitration proceedings with Canada, by an assertion the vessel was American-owned.

A formal note was submitted to the Ottawa government contending, in addition, that the bombardment of the craft by the Coast Guard was justified since its master refused to stop after repeated signals.

The communication also set forth the view that the theory of "hot pursuit" covered the fact that the vessel was scores of miles off shore when sunk. The Coast Guard said the vessel was sighted near land and only overtaken after an extended chase.

Note Sent on Josephine K.

Meanwhile, word came from the State Department that another note to the Canadian government, dealing with a second rumrunning incident, was near completion. It concerns the more recent seizure of the Canadian vessel Josephine K. This ship was captured off the New York coast last January, and its captain, William P. Cluett, killed by Coast Guard gunfire.

The I'm Alone sinking occurred 200 miles off the Louisiana coast in March, 1929, while it was moving at full speed toward Mexico. A French sailor lost his life during the action.

Last March Canada protested the seizure of the Josephine K., claiming it was more than an hour's sailing distance off-shore. In the same month that government submitted a summary of its contentions in the I'm Alone case, questioning, among other things, the application of the theory of "hot pursuit," since the rumrunner was sunk by another vessel than that which sighted it near the coast.

Nevertheless, this theory was reiterated today on the basis that if an American Coast Guard vessel sights a rum runner in American waters and the vessel is closely pursued outside the one-hour's sailing distance from shore the pursuit may continue.

Boston Ownership Alleged.

During the negotiations over the I'm Alone, American representatives have claimed the vessel was owned by the so-called "Hogan ring" in Boston, and that the Canadian registry existed principally to preclude seizure by American officials.

Montreal, July 9 (A.P.).—Marvin James Clark, marine engineer, of New York, was ordered released in $1,000 bail by Justice Desaulniers today. He had been detained for three months, during which department of immigration officials had sought to bring about his deportation to the United States.

Clark contended the real motive behind the deportation move was that he was wanted to testify in the I'm Alone hearing, involving the sinking of an alleged rum runner of Canadian register by the United States Coast Guard.

Truck Knocks Out Traffic Lights.

Traffic lights on Rhode Island avenue northwest were put out of commission when a signal light at the southeast corner of Rhode Island and Florida avenues was knocked down late yesterday by a truck which Linwood E. Johnson, M street near Ninth northwest, was operating. The accident was blamed on slippery streets.

COURT DEFERS RULE ON JAILING OF FALL

Hogan Uses Army Report in Argument on Danger of Incarceration.

A motion that sentence of Albert B. Fall to a year in the District Jail be suspended because of his physical condition, based on a report of Army physicians and affidavits of local medical authorities, yesterday was taken under advisement by Justice Bailey in the District Supreme Court.

At the same time Justice Bailey took under advisement the Government's request that sentence of the former Secretary of the Interior be executed immediately. The judge asked counsel for data on his power to send him to a prison outside the District.

Frank Hogan, attorney for Fall, used a report of Army physicians at William Beaumont Hospital in El Paso, Tex., as the basis of his plea for suspension of sentence. It disclosed that the former Cabinet member is suffering from hardening of the arteries, heart trouble, arthritis, inactive tuberculosis and pleurisy.

Text of Army Report.

Mr. Hogan also presented affidavits by three Washington physicians, W. D. Tewksbury, Frank Leech and Thomas A. Claytor. These authorities agreed that Fall's condition was serious and that imprisonment would probably shorten his life.

The Army medical report made no recommendations, but District Attorney Leo A. Rover nevertheless said the Government felt that Fall was able to come here to begin his term.

The Army diagnosis was as follows:

"1. Arteriosclerosis, generalized, severe, affecting particularly the thoracic and abdominal aorta and the iliac arteries. Prognosis poor.

2. Myocarditis, chronic, with slight signs of decompensation. Prognosis poor.

"3. Arthritis, chronic, hypertrophic, generalized, severe, affecting particularly the spine, where there is evidence of bridging from the seventh to the tenth dorsal ventebrae. Disabling, but prognosis as to life good.

"4. Tuberculosis, pulmonary, chronic, minimal, left upper lobe, inactive. Prognosis good.

Testimony of Doctors.

Following the trial of Fall in October, 1929, Justice William Hitz appointed a board of three "physicians of high professional standing and experience and without any interest in the case," comprising Dr. Tewksbury, Dr. Leech and Dr. Claytor. Mr. Hogan presented the Army report to them.

Dr. Leech made affidavit that it "would be very hazardous to confine a patient of this kind where he would not have proper fresh air, sunshine and hygienic surroundings." Dr. Claytor said it was his opinion "imprisonment would materially tend to shorten his life." Dr. Tewksbury's affidavit gave similar testimony.

District Attorney Rover yesterday asked Mr. Hogan if he would consent to the sentence of Fall in a Western prison where the high, dry atmosphere might not injure his health. Mr. Hogan said he would have to consult his client.

Justice Bailey said that before taking action he would determine whether he has power to send him to another prison, or authority to suspend sentence in his absence from Washington. Fall was indicted in 1924 on a charge of accepting a bribe and was convicted in October, 1929.

Fall Called "Very Weak."

El Paso, Tex., July 9 (A.P.).—Commenting on the suggestion of government counsel that Albert B. Fall be confined in jail here, Dr. J. H. Gambrill, personal physician of the former Secretary of the Interior, said today:

"Confinement of any kind is not the thing for Albert B. Fall. Any one knows that fresh air, good food and peace of mind are essential to the welfare of a tuberculosis sufferer. Moreover, the condition of Mr. Fall's heart is such that jail confinement would entail most grave possibilities. He ought not to be imprisoned in Washington, El Paso or any other place."

Dr. Gambrill was one of four private physicians who recently concurred in a statement that Fall was not able to go to Washington for commitment to prison for a year.

Members of Fall's family today said he was "very weak" as a result of a restless night induced by tension over the court proceedings in Washington.

Senator Lewis Urges Domestic Relief Also

(Associated Press.)

Proposing an early session of Congress for ratification of the intergovernmental moratorium agreement, Senator-elect Lewis (Democrat), Illinois, yesterday called upon the administration to consider domestic relief also.

"It is time some American official did something for America," he said. "The President should at once make provision to give the business man, the farmer and city laborer of our country their moratorium and relief by providing work and food and credit to the United States."

In addition, Lewis urged that the Democrats hold an early convention and "throw the enemy on the defensive."

I. C. C. Moves to Halt Letters on Rate Plea

(United Press.)

The public has shown so much interest in the efforts of the railroads to obtain a 15 per cent freight rate increase, and written so many letters about it, that the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday moved to cut off the stream of correspondence.

George B. McGinty, secretary of the commission, announced letters would have no official standing in the case. Already three large dockets have been filled with letters, mostly protests, and more are arriving daily.

Secretary McGinty said also no mailing list would be maintained and interested persons other than participants would have to follow the case through the newspapers.

would be "disastrous." If the people should be disillusioned, he said, there would follow a panic and a business collapse. No proposal for the changing of the date of the conference, which is slated to be held February 2, will come from Italy, he said.

Later in the day Mr. Stimson had two other conferences with Foreign Minister Grandi. He spent an hour with the foreign minister at noon, laying the groundwork for his discussion with the premier later in the day.

At night at a dinner given by United States Ambassador Garrett, the Secretary again talked with Mussolini and with Signor Grandi, making a full six-hour day of international political discussion.

At the dinner, in addition to Mussolini, the Secretary and the foreign minister, the guests included Minister of Finance Moscono, Naval Minister Sirlianni, Minister of Justice Rocco, Minister of Education Giuliano and Giovanni Giurianti, secretary of the Fascist party.

As on all occasions when Mussolini goes anywhere, the Palazzo Rostiglioni, where the Garrets live, was well guarded by plain-clothes men.

Hoover Commission Hits Railway Pay Reduction

(United Press.)

President Hoover's special emergency board in the Louisiana & Arkansas Railway strike and wage cut case reported last night that the railroad was not justified in its attempt to cut wages and that its attempt to impose new rules and working conditions on its employes was "positively illegal."

The report said the road should restore the rate of wages paid to shopcraft workers before a 5-cent-an-hour wage cut announced last spring.

Prussian Diet Beats Move for Dissolution

Berlin, July 9 (A.P.).—The Prussian Diet today rejected by a vote of 229 to 190 a Communist motion for dissolution. Consequently there will be a plebescite of the Prussian electorate on August 9, in accordance with the demand of the Steel Helmets, who got nearly 6,000,000 electors to vote for a dissolution of the Diet in May.

More than 50 per cent of the electorate of about 13,000,000 would have to vote for dissolution if the Communist project were carried out, and this is regarded as impossible.

Chilean Premier Quits; Banker to Be Successor

Santiago, Chile, July 9 (A.P.).—Premier Armando Jaramillo handed his resignation to President Ibanez tonight and it was understood that the resignation of the entire Chilean cabinet would follow shortly.

President Ibanez appointed Francisco Garces, president of the Central Bank of Chile, as Jaramillo's successor.

BUILDING CONTINUES ON 7 NEW CRUISERS

Designs Expected to Obviate Further Trouble Over Stern Post Castings.

(Associated Press.)

Construction of the Navy's seven new cruisers proceeded without halt or change in plans yesterday despite discovery of defective stern post castings on five of eight already launched.

The Navy Department expressed confidence the defect would not crop out in connection with the ships now building as they are of a different design.

Secretary Adams referred to the epidemic of cracked castings as "very serious," but added he believed the trouble would be remedied.

Rear Admiral George H. Rock, chief of the bureau of construction, said the specifications for the seven new ships call for a type of hull and stern post casting which he expects to prove considerably stronger.

Faulty Castings Blamed.

Rock added that he thought the cracked stern posts discovered thus far aboard the Augusta, Chicago, Louisville, Northampton and Chester might be traceable to a combination of faulty designing and faulty casting.

The stern post is subjected to terrific strain, particularly when the rudder is thrown sharply over at high speed.

The castings used in the new cruisers are to be examined closely with a newly developed device, similar to an X-ray, capable of detecting flaws that previously passed unnoticed.

It was explained that in most cases the castings are not made at the yard where the vessels are built but are obtained from a subcontractor. The cracked posts on all five vessels have been or will be replaced.

Present Contract Building.

Five of the seven cruisers now building are in the hands of contractors that turned out the defective ships. The contract for the Portland is held by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, which built the Northampton; the Astoria by the Puget Sound Navy Yard, which produced the Louisville; the Indianapolis and Tuscaloosa by the New York Shipbuilding Co. which turned out the Chester and the San Francisco by the Mare Island Navy Yard which made the Chicago.

The two others are the New Orleans at the New York Navy Yard and the Minneapolis at the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

The three cruisers which so far have stood up under trial—the Salt Lake City, Pensacola and Houston—were built by the New York Shipbuilding Co., New York Navy Yard and Newport News Shipbuilding Co., respectively.

The cracked stern post does not prevent cruising, so the Chicago and the Louisville will leave the West Coast late this month to join the scouting force in the Atlantic. They will continue in operation until fall, when the repairs will be made.

Fliers' Kin Predict New Try for Tokyo

Robbins' Wife and Parents Sure Pair Will Again Attempt Flight.

Fort Worth, Tex., July 9 (A.P.).—Mrs. Reg L. Robbins said she believed her husband and H. S. Jones will try again immediately to fly nonstop between Seattle and Tokyo.

When informed the fliers had been forced down, she said she expected them to return to Seattle and begin the second attempt at once. "They talked that over before they left Fort Worth," she said, "and they decided to keep trying until they made it."

Mrs. Robbins admitted she felt "easier" that the men were safe on the ground, but added that she was disappointed they could not continue.

Chicago, July 9 (A.P.).—John P. Jones hopes and expects his son, Harold, and Reg Robbins will try the nonstop Seattle-to-Tokyo flight again.

"He'll go back and start over," the 70-year-old father of the flier said when informed his son had been forced down in Alaska. "He's just that stubborn. He's never been stopped yet and he won't be next time. His mother will feel the same way about it."

AGENTS, REPORTERS QUIZZED ON WHITE HOUSE NEWS LEAKS

Favorable Story Brought Probe.

The story that precipitated the investigation of the Secret Service men appeared on the first page of the New York Times last Monday. As has been said, it was entirely favorable to the President. It said:

"President Hoover left his Rapidan camp on a moment's notice early this afternoon to return to Washington, again to throw himself into the negotiations revolving around his proposal for an international debts and reparations holiday.

"The President did not even wait for his Sunday dinner.

"When he first announced he must return to the White House at once, attaches ordered his dinner and announced that the trip would be started an hour later. But when the President said 'at once,' he meant 'at once,' and he ordered the car immediately.

Fast Car Rushes Food.

"Secret Service operatives, off duty, came scurrying from their quarters, some of them buttoning their shirts as they ran. The President did not even wait for them. They had to finish putting on their coats as the three-car motorcade wound around the mountainside toward Washington.

"A box of sandwiches was prepared for the President soon after he left and was given a fast driver, who overtook him near Sperryville, Va., about 30 miles toward Washington. The President's automobile was stopped just long enough to take the sandwiches aboard, then sped on toward the White House.

"Mr. Hoover lunched on the sandwiches in his car and made the trip to Washington in a little more than two and a half hours, arriving between 3:30 and 4 o'clock."

This dramatic dash to Washington was followed within 24 hours by an agreement between France and the United States on the President's debt proposal.

Agents and Reporters Quizzed.

In the last three days Secret Service men who were with the President have been questioned as to whether they gave reporters any of the details. Some of the White House newspapermen also have been questioned.

Chief Moran, of the United States Secret Service, was at the White House yesterday and was in conference with Larry Richey, a former detective, who is now one of the President's secretaries.

Secretary Joslin said yesterday that there have been something like fifteen "leaks" in connection with White House news in the last few weeks.

One of these led to the story about Mrs. Hoover's dog biting a Marine at Rapidan. Another had to do with carpenters disturbing President Hoover while he was taking a nap at the White House. A servant told the carpenters to cease, and the reporter wrote that a "moratorium has been declared on noise." He since has been questioned as to the source of his information. Naturally he won't tell.

Wants Press to Respect Privacy.

President Hoover is insistent that reporters not concern themselves with that part of his life which he regards as private.

Nearly all the Presidents have fought for this privacy which President Hoover desires. Press conferences such as the President now holds twice a week are of comparatively modern origin. In the days of Roosevelt and Taft only the newspapermen who were favorites could get in to the White House and find out what was going on.

President Hoover, like his two predecessors, holds two press conferences a week, one at noon on Tuesday, the other at 4 o'clock on Friday. These are attended by anywhere from 20 to 100 newspapermen.

In establishing a camp along the Rapidan, President Hoover was motivated by a desire to have some retreat where he might enjoy absolute privacy. A detachment of United States Marines, 187 men and 8 officers, is maintained there to insure him that privacy.

Judge Holds Dog Farm Is Nuisance

Fine of $50 Is Assessed Against Alleged Head and Appeal Filed.

Judge Charles W. Woodward yesterday found that the Humane Education Society of Maryland had been maintaining a nuisance in the form of a dog farm at Potomac, Md., and assessed a fine of $50 against James P. Briggs, president of the society. The case was appealed to the circuit court.

The warrant in the case had been sworn out by Chief of Police Alvie A. Moxley after several visits to the dog farm made following the receipt of a number of complaints regarding conditions at the place. Approximately 20 witnesses, including most of the residents within a mile and a half radius of the farm were put on the stand to show that it interferred with their peaceful enjoyment of their homes.

The society also placed witnesses on the stand to show that the farm was maintained in an orderly fashion but State witnesses were produced in an effort to refute the testimony of several. Residents of the neighborhood told the court that the dogs kept up a continuous barking and kept them awake at night.

Aimee McPherson's Son To Wed Oklahoma Girl

Los Angeles, July 9 (A.P.).—Rolf McPherson, 18, son of Aimee Semple McPherson, the evangelist, and Lorna Dee Smith, 19-year-old Alva, Okla., girl, applied for a marriage license today.

They were accompanied to the county clerk's office by Mrs. McPherson, who said she will perform the wedding ceremony at Angelus Temple July 21. Young McPherson's engagement to Miss Smith was announced several months ago. A few days later it was denied and last week was again announced.

Miners Seek Fund To Feed Children

Drive Is Made for Money to Buy Milk in Strikers' Areas.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 9 (A.P.).—A telegram was received at the governor's office today advising him that a national campaign had been started to raise a fund to buy milk for the children of unemployed miners in western Pennsylvania.

The message was sent by John Dospassos, chairman of the "national committee to aid striking miners fighting starvation." The committee's headquarters are in New York City.

"Thirty-nine Americans—including Lincoln Steffens, Floyd Dell, Upton Sinclair, Mary Heaton Yorse and Sherwood Anderson—having noted your appeal to Chairman John Barton Payne, of the American Red Cross, for hungray children of coal miners in western Pennsylvania, and Payne's refusal of aid, have begun national campaign today for fund to buy milk for these children," the telegram stated.

New Ordeal Faced By Siamese Twins

Separated Infants Must Withstand Second Operation.

Baltimore, July 9 (A.P.).—The lives of twin girls, joined at birth but severed by a surgical operation unparalleled locally, hung in the balance today as surgeons waited to see whether they could undergo a second vital operation.

Without a second operation, it was said at Mercy Hospital, where they were born Tuesday, the twins will surely die. All the organs of the babies are normal except the intestinal tract, there being but one tract common to the two, and it was through this that they were joined.

The operation to sever them was necessary, as they could not have lived in the condition they were born, it was said. This having been done, it was explained by Dr. Daniel J. Pessagno, who performed the initial operation, the obligation to use the knife a second time developed to prevent a blind termination of the intestinal tract of each child in the abdominal cavity. Otherwise, life would be destroyed by the accumulative of poisons generated by food within the abdominal cavity.

Several days will be allowed to elapse before the second operation, under present plans. Meanwhile, the children seemed in good health, each weighing 4½ pounds.

Holiday Expected to Bring Vanished Capital to Reich

Cessation of Government Demands Upon Banks Also Will Allow "Irrigation" of Industry in Building Up New Structure of National Prosperity.

Germany now has her moratorium. What will she do with it? This is the second of a series of stories giving Germany's answer.

By WADE WERNER.

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

Berlin, July 9 (A.P.).—The effect of the debt moratorium on German industry—always providing that nothing happens to shake foreign confidence once again—will be of twofold beneficial force.

First, the return of vanished capital and the introduction of new foreign capital available for long-term loans will enable business to refund its short-term obligations into long-term loans. Thus industry will get into a position where its leaders can plan ahead and work methodically instead of scraping through with one short-term loan after another, always fearful that at the end of the month or quarter or half year, the loan will be called.

To further the introduction of new foreign capital Dr. Hans Luther, president of the Reichsbank, now is making flying trips to European financial centers.

One of the reasons for this hurried visit is the alarming continued demand for foreign currencies. Observers agreed that so long as the demand continued there could be no recovery on the Berlin boerse. For that reason, the outcome of Dr. Luther's trip was awaited anxiously.

The second effect of the debt moratorium so far as industry is concerned is the relief afforded by the reduction of the government's floating debt through the diversion of tax receipts from the payment of reparations.

Technically only the Reich's treasury is benefitted; but when the government finds its treasury position so much improved that it no longer has to run to the German banks from month to month for short-term loans to carry it over pay roll and other emergencies, the banks themselves can begin turning this money into industrial channels.

And, of course, as soon as investors both here and abroad begin to see the fructifying effect of such "irrigation" of industry they will help the process along by investing in industrial stocks and buying industrial bond issues.

Such a combination of direct cash relief and psychological impetus is capable of erecting the framework of a new prosperity, but if this framework is to develop into a permanent structure it must be filled in with the solid masonry of sound financing and economic management in both public and private business.

No one realizes this better than Heinrich Bruening, the "Iron Chancellor," and one of the consolations of the cautious bankers and business men at this particular time is their conviction that the man who risked political death not once but many times with his "iron economy" attitude isn't likely to weaken now that his great reparations success has convinced even many of his enemies that he was right.

"Why Did You Do It, Rudy?" Pens Disappointed Daffodil

Eight Rooms, Seven Radios, Twin Beds Are Features of Radio Star's New Home; Women Storm Studio When He Appears for Broadcast.

New York, July 9 (U.P.).—Rudy Vallee, the crooning orchestra leader whose marriage to Miss Fay Webb was made public yesterday, almost had to fight his way through a mob of several hundred women who collected at the entrance to the Times Square Studios of the National Broadcasting System tonight.

When Vallee reached the studio by taxicab from his apartment, the women were on the sidewalk and made a rush for him as he stepped from the car. He managed, goodnaturedly, to elbow his way through the mob and enter the studio for his broadcast. About 100 of the women succeeded in persuading attendants to let them into the studio to hear the program.

Friends of Vallee said that during the day hundreds of telegrams reached his apartment, many of them from members of Rudy Vallee Clubs throughout the country. One of them said: "Why did you do it Rudy?" and was signed, "From the Disappointed Daffodil."

New York, July 9 (A.P.).—Rudy Vallee's feminine public has been handed a home lover to replace the vagabond article.

Home lover is what the famous young saxophone and Maine Stein song epoch turns out to be. That side of him came uppermost Monday when he married Miss Fay Webb, of Santa Monica, Calif., so quietly that the newspapers didn't learn of it until yesterday.

The home, where Rudy's wandering slippers are already at rest under the edge of one of a pair of twin beds, is a cozy little affair on the west side of Central Park. There are eight rooms and seven radios. The bathroom has none.

There Mrs. Vallee, Betty to her dearest friends, will rule her world just as effectively as her musician husband rules his famous orchestra.

For her the biggest part of that world will be the temperamental Rudy, fair-haired, blue-eyed Yale man who put the word croon into the musical dictionary and wrote his own biography for the screen and book publishers under the title, "Vagabond Dreams Come True."

Mrs. Vallee is a tall, slender girl of 23, with wide brown eyes and a straight little nose, tilted just enough. She was heavily made up for her camera and press interview, so much so that Rudy explained to the reporters:

"She may look a little theatrical now, but Betty is really just a home girl. She is not going to do any more moving picture work. She's a domestic little person and can cook—although," he added hastily, "I haven't eaten any of her cooking yet."

His marriage must not interfere with his work, for his contracts won't permit it. So there will be no honeymoon.

A little later, two years at least, according to Mrs. Vallee, there may be additions to the family circle.

"We intend to have children," the bride said.

This is Mrs. Vallee's first marriage. Rudy Vallee, who is 30, was formerly married to Mrs. Leonie Cauchois McCoy, daughter of a coffee merchant. The marriage was annulled three months after the ceremony.

GRAND JURY HEARS GALLINGER CHARGES

World War Veteran Tells Jurors of Alleged Brutality at Institution.

The District grand jury yesterday listened to testimony of Joseph Edward Jaffee, World War veteran, who repeated to the jurors statements he had made Wednesday attacking Gallinger Hospital. Jaffee had a discolored eye, sustained when a patient-attendant swung on him when he was going through the hospital in the company of officials there to point out men he had seen treating patients brutally.

The patient who attacked Jaffee was quickly subdued and the incident, insofar as that scene was concerned, was all over.

Jaffee declared he was refused permission to leave the hospital when he wanted to go, that he was forced to bathe under insanitary conditions, that he was confined to a strong room when he complained he was afraid to go to sleep for fear of being killed while he slept.

The veteran said that he went to Mount Alto for treatment July 4, but that owing to a shortage of beds he was told to go to Gallinger Hospital. Shortly after he reached the hospital, he said, he felt well enough to leave, but the hospital refused to let him go.

The grand jury is not being asked to indict any one. It is simply being asked to make an investigation and then file a report. Hospital officials have denied that any employe there struck Jaffee.

Lincoln, World Adventurer, Is Buddhist Priest in China

Former German Spy and Parliament Member Now "Chao Kung."

IGNATIUS T. LINCOLN.

Peiping, China, July 9 (A.P.).—Ignatius Tribich Lincoln, former member of the British Parliament and known for his long record of international adventures, is a Buddhist priest here with the name of Chao Kung.

Wearing the gray robe of a Buddhist monk, Lincoln, who was born in Austria but later became a naturalized British subject, said he began to study Buddhism some years ago. Finally he decided it was the only antidote against "the grasping greed and gross materialism of Europeans and Americans."

Twelve circular scars on his shaven head indicate that he has gone through the painful burning ceremony supposed to testify that a candidate for the Buddhist priesthood is dead to all sensation. Symbolical of the Buddhist wheel of life, the marks are burned into the scalp with small wafers made of incense and charcoal.

About 30 years ago Lincoln, now 53, studied for the ministry in the Anglican Church.

"Christianity has become bankrupt and Chinese Buddhists should send missionaries to spread their doctrines abroad," he said.

Saying he is the first foreigner to take the Buddhist vow in China, Lincoln plans to devote the rest of his life to his chosen religion.

"When I became interested in politics," he said, "it was the most unfortunate step in my life and I am very glad that it is over."

Ignatius Tribich Lincoln, whose Austrian name was Trebitsch, thrilled New York in 1918 when, arrested on information furnished by the British Embassy, he said he had been a German spy and made public purported "spy revelations." Later he repudiated the "confession."

Escaping from custody three months later, he taunted police through statements to the newspapers until his recapture. Extradited from New York to England in 1916, he was tried by the British on a charge of forgery. After serving a three-year prison sentence he was deprived of his British citizenship and deported.

Going to Germany he was placed in charge of the censorship under the short-lived Kapp regime in 1919. He fled to Austria upon collapse of the Kapp government and was expelled from that country in 1921 for alleged treasonable activities.

Exiled from England, he went to China, engaged in supplying arms to the various factions, made a fortune and bought an estate in Ceylon. But he was drawn again to Europe, where he was reported in 1926 endeavoring to obtain a loan for the Cantonese government of China. Soon after that his arrival in Peking (now Peiping), disguised as a Buddhist monk, was reported.

MAN IS SENTENCED TO CHAIR 8TH TIME

Doom of Aldridge, Slayer of Policeman, Now Set for October 30.

Alfred Scott Aldridge, colored, convicted of the murder of Policeman Harry J. McDonald, was sentenced to electrocution yesterday by Justice Peyton Gordon after he had overruled a motion for a new trial by James Reilly, attorney for the man.

The time was set for October 30 between 10 o'clock in the morning and 2 in the afternoon, and the place was named as the Washington Asylum and Jail.

Aldridge is the first man in the memory of courthouse attaches, and that goes back some 50 years, who has ever been tried three times for the same murder, and who was twice convicted of that murder. His first trial ended in a deadlock between the jurors. He was found guilty at his second trial, but the United States Supreme Court gave him a new trial because the trial justice did not query jurors about possible racial prejudice in a case where a colored man was on trial for the murder of a white man.

The third trial, late last month, resulted in another conviction. Aldridge has seen eight different dates set for his execution. Seven of them were given while appeals were before the higher courts, and the eighth was given yesterday. Assistant United States Attorney Walter M. Shea prosecuted Aldridge.

AMERICAN PRAISES SOVIET WAGE STAND

Col. Hugh Cooper Predicts Change of World View Toward Russia.

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

Moscow, July 9 (A.P.).—Col. Hugh L. Cooper, head of the American engineering firm which bears his name, returned to Russia today, and said he was convinced that Joseph Stalin's recent enunciation of a new Soviet industrial policy was fraught with the deepest significance, "not only to the Russian people, but for the world at large."

Describing Stalin's speech outlining the new plan for wage payment, according to worker's ability as "revolutionary" in the greatest degree, Mr. Cooper said that it marked a new epoch in Russian progress because under the new policy "human nature gets a chance that it never had before."

"It will do more to quiet the outside world than anything else, if the people will understand it correctly," he said. "The world need never fear Russian dumping now, because the speech shows so well that all Russia's strength is to be concentrated on producing higher living standards for her own people."

"It should provoke a better feeling in America toward Russia, and it would be a good thing if every thinking man in the United States read the speech from beginning to end, so that he might know better what Russia is trying to do.

"Anything that is good for Russia is good for America, and the speech will help the whole world, because everything Russia is doing now is affecting the outside world, although "not as harmfully as many have been led to believe."

Col. Cooper arrived in Moscow today en route to Dnieprostroy, where he is building a gigantic power development for the government. He expects the plant to begin operations in the latter part of 1932, with 160,000 horse power.

Hatless Trio Get Terms of 10 Years

Three Who Netted Only $233 in Robberies Enter Pleas of Guilty.

Prison terms of ten years each were given to the members of the "hatless trio" by Justice Peyton Gordon yesterday. They were Peter Sala, Nicholas Vasilion and John M. Ross.

The three entered pleas of guilty to three charges of robbery. In addition, Sala and Vasilion plead guilty to taking an automobile.

The three men, none of whom is over 24 years of age, netted $233 in their three robberies. They got $120 from the Mount Pleasant Pharmacy, at 3146 Mount Pleasant street northwest; $80 from the Whittelsey Drug Store, at 1564 Wisconsin avenue northwest, and $33 from Leon Bauman's store at 1452 D street northeast.

Vasilion and Sala were captured by Virginia police and were brought back to this city. Ross was later apprehended near Richmond on information given police by his two confederates.

Mother and Child Overcome by Gas

Given First Aid by Rescue Squad and Later Taken to Hospital.

Notified by neighbors that gas was flowing from his brother's and sister-in-law's second-floor apartment at 769 Quebec place northwest last night, David Schaffer entered after climbing a ladder and opening a window to discover Mrs. Anna Schaffer, 33, and her 3-year-old child, Lenora, unconscious with gas pouring from six jets in the kitchen stove.

After receiving first aid treatment by the rescue squad, mother and daughter were removed to Casualty Hospital, where the former's condition was pronounced serious. The child is believed out of danger.

Police said that the woman had been despondent because of ill health. Albert Schaffer, her husband, was in Baltimore at the time. He is a tailor. Mrs. Schaffer and their child are said to have come to this country from Poland about four months ago.

HOME OVATION GIVEN TO POST AND GATTY

Chickasha, Okla., Has Parade and Banquet for Fliers; Governor Speaks.

Chickasha, Okla., July 9 (A.P.).—Wiley Post, famous pilot, and his Australian navigator, Harold Gatty, were accorded perhaps the greatest ovation ever given any one in Oklahoma when they returned today from their historic flight around the world.

Thousands of persons from all sections of the State acclaimed the fliers and their financial backer, F. C. Hall, as the Winnie Mae, globe-circling monoplane, landed here at 2:32 p. m. (C. S. T.), after a nonstop flight from Columbus, Ohio.

The entire Post family, the father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Post, of Maysville, Okla.; five brothers and a sister, were on hand to participate in the tumultuous welcome.

Although Gov. William H. Murray and other State notables, and scores of Wiley's friends were in the great crowd, the pilot's reunion with his family was the high light of the event for him.

Wives Land Later.

The fliers' wives landed at the airport from Columbus shortly after the Winnie Mae came to earth.

Post's sister, Mrs. I. A. Junell, of Dallas, Tex., was the first member of the family to greet him. The two embraced without speaking, while they smiled broadly.

Five minutes later, while the fliers were posing for pictures, Post's father and mother were driven to the field.

"Wiley, bless your heart, you blessed thing," the mother said, kissing him and patting him on the shoulder.

The taciturn hero said nothing, but held his mother in his arms until his father walked up. The two shook hands without a word, then the father walked over and shook hands with Gatty.

Wiley's mother then turned from him and kissed the navigator. The next few moments were spent by Post and Gatty receiving the acclaim of the cheering throng which police held back with difficulty.

Meanwhile, Gov. Murray, who had waited to hear that the fliers had arrived, hurried to the field to make the State's welcoming speech.

Banquet Held at Night.

After a parade through town, a banquet was scheduled in honor of the fliers and Hall tonight.

It was here the Oklahoma pilot became acquainted with the oil man, a former resident of Chickasha, who was to sponsor the world flight. And it was in Chickasha that Winnie Mae Fain (nee Hall) was reared. The plane that was named after Hall's "little girl" tonight stood in a wire inclosure at one of its "home" airports. Mrs. Fain is in California with her husband, Leslie Fain, where they will greet the fliers later.

Hall was presented with a wreath of roses in the form of a horseshoe. Presentation was made by Mayor Jess Larson, following brief remarks praising the oil man for his "good sportsmanship."

World Fliers Plan Six Weeks' Tour of Country

New York, July 9 (A.P.).—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty are to tour the country for about six weeks, visiting at least one and often two towns a day, and technically they will be listed as "artists." The world circling Winnie Mae will merely make a conventional landing and out will step Post and Gatty intent on making a nation air conscious.

From a platform on the field or at some hall in town, according to local arrangements, the fliers will deliver adresses on aviation, telling of its advance to the date of their great world flight and predicting the further advances to come.

Then they will step back into the Winine Mae and fly straight on to their next engagement, pausing not at all for such aerial gymnastics as Post was familiar with in the days of garden variety barnstorming.

The tour is being arranged by the National Broadcasting Co. artists' service. Already more than a score of invitations have been received from towns desirous of hearing the world fliers. It is expected that the course will lie first through New England, then westward to the Coast through the northern half of the country, and probably back to the Atlantic through the South.

Gaming Raid Nets Youth and 12 Men

Police Without Warrant Say Race Phone Was in Hotel Room.

Carl J. Simonton, 19, of Bates street near First northwest, was charged with permitting gaming and twelve men were held as Government witnesses after police, led by Sergt. R. A. Johnson, raided a third-floor suite in a down-town hotel yesterday.

A quantity of bookmaking paraphernalia was seized, according to the raiders. With Sergt. Johnson were Policemen H. E. Bauer, W. A. Schotter, C. D. Schamp and G. E. Thornton. They had no warrant. The policemen were admitted by a colored maid who had a pass key.

According to their report, the suite boasted a telephone connected with a racetrack and two men were found engaged in taking results over the wire and calling them out.

COAL MINERS MARCH AS PARLEY PROTEST

peared and reinforcements from the Metropolitan force hove in view as the two doughty policemen disappeared in the emergency car, bearing their trophies. The pickets were allowed to march, but were warned they must keep quiet. They obeyed to the letter. There was almost no sound from them except the shuffling of their feet.

In the meantime, the committee, headed by Frank Borich, of Pittsburgh, secretary of the union, had gained the doors of the White House offices. Mr. Borich's followers were Mrs. A. Mitchell, Joseph Conner, H. B. Johnson and Tyler Williams. They were held up at the door, but were later allowed to enter and conducted to the office of Theodore Joslin, one of the President's secretaries.

Borich Outlines Grievances.

They were separated from the President's office by a closed door and short corridor. Mr. Borich presented his petition and then continued to outline his grievances verbally. Mr. Joslin's buzzer sounded and the secretary disappeared into Mr. Hoover's office. A few minutes later he returned and asked Mr. Borich if all he wanted to say was not included in the written petition.

Mr. Borich agreed that most of it was, and after a few more observations in his very good English, strongly tinged with a foreign accent, left the executive offices. He said he would call his pickets away, as presenting the petition was the only object in view. He kept his promise, after a short harangue from the shoulders of two of his men.

The petition presented by the miners included a statement that "we protest against the avowed purpose of the Washington conference to force the United Mine Workers of America upon the miners." This would be regarded as an attempt to set up new strike-breaking machinery controlled by the operators.

See Little Hope of Aid.

At the operators' conference, attended by Secretary of Commerce Lamont and Secretary of Labor Doak, there appeared to be a general failure to agree upon anything after four hours of talk.

In a formal statement issued after the conference Secretary Lamont said "many of the operators held the view that little could be accomplished of advantage to the public, the industry or the workers engaged in it by summoning of a national coal conference at this time." However, no final decisions were arrived at in regard to the matter, he said.

Secretary Lamont asserted that the object of the gathering was to elicit a "free and frank interchange of opinion and data" and the bearing of freight rates on coal marketing, the variance between scales of wages current in various parts of the country, unemployment and other conditions.

ALLEGED SLAYER, 70, HELD TO GRAND JURY

Sister of Elsie Bryant Tells How Owens Shot Girl and Herself.

William Owens, 70-year-old dredge captain, was yesterday held for the grand jury by a coroner's jury, which investigated the murder of Elsie Bryant, 14-year-old girl, whom Owens is alleged to have fatally wounded last Friday when she spurned Owens' advances.

The dead girl's sister, Mrs. Gertrude Campbell, 17 years old, who was also wounded when Owens allegedly opened fire on them at their home on M street near Four-and-a-half street southwest, described the shooting to the jury.

Owens came to the place, she said, insisting upon seeing Elsie and wanting to "make up with her." When she refused, he asked for a farewell kiss which the girl also refused.

Then, she testified, Owens opened fire, shooting Elsie five times. He then turned the gun on Mrs. Campbell, according to the testimony. James T. Wilmer, 16 years old, friend of Elsie, who lives on Thirteenth street near B street southwest, testified Mrs. Owens came to the house shortly before her husband.

Mrs. Owens was present at the inquest yesterday but refused to testify against her husband.

Alleged Gamester Is Held in $500 Bond

Latest raid of the series begun by the Four Horsemen, now being continued by the Two Horsemen, had a preliminary inning in Police Court yesterday when Gustave B. Rhinehardt, of H street near Twelfth street northwest, was taken before Judge Ralph Given on a charge of permitting gaming.

He entered a plea of not guilty and was ordered released on a $500 bond for trial July 29. Two detectives, Arthur Fihelly and Howard Ogle, entered the place where they alleged they found some paraphernalia which led them to place the gaming charge against Rhinehardt.

Derby Sentenced To 15-Month Term

Hit-Run Driver Is Charged With Manslaughter in Death of Boy.

Called before Justice Peyton Gordon yesterday for sentence following his plea of guilty to an indictment charging him with manslaughter, Charles E. Derby, hit-and-run driver, was sentenced to serve fifteen months in the penitentiary.

Justice Gordon remarked in passing sentence that the man had been drinking and that he drove his car in such a manner that it struck 7-year-old William R. Settle, on Naylor road southeast, June 16, as the boy was on his way home from school.

The boy's body remained in the bushes, where Derby's machine hurled it, until a searching party found it later in the night. Derby was arrested for speeding by Eleventh Precinct police and a dent in his right fender led to questioning which elicited the information that the machine was the one that struck the lad and failed to stop. Derby was driving a borrowed machine.

Humidity and Heat Win Court's Mercy for Boys

Their efforts to cool off, first by taking a plunge into the Potomac River, and later by scampering through the streets of Southwest Washington more or less dishabille had a sorry result for two small Negro boys yesterday in the Police Court.

A policeman testified that he outran the pair and arrested them for not wearing any clothing. Others in the party escaped, he said. Judge Ralph Given fined each boy $25, and then later in the day, when the humidity got to working overtime in Police Court, he recalled the boys and suspended the sentence.

Agricultural Museum Is Proposed by Grange

Establishment of a permanent agricultural museum here was proposed yesterday by the National Grange which suggested it be completed in time for the George Washington Bi-centennial celebration. It is also suggested that a Nation-wide farmers' picnic be held here next July 4.

Specimens of implements and contrivances used by colonial farmers, as well as an exhibit of their household utensils and furniture, the association suggested, should be collected for the museum.

Capital Woman Leaves Cousins $60,000 Estate

An estate of $60,000 was left by Miss Blanche A. Williams, who died July 2 here. She had no near relatives in this city, and a first cousin, Safford A. Crummey, of New York, filed a petition asking letters of administration be issued to the Munsey Trust Co.

The petition states that all the heirs are first cousins who reside in Wisconsin, New York and Florida. Most of the estate was made up of railroad stocks.

Newsboys Acquitted; Shouts Not Disorderly

Holding that calling out newspapers for sale did not constitute disorderly conduct, Judge Ralph Given yesterday dismissed charges against Julius Scheer and William Morrison, newsboys.

They were arrested by Policeman M. G. Dooley, of the First Precinct, who placed the disorderly charge against them. He testified that the boys were crying their papers "very loud."

Broken Scaffolding Brings Worker Hurts

Robert Petree, 27 years old, of 917 Twelfth street northwest, received a broken ankle yesterday when he fell three stories after a scaffolding upon which he was working broke, on the Twelfth street side of the Raleigh Hotel.

Petree was engaged with three other men in cleaning the exterior of the building when the scaffolding's collapse threw him to the ground. He was taken to Emergency Hospital.

REPUBLICANS READY TO CONVENE TONIGHT

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With the stage set for the Republican county convention, which convenes tonight in the Lyon Park Community House, at 8 o'clock, B. M. Hedrick, according to instructed delegates from four of the eleven precincts, will go into the convention with 55 votes for the nomination for trial justice of the county court, over his opponent, M. G. Ely. With a total of 144 delegates to be seated, it will require 73 votes to win the nomination. While there is but one precinct with thirteen delegates pledged to Mr. Ely, it is understood that Ely's first vote will be close to that of Hedrick.

Indications are that there will be a spirited fight for this office. The opening speech in favor of Ely will be made by Stanley H. Williamson, delegate from Carne precinct. Who will sponsor the nomination of Hedrick could not be learned at a late hour last night.

Arthur Orr, a member of the regular delegation from Lyon Park, said last night, that if a contesting delegation from the precinct presents itself to the convention, he will be the first to request that their claims be heard by the committee on credentials. He professed no fear of the result of such a hearing.

"The evidence will show," he said, "that the meeting was regularly called to order by the precinct chairman at the time and place specified in the call, and that both the chairman and secretary of the meeting were Hedrick men." "The evidence will further show," he said, "that the chairman recognized the motion naming the delegates finally selected. The effort of Hedrick minority to lay the motion on the table was defeated by a vote of more than 2 to 1. Another move of the Hedrick minority to amend the motion by adding the names of a number of the Hedrick supporters was likewise defeated. The original motion was then adopted and the meeting adjourned."

Precinct Chairman Lawrence Michaels last night certified the regular delegation to the county chairman, but coupled his certificate with the request that, in the interest of harmony, the claims of the delegates selected by the Hedrick minority at a subsequent meeting be heard by the credential committee.

Louis A. MacMahon announced definitely last night that he will be a candidate for the House of Delegates subject to the county Republican convention. Mr. MacMahon two years ago opposed Hugh Reid, Democrat, who is again a candidate for re-election. The vote two years ago was, Reid, 2,260, with MacMahon close on his heels with a vote of 2,030.

Indications are that MacMahon will have opposition in the convention, as strong rumors were current last night that the name of J. Foster Hagan, one of the county's young attorneys, will be presented to the convention.

Rumors also have it that the name of C. L. Clever, of Lyon Village, will be a candidate for county commissioner of revenue in opposition to Harry K. Green, incumbent, who will be the Democratic candidate for re-election.

There are already seven candidates before the convention for the county board, and it is expected that more will be placed in nomination. They are Thomas D. Baillie, of Clarendon; Herbert H. Bowbeer, of Ballston; Col. J. G. Pepper, of Barcroft; Fred A. Gosnell, of Livingstone Heights; W. R. Rose, of Arlington Ridge, and W. W. Wright, of Barcroft.

Ballston Klan, No. 6, Klu Klux Klan, more than 250 strong, fully robed, paraded through Arlington County last night. The klansmen left their field at the intersection of Clements avenue and Wilson boulevard about 7 o'clock, paraded through the county en route to Annandale, Fairfax County, where they initiated a class of more than 40 persons. Following the initiation there was speaking, with J. L. Baskin, grand dragon of Virginia, as the principal speaker.

Mrs. Lillian V. Cunningham, president of the Rebekah Assembly of Virginia, has granted a dispensation to Clarendon Rebekah Lodge, No. 28, to hold a public installation of officers at the meeting to be held Monday night in the Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon.

The ceremonies of installation will be conducted by the district deputy president, Mrs. Olive Johnson, who will be assisted by a staff of officers composed of the past noble grands of the lodge. Mrs. Frances Shreve will be installed as noble grand.

County Game Warden W. Harry Johnson announces that all dogs must display the required tag in accordance with the State law. All persons owning dogs, who continue to disregard this law, will be cited into court and a fine imposed, the game warden stated.

The trustees of the Clarendon Volunteer Fire Department will hold its monthly meeting tonight in the firemen's hall at 8 o'clock.

The annual carnival of the Arlington Volunteer Fire Department will open Monday night and continue throughout the entire week. Many new features have been planned by the committee it is announced.

A. C. Scheffel is general chairman in charge of the arrangements. He will be assisted by Mrs. George F. Cook, president of the ladies' auxiliary, as chairman of the ladies' stands.

ACCIDENTS STALK NATIONAL AIR TOUR

One Plane Is Wrecked, Two Forced Down and Another Unreported.

Knoxville, Tenn., July 9 (A.P.).—A series of mishaps today prevented four of the 14 planes in the national air tour from arriving here from Huntington, W. Va. One plane was wrecked and two, forced down, were not expected to be able to continue. The fourth was unreported. Officials of the tour expressed the opinion difficulty in locating Middlesboro, Ky., in the Cumberland Mountains, one of the points on the official itinerary, was the cause of the mishaps.

Harvey Mummert was forced out when he crashed near Middlesboro.

Walter Henderson was officially unreported, but was believed to have returned to Huntington.

Eddie Schneider, 19-year-old holder of the junior transcontinental record, and Joe Meehan were forced down by motor trouble north of Middlesboro. Tour officials said Meehan's plane was in a field too small to allow a takeoff. They said Schneider also probably was out of the running.

James H. Smart led the fliers into McGehee Tyson Field here. He was followed by three others who did not stop at Middlesboro, Jack Story, Capt. William Lancaster and James H. Hart.

Of those who landed at Middlesboro, Harry Russell was first here. He was followed by Lowell Bayles, Eddie Stinson, Lee Gehlbach, Bill Gould and George Dixon.

Carl Colby, timer, said he believed Russell was leading with Smart second. The official records had not arrived from Middlesboro. The fleet will fly tomorrow to Sky Harbor near Murfreesboro, Tenn.

Holston River Power Dam Hearing Delayed

Richmond, Va., July 9 (A.P.).—Hearing on application of the Holston River Power Co. for license to overflow lands along about 8 miles of the south fork of Holston River in Washington County, Va., by construction of a dam in Sullivan County, Tenn., a short distance below the mouth of Riddle Creek, was continued until August 4, when it came up before the State corporation commission here today.

Date set for the hearing was selected as a compromise after A. Justin Moore, of Richmond, representing the Edmondson Electric Co., of Abingdon, objector to the application, had asked for a 60-day postponement.

Thrilling Chase Climaxes Arrest of Youthful Trio

His detective work featured by a thrilling automobile chase on Virginia roads, Policeman C. A. Berry yesterday rounded up three youths sought in connection with a housebreaking Monday on Bladensburg road near Bryant street.

His prisoners, charged with investigation, are Harold Lee Stuart, 18, of Twelfth street near B northeast; William Anthony Reed, 19, of I street near Florida avenue northeast, and Joseph Haas, 18, of I street near Twelfth northeast.

Berry arrested Stuart downtown yesterday and through a postcard, learned that the other two were at Colonial Beach. Taking the youth with him, the policeman started to drive to the resort.

On the way down they met a roadster driven by young Reed. Berry gave chase and after 15 miles at a 60-mile-an-hour clip most of the way, overtook the machine. Reed joined Stuart in the policeman's car and they proceeded to Colonial Beach, where the third youth was taken into custody.

Committee Tackles Potomac Problem

Virginias and Maryland Fail to Reach Expected Compromise.

(Associated Press.)

Unable to reach an intended compromise, representatives of Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia yesterday agreed to appoint a tri-State committee to recommend means of reconciling their differences over laws regulating fishing in the Potomac River and its tributaries.

A compromise offer by a special committee representing the two Virginias was rejected by Swepson Earl, Maryland conservation commissioner, on the ground that it made no concession to his State. The committee suggested that Maryland permit residents of Virginia and West Virginia to fish in the lower Potomac, the latter two States in turn agreeing to let Maryland handle all nonresident licenses for tributaries to the Potomac.

Earl suggested the tri-State committee be instructed to work out a compromise for presentation to the next legislative assemblies of Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland. M. D'Arcy Magee, president of the regional council of the Izaak Walton League, who was presiding, selected for this committee Commissioner Earl as chairman; A. Willis Robertson, chairman of the Virginia commission of game and inland fisheries; Vernon E. Johnson, member of the West Virginia game, fish and forestry commission; Dr. Lewis Radcliff, of the United States Bureau of Fisheries, and representatives of the attorney general's office in each State.

C. M. T. C. Group Visits Historic Mount Vernon

Mount Vernon was visited yesterday by 500 members of the Citizens Military Training Camp at Fort Washington, Md. The men boarded the General Rucker, an Army vessel, at the post wharf.

Later, they transferred to a naval barge and were taken to the shrine, where they spent the afternoon viewing the historical collection in Washington's home. They returned to the post early last night.

Man Held for Alleged Threats.

Silas Jefferson, 47, colored, was arrested and sent to Gallinger Hospital for mental observation yesterday after allegedly threatening to shoot several persons in Garfield Park. Police said he had no gun, but was carrying a mattock. The prisoner gave an address on Twenty-second street near N northwest.

Contest of Will Nears Hearing

Many Lawyers Engaged in Dr. Joseph Triplett Estate Fight.

Winchester, Va., July 9.—Upward of a dozen lawyers are expected to be in Shenandoah County Circuit Court at Woodstock, later in the July term, when the validity of the will of the late Dr. Joseph I. Triplett, wealthy Mount Jackson banker, miller and capitalist, will be decided by a jury.

Various interests have retained a staff of attorneys to represent them. Dr. Triplett left the bulk of his estate to establish a business school at Mount Jackson and many nephews and nieces did not share in the provisions of the will. Dr. Triplett was unmarried.

Among the numerous objections filed by contestants is one that the estate is not of sufficient size or value to provide a school such as Dr. Triplett contemplated. They also claim it is not the true will and testament of the decedent.

REMEDIES ARE CITED IN ECONOMIC CRISIS

Business and Professional Women's Clubs' Meeting Hears Discussions.

Richmond, Va., July 9 (A.P.).—Three possible remedies for the present economic crisis were presented by Dr. Susan B. Kingsbury, of the Bryn Mawr Department of Social Economy and Social Research, before the National Federation of Business and Professional Womens Clubs convention mass meeting tonight.

The remedial measures she named were to "muddle along" until one group is led to resist the depression at the expense of other groups, "bringing thereby the overturn of society and possibly even revolution," developing a well-planned economic program, which she said so far had failed, and third, opening up the markets of Asia and Eastern Europe by raising their standards of living.

The mass meeting tonight followed the nomination, without opposition, of Mrs. Geline MacDonald Bowman, Richmond business woman, as national president, by the convention nominating committee with the election to take place tomorrow. She will succeed Miss Marion H. McClench, of Ann Arbor, Mich., and Mrs. Helen M. Schluraff, of Erie, Pa., now corresponding secretary, and Dr. Florence May Morse, of Los Angeles, Calif., were nominated to succeed her as first vice president.

Other Group Nominees.

Other nominees were: Miss Eva Hunt Dockery, of Boise, Idaho, and Mrs. B. K. Robinson, of Hammond, Ind., for second vice president; Miss Earlene White, of Jacksonville, Miss., for recording secretary; Miss Margaret K. Stewart, of Phoenix, Ariz., for corresponding secretary and Miss Margaret Stewart, of Ogden, Utah, for treasurer.

In his address before the delegates gathered at the Convention International banquet, Walter J. Millard, field secretary of the National Municipal League, said it was Charlotte Perkins Gilman who brought home to him the fact that while a three-legged stool is the most stable resting place one can have—it simply could not wobble as does a four legged stool—nevertheless in moral life which also has three legs or phases, "is the most difficult thing to keep from wobbling."

He said: "The three phases are, that which considers oneself, that which considers the family or special group with which one is connected, and that which considers the entire body of society."

He said he found the federation doing the first by removing social, legal, and economic disabilities from which women suffer whose activities are self directed in whole or in part. In the second phase, he found the federation answering requirements, also, through their training provisions for girls of promise, and vocational guidance.

Third Phase Most Troublesome.

With regard to the third phase, he said: "It is the third phase of morality, that to society, which causes both the individual and the organization the greatest trouble. This is greatly because society itself is not very moral toward individuals or organizations. I had better say, has not been, for we must admit that times are changing.

"With the outlawry of war concept of the Kellogg-Briand treaties we began an epoch which demands that hitherto unbridled sovereign states shall behave according to a code of ethics. By the establishment and work of your international relations committee you have at one bound shown your deep interest in society and social morality.

"Your sympathy is as world-wide as is the economic process in which women participate and as non or supernational as are the principles and ideas of the professions represented among you."

SPARGO DENOUNCES SOCIALISTIC THEORY

Praises Hoover's Championship of United States' Individualism.

University, Va., July 9 (A.P.).—John Spargo, lecturer and writer, told the Institute of Public Affairs tonight that the supreme intellectual challenge of our time was its polar centers at Moscow and Washington and is personified by Stalin on the one hand and by Hoover upon the other.

"By his bold championship of American individualism, and his uncompromising opposition to socialist tendencies, President Hoover has earned the esteem and gratitude of his countrymen without regard to party or creed," Mr. Spargo said.

He asserted that "the greatest menace to this country today does not come from Moscow with its red legions threatening world revolution. It comes from no external foe, but from within our own borders. Vastly more to be feared are the well-meaning but misguided enthusiasts in our own midst, who, forgetting or ignoring the great lessons of history, would have us depart from the socialized individualism which has made us what we are, masters of a life that is increasingly generous and fair, to embrace discredited socialist principles from which can come nothing except poorer living and servitude."

Launching into an attack upon the principle of Government ownership of industries or any activities which would bring the Government into competition with private enterprise, Spargo said that any fair method of accounting would show "the vast superiority of private enterprise, the almost unvarying wastefulness and extravagance of Government industry and business." The speaker added that even if Government operations were more economical the social effect of its competition with private citizens would be "evil and deplorable."

"Dictatorship, absolutism, might achieve industrial efficiency and the elimination of politics, but representative government never can. Heaven help this Nation if any one of our major industries is ever made subject to direction by the Congress of the United States," he added.

Experiments in marketing wheat and cotton were mentioned as examples of "ill-advised intervention of the Government."

An informal reception followed the marriage at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Simmons, here. Later Dr. and Mrs. Koelz left for the Potomac Valley Dental Association camp, near Franklin, W. Va., where they will pass their honeymoon.

HIGHWAY TO PANAMA PICTURED IN FUTURE

Central American Envoys and U. S. Officials at Road Meeting.

Highways to connect the United States with the Central American republics and Panama were envisioned yesterday by Senor Tomas Guardia, president of the Inter-American Highway Commission, before a group of Latin-American diplomats and United States Government officials at a luncheon at the Metropolitan Club.

Senor Guardia, who is also chief engineer of the Central Highway Board of Panama, said that two-thirds of the distance between Laredo, Tex., and Panama City is now traversed by roadway already built, under construction or easily passable in dry weather.

Of the 3,229 miles between the two points, Senor Guardia said, only 1,248 miles remains to be built. He declared there are no "insurable obstacles" in the path of the ultimate goal of extending roads to the various Central American countries.

"I can not at the present moment visualize the inter-American highway as one job, planned, financed and constructed as one unit," he said. "I see, however, immediate possibilities of so developing the road systems of different countries between the Rio Grande and the Panama Canal that it may be a simple matter in the near future to join these roads together."

The luncheon was given in his honor by the executive committee of the Pan-American Confederation for Highway Education. Dr. L. S. Rowe, chairman of the committee and director general of the Pan-American Union, presided.

Present were the Minister of Nicaragua, Senor Dr. Juan B. Sacasa; Minister of Panama, Senor Dr. Harmodio Arias; Minister of El Salvador, Senor Dr. Carlos Leiva; the Charge d'Affaires of Costa Rica Senor Don Guillermo E. Gonzales; the Assistant Secretary of State, Wilbur J. Carr; the Assistant Secretary of State, Francis White; Dr. Rowe.

Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the United States Bureau of Public Roads; Edwin Warley James, chief division of highway transport, United States Bureau of Public Roads; Pyke Johnson, executive secretary Pan-American Confederation for Highway Education; George C. Peck, commercial attache of the United States at Panama; Dr. William Manger, chief financial division Pan-American Union, and Stephen James, director extension Pan-American Confederation for Highway Education.

First Seadrome Planned in Spring

Plane Landing to Be Built in Atlantic Ocean, Off Coast of U. S.

Akron Ohio July 9 (A.P.).—The first of eight seadromes proposed man-made islands to dot the Atlantic at intervals of 380 miles between the United States and England will be constructed off the east coast of this country next spring Capt. Hugh Dunean Grant meteorological consultant to the promoters of the project announced today.

Capt. Grant, visiting here to inspect the local Zeppelin dock and Navy airship Akron and to confer with Ward T. Van Orman, balloonist and meteorologist, predicted that within a year from the placing of the first seadrome the other seven ocean landing fields will be completed and a transatlantic air line in operation.

The seadromes, Capt. Grant explained, will have a six-acre deck, which will be 70 feet above the water surface, or 30 feet higher than storm waves. The seadromes will be buoyed by air tanks extending 40 feet below the surface. Ballistic tanks, filled with pig iron and giving the seadromes their stability, will extend 177 feet downward.

NEW CHIEF

CAPT. A. S. HAIGHT.

CAPT. HAIGHT FILLS VIRNSTEIN VACANCY

Promotion Follows Death of Battalion Chief in Church Fire.

Upon recommendation of Fire Chief George S. Watson, the District Commissioners yesterday promoted Capt. A. S. Haight to the rank of battalion chief engineer to fill the vacancy caused by the accidental death of Chief John H. Virnstein last Sunday in the Anacostia Church fire.

Haight, who will command the Third Battalion, with headquarters at No. 8 Engine House, North Carolina avenue, between Sixth and Seventh streets southeast, was formerly acting chief of the Seventh Battalion. To fill this latter post, Capt. Patrick J. Sullivan, who commands No. 3 Truck Company, was made acting battalion chief engineer.

The new battalion chief has had more than 30 years' service, having been appointed July 1, 1901, and has several times been decorated for exceptional conduct. He was promoted to a lieutenant in 1911 and to a captain in 1918. He has been in charge of the Seventh Battalion since June 24 last, when it was organized.

Haight was decorated for his work at the collapse of the Knickerbocker Theater, in 1922, and was commended for his service at the Kann warehouse fire in 1925. He was commended for assistance to the Colonial Beach Fire Department in 1914, for service at the Loffler factory fire the following year, and for his work on war registration day in 1917.

Last year he was given honorable mention for the rescue of a child at a fire at 1635 Vermont avenue northwest.

Sullivan has been in the department for 34 years and also has a good record of service.

Autogiro Saves Time for Senator

Bingham Makes Quick Trip by Air From Capitol to Golf Links.

Senator Hiram Bingham ordered a taxi yesterday and was ready to tee off at his golf club 5 minutes after leaving the Capitol Plaza.

The "taxi" was an autogiro, which was landed on the plaza by Pilot James G. Ray, a vice president and chief pilot of the Autogiro Co. of America, who was demonstrating the practicability of the airplane for the business man and golfer.

Senator Bingham predicted that in the near future business men will be using the autogiros to take them out to golf clubs after business hours. The senator is president of the National Aeronautic Association, and, although the trip took only a few minutes to the Burning Tree Golf Club, he did not save much time yesterday, for he spent half an hour posing for a battery of cameras and moving picture machines.

The actual time made on the flight was 11 minutes. It is a 45-minute run in an automobile.

Senate to Ignore Quiz by Alabama

Heflin Asks Senate Committee to Protest Action by State Group.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate elections committee considering the Heflin-Bankhead senatorial election contest in Alabama yesterday declined to take notice of or to interfere with the State's investigation of the election recently ordered by the Alabama Legislature.

J. Thomas Heflin, defeated candidate, appealed to the commission at a special session yesterday to protest the separate State investigation. He asserted it would "institute a reign of terror among my witnesses."

John H. Bankhead, the senator-elect, was asked by the Senate committee why he sought the separate State inquiry.

"I have no purpose on earth," said Bankhead, "to interfere with this committee, but rather I hope to aid it. I want an examination of the election officers all over the State and I had no thought that this committee could do that."

Snake Head on Shoulder Drives Owner From Car

Midville, Ga., July 9 (A.P.).—Peter McNeeley, driving along a highway near here, chanced to turn his head and stared right into the gaping mouth of a big snake resting its head upon his shoulder.

Mr. McNeeley stopped his car without ceremony—narrowly missing a plunge into the Ogeechee River—and left the vehicle in possession of the snake.

Later, passersby helped him kill the reptile, which measured 6 feet. McNeeley recalled some hay was thrown into the rear part of his car before he started on his journey and he believes the snake was hidden in the hay.

Action to Acquire Park Land Started

Condemnation Proceedings on Unacquired Property Is Sought.

A request that unacquired property in the Anacostia Park development be taken over by condemnation has been forwarded to the Department of Justice for the necessary court action, it was learned yesterday through the United States Engineer Office.

The entire acreage sought is 70 acres, owned by nine persons. Negotiations were said to be pending with two of the property owners, possessing approximately 60 acres. Their properties are tentatively included in the condemnation list, it was said.

No conclusion has been reached as to the immediate inclusion of the famous lily ponds at Kenilworth, which ultimately will be taken into the park. It was said that acquisition of this land will be considered apart from the property against which condemnation proceedings are sought.

THE CHILD CRIMINAL.

Reports of floggings and stringent discipline for minors in Federal prisons are incidental in the study of juvenile delinquencies which has been made public by the National Commission on Law Enforcement. Children are subjected to harsh treatment in Federal institutions principally because they have no facilities for dealing with minors. Abuses are inevitable so long as child offenders are put through the routine of criminals.

The commission strikes at the root of the problem by recommending that juvenile delinquents be turned over to State agencies, except in cases in which the local processes for dealing with them are plainly inadequate. All of the States, except Maine and Wyoming, have juvenile courts where children are given special treatment. The Government has no such courts and the Federal penal code makes no definition of juvenile delinquency. Creation of Federal juvenile courts was considered by the commission, but there is no reason why the machinery set up by the States should be duplicated. Children's cases can best be handled by local authorities who are in a position to know their environment.

The tendency to consider this study one of the least important among the investigations made by the Law Enforcement Commission is not well founded. Juvenile delinquency is one of the acute problems in the administration of justice. It is well known that criminal careers usually begin in childhood. Truancy, incorrigibility and minor offense, if not properly dealt with, lead directly to major crime. If there is ever a time when rehabilitation of warped minds and abnormal physique is possible, it is during the plastic years of childhood.

Under the present system the Government contributes to the delinquency of minors committed to its care. Having no special facilities for dealing with children, Federal authorities frequently find it necessary to confine them with hardened criminals. Once a wayward lad enters a prison his chances of being returned to useful citizenship are substantially diminished. A system which is so prodigal with youth ought not to be tolerated in a civilized country.

The States do not regard children who commit offenses as criminals. Society asks no retribution from the child who errs because of the neglect of his parents. Such unfortunates are considered as wards of the State. Efforts are made to maintain normal contacts, to give the child opportunity to lead a useful life. Sometimes these efforts fail, but they are the nearest approach to a solution of delinquency that has yet been made.

There can be no quibbling about this report. Every one will agree that the Government must stop treating children as criminals. Let the States be given exclusive jurisdiction over juvenile delinquencies as soon as the necessary legislation can be adopted.

THE ST. LAWRENCE CANAL.

The reopening of negotiations on the St. Lawrence waterway is timely. President Hoover is known to be enthusiastically in favor of the project, and Premier Bennett, of Canada, is likewise committed to it. It is understood that William D. Herridge, Canada's new Minister to the United States, has been definitely instructed to proceed with negotiations on the subject.

Construction of this project during the depression would be a distinct contribution to the revival of business. It would give employment to thousands, and when completed the canal would furnish an outlet to the sea for America's great agricultural districts. A new waterway that would enable farmers to sell their products on the world market with slightly lower costs for shipping would be a great asset just now to both the United States and Canada.

Prospects for early construction of this international project do not, however, appear to be very bright. It is estimated that the canal will cost in the neighborhood of $750,000,000. Neither the American nor the Canadian government is in a position to make great outlays. Congress has already authorized the expenditure of many millions for construction work to aid the unemployed, and in view of the threatened increase in taxes every new project will be scrutinized. Canada, too, must maintain a tight hold on its purse strings.

Nevertheless, this is a good time to get the preliminaries out of the way. Under any circumstances the negotiations will require a considerable length of time. The two governments must decide how many dams shall be constructed, how the cost shall be apportioned between them and many other details. Inasmuch as both President Hoover and Premier Bennett are anxious to go ahead with the project it is a propitious time to iron out these problems. If the negotiations are not completed now, such favorable circumstances may not recur for many years. There is much to be gained if both governments strike while the iron is hot.

LOCATING STEEL DEFECTS.

Defective stern-post castings that have been discovered in five of the Navy's new cruisers will entail an expenditure of $20,000 for repairs on each ship. Aside from the financial loss even greater concern is felt, that with all the precautions now taken in the selection of materials, such imperfections should find their way into vessels for the national defense. An investigation, which is proceeding under Rear Admiral Rock, will endeavor to determine whether the fault lies with the design or in the casting.

Through X-ray photography it is now possible to detect flaws, even though they be the minutest air bubbles, in a solid metal casting. The X-rays employed vary in wave length from about one hundred-millionth to about one ten-billionth of an inch. These are not, strictly speaking, just vibrations, but are actually particles. These tiny bits of energy, because of their size, are able to work their way like little bullets between the atoms of such dense materials as stone and metals. As they travel through to the photographic film some of the rays do not find a clear path and are stopped by embedding themselves in the electrons of atoms. If, however, there is a flaw of any kind in the material more of the rays are able to get through at this point and a darker imprint will be made on the picture, thus indicating the spot where the imperfection occurred.

Without the valuable aid of X-ray it would be impossible to build safely many of the great machines in use today. There is at present under construction a dynamo which will generate power enough to supply a city of 1,000,000 population. The cost of shutting down such a machine for repairs would be prohibitive, therefore every part must be accident-proof in so far as that is possible. As the steel castings required for such a dynamo were of necessity very thick the X-ray could not photograph them successfully. Yet internal examination was necessary. Radium was substituted for the X-ray. Radium rays are one-tenth to one-twentieth shorter than X-rays. Where the X-ray is able to penetrate satisfactorily but four inches, the gama radium rays make clear pictures through ten inches of steel.

It is in the United States Naval Research Laboratories that some of the pioneer work in the field of radium photography has been done. The Navy will, therefore, have at its command the most modern facilities for detecting defects in its cruisers.

RAILS VS. MOTORS.

The United States has two-and-a-half times as many motor vehicles as all of the rest of the world combined. The number of passenger automobiles, trucks and buses has reached the staggering total of 26,697,398, by count of the Department of Commerce. They must be largely accountable for the hole in railroad earnings that brings the transportation lines to Washington asking for increased freight rates.

The railroads say they need $400,000,000 more a year to keep their roads in repair and protect basic securities with even minimum returns. They think a 15 per cent increase in freight rates will give them the needed increase in revenue. On this point authorities differ. Some maintain that if trucks have taken enough freight from the railroads to cause their present plight, higher rail rates will simply turn more business to motor vehicles.

But if railroad freight has suffered from the competition of 4,000,000 trucks to such an extent, what must more than 22,000,000 private cars and buses have done to the passenger business? Long-distance passenger travel over the highways of the Nation certainly is much more general than long-distance freighting by trucks. In fact, one of the arguments of the railroads to show their importance to the Nation and the necessity of protecting their financial structures is the claim that they must still be depended upon to handle 90 per cent of the Nation's important freight. The railroads have not asked for an increase in passenger rates, because this traffic may be even more readily diverted to motors than freight.

It can not be gainsaid that the great rail systems of this country are still a vital element in the national welfare. Much of the industrial and commercial life would be at a standstill if this efficient transportation network should be crippled. That modern development of motor transport, coupled with the greatly reduced volume of business during the depression, has reduced railroad earnings to a critically low figure can not be denied by any one who studies current statistics. The railroads are entitled to relief from some source.

Every phase of this situation will be considered at the hearings to be held this month before the Interstate Commerce Commission on the railroads' application for higher rates. It is a complicated and delicate question to decide. The roads will argue for it as an absolute necessity. The grain farmers of the Middle West will deluge the commission with petitions in opposition, claiming that added freight burdens, with present low prices, will hasten their ruin. There is every indication that these hearings will be a severe test of the impartiality, sagacity and authority of the commission.

UTILIZING THE PARKS.

Washington's many parks are filled these warm evenings. The benches are occupied and many persons recline on the ground. Though Americans enjoy and use them throughout the United States, the parks in this country have never assumed the social importance they enjoy in Latin America. They lack the color and animation found in the Southern republics.

It is difficult to imagine a young lady in Washington getting excited at the prospect of being taken by her mother to walk in the park, yet this is often the most thrilling activity in the life of a girl in Latin America. About twice a week there are band concerts in the most fashionable parks. On those evening ladies accompanied by members of their families promenade along beautiful [illegible] walks. On the outside of the same walks and in the opposite direction stroll the young men.

Benches by the side of the walk are often rented, so that the older generations may watch the parade and enjoy the music. The young people prefer walking, for in this way they pass the objects of their interest twice every round. Occasionally, after several meetings, a young man may be seen to desert his companions and walk in the other direction with the girl of his selection. This must be done advisedly, however, as any advance on the part of a gentleman is taken seriously.

Differing customs allow young people in America greater freedom together. To them the shy glances and reserved manners of Latin young people seem unduly restrained and old fashioned. Yet the boisterous familiarity of American youth is considered unsuited to Spanish countries, so their old ways endure. In this respect it may be wise for each nationality to cling to its own customs. The parks will never mean here what they do in South America. The addition of band concerts, however, to our parks would afford pleasure to the thousands who now make use of them on summer nights.

SYDNEY YOST SMITH.

At the expiration of 50 years of service in the Department of State, on July 1, Sydney Yost Smith received the warm congratulations and thanks of Acting Secretary Castle. Mr. Smith is a native of Washington. He began his labors in the State Department under Secretary Blaine on July 1, 1881, and throughout half a century has been the confidant of succeeding heads of the department. He was chief of the diplomatic bureau for 21 years, and of late years has been head administrative officer and drafting officer of the treaty division, a place in which his unrivaled knowledge, discretion and accuracy are invaluable to the country.

Men must come and go, and Sydney Smith will some day leave the Department of State, although for 50 years there has been no indication that he would not remain forever. While he is here it is a pleasure to say that he is loved by his associates, and trusted by Presidents and Secretaries of State. His service to the Government is comparatively unknown to the public, but it has been as important and as loyal as if he had been a soldier fighting half a century in defense of the American flag. He is in his usual health. Long may his strength remain unimpaired! The Post voices the feelings of all Washington in extending congratulations and best wishes to Mr. Smith.

GERMANY'S PROBATION PERIOD

From the Journal of Commerce.

The Bruening government is faced by an exceptionally hard task. It has to make the German people realize that a moratorium on reparations does not relieve them from the necessity of continuing to make heavy sacrifices in order to maintain budgetary stability. Most important of all, it is necessary to convince other nations that concessions will not be regarded as a signal for a relaxation of effort. This is a difficult and ungrateful duty, to which the present government is addressing itself courageously. An official manifesto issued upon the conclusion of the Franco-American debt accord warns the German people that the reparations holiday will in no wise relieve the country from its economic and financial distress. "Germany," it is said, "can not utilize the means rendered available to diminish sacrifices which the government has been forced to exact from the people, although some hardships may be alleviated." Increases in expenditures or relaxation in efforts to economize are asserted to be impossible under present conditions.

It may well be asked what, then, under the circumstances will the moratorium do to allay the political unrest and to placate the growing spirit of rebellion which the recently announced budgetary decrees aroused. Undoubtedly the answer is to be found in the fact that the German people had come to feel that further sacrifices were futile. They have been called upon time and time again to increase their tax contributions and have been forced repeatedly to effect painful economies. Notwithstanding their efforts, the financial situation has grown steadily more precarious and the expectation of any alteration in the attitude of their political creditors has been gradually disappearing. The chief effect of the debt suspension plan, therefore, is that it revives hope that the future will bring a measure of positive and permanent relief to German taxpayers, provided they rouse themselves to a great and sustained effort to prove that their financial troubles are not due to a lack of will to surmount them.

To obtain the continued support of foreign capital, it is obvious that the Germans themselves must manifest a confidence in the future of their country. The decree that President Hindenburg has just issued to provide guarantees for foreign emergency credits up to 500,000,000 reichsmarks for that reason produces a most favorable impression, especially as it follows voluntary offers of leading German firms to give such guarantees. In view of the previous flight of German capital and other evidences of internal panic, some such manifestation has been much needed to dissipate the fears concerning Germany's ultimate solvency that have been aroused abroad by the events of recent weeks.

With long term loans not obtainable and short term foreign credits being rapidly recalled, the financial future has looked exceedingly hopeless. The temptation will unquestionably be great to relax from the effort to make both ends meet and to hope for a renewed inflow of foreign funds to fill, at least in part, the wide gap between income and outgo in governmental budgets that otherwise would have to be bridged by taxes or special economies. The pressure upon German public officials, whether employes of the Reich or of the small municipalities, to induce them to modify the rigors of their demands will be hard to resist. Unless a firm stand is taken against importunities of this sort, the value of the relief obtained under the Hoover plan, directly through suspension of annual payments and indirectly through a renewal of hope for the

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE FOOLISH FISHERMAN.

There was a foolish fisherman who sat beneath a tree
Upon the river bank and kept his rod across his knee.
His face was long and solemn and great furrows lined his brow
And this he sadly said to me: "The fish aren't biting now!"

"Why don't you bait your hook?" said
I. "The stream is flowing by.
You might perchance catch something here if only you would try.
You have the rod, the line, the hook—just turn your tackle loose
And fish the stream for all you're worth." He muttered: "What's the use?"

"My neighbors tried a month ago,
they all came back at night
And said they'd fished the stream for miles and couldn't get a bite.
I hear it everywhere I go; round here
all folks agree
The fishing isn't near as good as what it used to be."

"There must be fish in here," I said.
"Yes, maybe one or two,
But I'm not going to work all day and only get a few.
I'm going to sit beneath this tree and wait until I know
The fish are biting here the way they

If a Savage With a Gold Mine Feels Poor, It's Because He Is Stupid.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IN maturity as in childhood, the chief cause of unhappiness is self-pity.

And self-pity, as a rule, is a product of ignorance.

People pity themselves because they haven't had experience enough to realize how fortunate they are.

A proud and sensitive young man who recently completed a term in the Army now awakes each morning with a light and joyous heart. He is living on borrowed money while waiting for a job, and many people think him unfortunate; but he is happy in the knowledge that he is a free man, equal to the best, and need not leap to his feet when a "superior" enters the room.

Another man once worked in a bank and now lives on a rented farm and uses an assumed name to hide his past. Few tenant farmers have reason to rejoice, yet this one greets each new day with a singing heart because there are no bars across his window.

Most people are unable to appreciate the blessing of freedom because they never have been without it.

There are people in every community, rich and poor, who would be supremely happy if they could regain their health; yet all about them are people free of ailments who whine or grumble because they haven't wit enough to realize how lucky they are.

In every community there are married men and married women whose hungry hearts ache for the love and comradeship of an understanding mate, yet others who are happily mated and live in an atmosphere of sympathetic fellowship still find reason to pity themselves because they lack wealth or social standing.

And finally—most incredible of paradoxes!—the land is full of discontented youngsters. It seems impossible that any mortal blessed with youth, health, freedom, friends and a whole wide world of opportunity should be so ungrateful as to make complaint; but boys and girls of that kind seem more numerous than happy ones.

It isn't their fault. Idleness, lack of responsibility and too many play pretties have spoiled them. They can't appreciate what they have because they have had no experience of want or suffering.

It is ignorance that prompts whining. Plain bread and meat seem a feast to the man who knows what hopeless gnawing hunger is.

New York Times.

Whatever the tariff has done or not done, Democratic votes made its passage possible. Some Democrats who voted against it finally had voted for some of its worst exactions. New exactions—for example, a duty on oil, and higher rates on boots and shoes—will be offered or upheld by some Democratic Congressmen in December. Senator Robinson's position is consistent. That of some of his colleagues who worked for the protection or higher protection of certain industrial ewe lambs of their States is equivocal.

The Democrats are entitled to treat themselves to any delicacies of campaigning they may select; but they were eager to show themselves good protectionists in 1928, and in the last Congress too many of them showed themselves such. Their baiting of the tariff looks very much like a false pretense. But national committees feel it their duty to devote themselves to sound production and "issue" production.

No Censorship.
Baltimore Sun.

Henry L. Doherty does his own business and public utilities in general a bad turn when he demands a postal censorship to shut off newspaper discussion of the rates which Doherty companies are charging Kansas gas consumers. No other step Mr. Doherty could have taken would have been better calculated to prejudice the public against his case and to influence popular opinion adversely to the industry of which he is one of the principal spokesmen.

If the matter of gas rates is affected with a public interest to such a degree as to be subject to State regulation, it is certainly of sufficient public interest to be a proper subject of newspaper comment and discussion.

Telling the Public.
New York Herald Tribune.

It is not surprising to note in the Washington dispatches that the work of the Undersecretary of State, Mr. Castle, during the recent moratorium negotiations has aroused great admiration among members of the press. For there is in Washington no public official who excels Mr. Castle in his ability to grasp a mass of complicated public business and then lay it frankly, completely and clearly before the public.

All too often has there been cause for complaint, not at what a given department of the Government was doing, but at its unwillingness or inability to keep the public informed. When such ineptitude prevails, the public not unnaturally becomes bored and confused and the project itself becomes a ready victim for minority attack. Mr. Castle is to be saluted because, whenever the opportunity presents itself, he gives whole-hearted execution to Mr. Coolidge's sound maxim that "all public business ought to be publicly conducted."

Public School Bureaucracy.
Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Of course, the National Education Association, meeting at Los Angeles, could not adjourn without declaring again for a Federal Department of Education "with a place in the President's Cabinet." Its leaders have never given up hope of extending Federal bureaucratic control over the schools and creating a lot of new high-salaried jobs at Washington for the exploitation of their latest educational fads and fancies.

It is a continuing mystery why these educators, who ought to be the first to oppose further centralization of government, so persistently advocate invasion of the province of the States and local authorities. Their proposal could not be revived at a more inopportune time, when the problem of President Hoover and his advisers is how to conserve the Government's finances. But aside from its prospective cost, the proposal is as objectionable as when first presented. No one has ever advanced a logical argument in its favor. And so long as Congress retains a modicum of sanity it will never be adopted.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Educators and Economists Are Advised to Work Overtime to Find Out Causes of Depression.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In one of your editorials you have properly defined "depression" as maladjustment. Don't you think you have thus uncovered the root of the present evil in the economic world? I wonder if that New Yorker who would have burned all the colleges if he had his way, had observed the impotency of the so-called departments of economics in colleges and universities, and was a real prophet like Mohammed, indignant and disgusted with the order of things, only devoid of any power to imitate the Arabian's successful achievements. Of course, things are supposed to adjust themselves eventually, without the aid of so many and varied institutional agencies. But if adjustment is possible some day, why not put a few specialists to work overtime to make up for the neglect, deficiency or impotency of these expensive institutions? I have a suspicion that, in stressing so much the value of education, and regretting the number of illiterates, people seem to forget that very often those who commit suicide are well educated and may be numbered among the skilled in their trades and professions.

Thus, the educated and the skilled should be all the more interested in trying to place the responsibility for their misery, present or future, and instead of pinning their faith on the possible appearance of some star on the horizon of human relationships to lead them out of darkness, should single out some stars from their own rank to lead them on. It's never too late to start. PHILIP CALPAKIAN.

Taxpayer Assails Argument That Saloons Would Relieve People of Tax Burdens.

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: We begin to hear again the specious argument of the liquor interests that the liquor dealers would help a great deal to pay our heavy taxes and thus lessen that burden. Let me illustrate this by an example of which I have personal knowledge. In a small town in Missouri during liquor days the sole saloonkeeper paid $1,500 for an exclusive license. This lessened taxes, of course, by $1,500. I estimated that the saloonkeeper netted about $6,000 clear above the license tax and overhead expenses each year. His overhead was about $2,500. Altogether, then, the people in this town paid $10,000 in order to get back $1,500, and thus lost $8,500 by this specious slogan.

Now, who paid the $10,000 that the saloonkeeper took in during the year? It was workingmen, the poor and needy in the town, the men who had children at home improperly clothed and underfed. A girl came to my school from a home where the father was a drunkard and spent his nights in the saloon paying his part of the $10,000, while his children starved. There is the tax argument in a nutshell. What an argument for any intelligent person to listen to. Ruin the homes and lives of the poor so they will be forced to pay the taxes and enrich liquor dealers.

A TAXPAYER.

Contributor Recalls State of Mind That Led to Inflation and Then to Depression.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A contributor to your columns in the paper of July 1 says: "The only reason for hard times is the fact that people have hard times on their mind." It is easy to imagine that this statement seems absurd to a person whose rent and grocery bills are due and he is without money, and, worse still, without a job. Will you tell him his trouble is just a state of mind and to get his fishing tackle and go to the river and forget his worries? Dare you to insult him?

And yet the quotation, taken in its setting, is in a large measure true. It is also true that a half truth is often worse than a whole falsehood.

The truth is there was another state of mind previous to the present one. That was, "We are prospering and are going to prospur still more rapidly." Then we went wild and invested freely in all sorts of wild schemes along with the good ones, and we "got there."

Many a concern took the suggestion that the remedy is to spend more freely. They spent all they had and then borrowed to the limit of their credit and spent it all. Now they are walking the streets, if able, looking for jobs.

Really it is distressing to stand on the sidelines, listen to the jangling voices and recognize so much of it as exceedingly superficial.

Article on Boundaries of District Draws Comments From Interested Reader.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post for Sunday, June 28, there appeared an article on the boundaries of the District of Columbia.

There seems to be a popular misconception as to the significance of the so-called Jefferson stone, or its restoration. This stone is south of the White House and west of the Capitol Building, but not at the intersection of the lines drawn from the corners of the original District of Columbia.

The intersection of these lines is in the rear of the Pan-American Building, on Seventeenth street, and as far as I am aware, is not marked in any way.

The writer of the Sunday Post's article might be interested to know that the November, 1894, number of the National Geographic Magazine is devoted to the early surveys of this region, and he will also find an erased line on the restoration of the Jefferson stone. Some one was apparently laboring under the same idea, as the line appears to have read "central point of the" and then below it, in large capitals, "District of Columbia."

FLAG ENVOYS FETED ON VISIT TO FRANCE

Receptions at U. S. Embassy and City Hall Mark Day in Paris.

Paris, July 9.—America's young "Envoys of Friendship" on a good-will mission to France under auspices of the United States Flag Association are swamped under an avalanche of invitations. Their program is filled from early morning until late at night.

Today the young "envoys" were guests of honor at a reception at the American Embassy at which many notables of the diplomatic set, as well as French officials of prominence, were present. Later in the afternoon they were again guests of honor at a reception at the City Hall given by the president of the municipal council of Paris.

Quiet bearing of the young Americans, together with the purpose of their visit, which is to convey a message of good-will and friendship to the children of France from the youth of America, has won for them the most favorable commendation. With the French boys and girls assigned to act as mentors and guides for the visitors, they have been made the occasion of numerous impromptu receptions.

Purpose of Trip Explained.

At the reception at the City Hall Col. James A. Moss, president general of the Flag Association, explained the purpose of the mission of this group of boys and girls.

With full knowledge of the horors of war, Col. Moss said, he had come to see the futility of this means of settling disputes between nations. In the hope of building up a future permanent world peace, he said, officials of the association had conceived the idea of building up lasting friendships among the children of today, who will be the rulers of the world tomorrow, in the hope that the remembrance of these friendships would lead nations, in time of dispute, to the conference table rather than to the battlefield for settlement.

Miss DuBois Is Speaker.

Col. Moss said that there is prospect of having a group of British children return the visit of the American "envoys" next year, and expressed the hope that France would find a way to send a similar group to the United States.

Short talks were made by several of the "envoys," all interpreted except in the case of Miss Catherine DuBois, of Washington, whose French, without perceptible accent, delighted the members of the council.

The "envoys" were enjoying every minute of their trip and are spending a great deal of time in sightseeing. They will visit some of the famous battlefields this week.

U. S. Attache's Family Saved by Turkish Tug

Istanbul, July 9 (A.P.).—Julian Gillespie, American commercial attache, of Baltimore, Mrs. Gillespie and their child, and the Brazilian consul and his wife and child, were rescued by a Turkish tugboat from a sinking American Embassy motorboat off Seraglio Point Tuesday night.

The motorboat hit the hulk of a wrecked ship lying off the point and began to fill. A hazardous current in the Bosphorus, at the entrance of the Sea of Marmora, made the situation perilous. After a 20-minute wait, the tugboat heard their calls of distress and rescued all the occupants. A few seconds later the motorboat sank.

English Rulers Entertain At Ancient Scottish Palace

Edinburgh, Scotland, July 9 (A.P.). Thousands of persons, gathered on the slopes of Arthur's Seat, a nearby crag, watched the picturesque scene as King George and Queen Mary greeted their guests at a royal garden party on the historic lawns of Holyrood Palace this afternoon.

Some 500 guests at the party, representing almost every walk of life in Scotland, formed a lane through which their majesties and the Duke and Duchess of York passed. Every now and again the king and queen would turn aside to greet some one whose face was familiar.

The king and queen, who are having a joyful visit in Scotland, have found time for a number of informal excursions and the queen has done a considerable amount of shopping in Edinburgh. Their majesties, accompanied by the duke and duchess, yesterday visited the ancient Norman Church of Dalmeny, which has been restored by patient villagers working in their own time over a period of several years.

Old Holyrood Palace, which has many a sinister page of history associated with royalty, was the scene yesterday of a brilliant reception.

The king, in the uniform of a colonel in chief of the Scots Guards, sat on a throne of carved oak. Beside him was Queen Mary in a gown of peach-colored chiffon embroidered with tiny diamonds and wearing the blue ribbon of the Order of the Garter.

Names of historic families rang through the dark oak-paneled room as Lord Hampden announced the guests. The throneroom was a medley of color as men wearing the highland garb of their ancestors moved among others wearing the uniforms of the navy, army and air force. The Royal Company of Archers, who form the king's bodyguard in Scotland, attended in their uniforms of green and gold, each carrying a ceremonial bow.

Tomorrow the king and queen will board a steamer to open the great new docks at Shieldhall, Glasgow. Queen Mary will carry to the dockside a jug once the property of George III, dated 1764, filled with wine. Pouring the contents into the water, she will name the dock. The name will not be divulged until Queen Mary herself announces it.

FARM BOARD ASKED FOR COTTON POLICY

Traders' Petition May Bring Definite Statement by End of Month.

(Associated Press.)

Cotton traders have followed the course of wheat growers and dealers in petitioning for a definite Farm Board statement of policy on handling stabilization supplies during the new crop year.

Carl Williams, cotton member of the board, said yesterday the requests of the Savannah, Memphis and Little Rock cotton exchanges have been taken under advisement and a new policy may be forthcoming before July 31.

Meanwhile, Senator Capper (Republican), Kansas, renewed his demand that stabilization wheat be withheld absolutely from competition with the crop now being harvested. He asked for a "clear cut" statement, adding he would "keep hammering" to gain his point.

After President Hoover had asked a reconsideration of policy, it said on July 1 it would limit wheat sales during this fiscal year to 60,000,000 bushels, exclusive of sales to foreign governments now under consideration.

A year ago it promised not to sell cotton holdings during the twelve months ending next July 31.

Williams revealed yesterday that unofficial conversations had been held on the possibility of selling wheat on credit to Germany, but said nothing tangible had resulted.

Felipe Espil Fetes Day of Independence

Argentine Ambassador Gives Luncheon to His Staff.

FOLLOWING closely the American celebration of Independence Day on July 4 comes the celebration of independence by another and younger republic, Argentina, which was commemorated yesterday with a small luncheon here at the embassy and a brilliant display in Buenos Aires.

The new Ambassador of Argentina, Senor Felipe Espil, was host informally to members of the embassy staff in celebration of the 115th anniversay of his country's independence. This is the first fete the ambassador has given since presenting his credentials as envoy to this country to the President. After entertaining at luncheon, Senor Espil spent the rest of the afternoon in making his first official calls on his colleagues. Due to the absence from town of many diplomats, it is safe to venture that he made the complete rounds in short order.

While this country observes many national holidays, with the exception of the Fourth of July, no other holidays are observed by Americans in foreign countries. So it is with the Argentinian independence day. July 9 is observed only in that country, while representatives in foreign lands celebrate on May 25, which marks the anniversary of the beginning of the revolution in 1810. The Cuban Embassy celebrates both the "Grita de Bairre," the rallying cry of the revolutionists, and again plans festivities for the independence day later in the season.

Yesterday the provisional government of Brazil cooperated with Argentina in making the festivities in Buenos Aires more brilliant, and a squadron of Brazil's Italian-built seaplanes, accompanied by a special ambassador flew to the neighboring republic to extend felicitations. The gesture marks the first definite attempt of the Brazilian government to cement friendly relations with the Argentine.

Is there an abandoned mine in your basement?

While you suffer the discomforts of midsummer weather, the coolest section of your home lies deserted and forlorn—only because it is too crude and grimy for habitation. Has it occurred to you that this is entirely due to your heating equipment?

The modern basement is as free from dirt and dust as the rest of the house. It is a cheerful, refreshing retreat on hot summer days...a sunken cove that partakes of earth's coolness. The installation of a dustless, noiseless, vaporless Automatic Gas Heating plant ends the need for fuel storage and adds an extra floor to the home.

Summer is the time to get rid of that antiquated heating plant. Automatic Gas Heat can be installed in a single day to change that dark, dank cellar into a recreation floor for all the family.

Our Househeating Department, National 8280, will give you an accurate estimate of what Automatic Gas Heat with a Bryant gas furnace would cost for your home. Or, if your present furnace is in good condition, it can be converted to gas heat with the Janitrol Gas Conversion burner, which has been reduced for a limited time from $200 to $185 installed. Both give clean, healthful heat without effort and leave your basement free for use as a genuine part of the house.

Ten per cent down and the balance on easy payments will put a Bryant or Janitrol in your home without delay. There is no extra charge for financing and if purchased NOW, for immediate installation, the first monthly payment is deferred until next September. Call in today, National 8280. Estimates are made without obligation.

COOL BREEZES REIGN AT WOODLAND BEACH

Building Operations Make Post Colony Look Like Gold-Rush Town.

Figuratively all roads lead these days to Woodland Beach. The Washington Post's summer home development site on South River in Maryland, for it is there that Capital folks are enjoying themselves thoroughly despite the sultry atmosphere in the city.

Conditions are so delightful at the beach that those who purchased lots when the development was first announced are busy building their summer cottages and are not finding the work too strenuous even with the high temperatures which have prevailed recently.

Woodland Beach is cooled by the breezes off the South River and the two coves on which the development is located. Heavily wooded areas also furnish shade for many of the cottages which are springing up in every section of the site.

The beach resembles one of the early "gold rush" towns, with scores of Washingtonians hurrying to get their cottages erected so that they may enjoy three or four months of recreation and rest before the first of the cold weather sets in. How successful they have been in their rush is attested by the number of cottages now occupied at the beach.

While hundreds of Capital residents have found Woodland Beach the answer to a long felt desire, there are still some choice locations available which may be had at the most reasonable figure offered in years for such home sites.

Every lot at Woodland Beach is priced the same. And the price, $98, need not be paid in cash. In order to secure a lot at the beach, the only expense involved is $9 plus the cost of a subscription to The Washington Post. The remainder may be paid in monthly installments of $3.50.

Call at The Post today and learn all the details of this offer. Buy now and even if you have to postpone building until next spring, you will be ahead on the deal. Improvements made by your neighbors; erection of a new bridge over South River and other factors will increase the value of your lot even though you may not have built on it.

A recreation center just 32 miles from Washington. That is Woodland Beach and if you get in now, you can participate in the activities of what promises to be a very active summer community.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

NO merchant piying the Spanish Main ever had to be more wary of pirates than the producer of a successful play. The instant a hit is scored the buccaneers of the Rialto put their shady enterprises in motion to reap at least a part of the reward of another's skill and daring. Eternal vigilance is the price of royalties.

As an instance of the case in point, five more piratical amusement enterprises based on the text or musical content of the Pulitzer Prize play, "The Green Pastures," have been stopped during the last few days by Laurence Rivers, Inc., without recourse to the courts, following a general cleanup of parasitical offerings two months ago. At that time criminal prosecution was threatened all subsequent offenders, but the latter were so prolific with excuses, apologies and promises to be good henceforth that proceedings have been dropped.

A final warning, however, has been issued by Charles G. Stewart, general manager of "the divine comedy of blackface" that no further consideration will be accorded those who violate the copyright or common law rights involved.

Two New York booking managements and one in Chicago have been the principal offenders, with lecturers, readers and Negro choirs offering "interpretations" of the Marc Connelly play.

Speaking of transgressions of the "law," practically every motion picture producing company in America is guilty of violating both the letter and the spirit of Will H. Hays' two pet measures, the Code of Ethics and the Advertising Code, in the preparation of the still photography distributed throughout this and other countries in the exploitation of their product.

In every producing organization, it seems, there is at least one—and frequently more—camera subject whose value rests solely in her willingness to permit her phyaical charms to be made the medium of attracting notice to the parent company's devotion to "art." I am not at all certain that these models ever appear in any picture, but their personal charms appear on every dramatic desk in the country with almost monotonous regularity.

It is no part of the purpose of this department to suggest that some one "on the lots" may be deriving a tidy income from the surreptitious sale of these "art studies" to magazines of a nature banned from the newsstands of the Capital, but that might easily be. No aspirant for screen honors is apt to decline to pose in whatever manner the man higher up may desire, "for publicity purposes."

But if some of these still shots ever got onto the screen would the audience's face get red!

And here comes a postcard from Jack Hurford, assistant manager of the Fox Theater, picturing the Elbow Beach Hotel on an imposing curve of waterfront at Hamilton, Bermuda. Yeah, sort of bending the Elbow, as you might say!

If you have no yen for the posings of feminine screen stars, it might be well to fight shy of the RKO-Keith Theater during the next three weeks. In the order named, the Fifteenth street house will present Helen Twelvetrees, Constance Bennett and Barbara Stanwyck through the balance of July. Retrospecting to "Millie," "The Common Law," "Made to Love" and "Ladies of Leisure," it looks like three weeks of capacity for this trio of airens of the celluloids.

Those old troupers just can't resist the lure of a good part. Take this here now Lionel Barrymore, who retired from the stage to direct talking pictures. Back, big as life, playing the best role of his career on the screen in support of Norma Shearer in "A Free Soul." And Jimmy Gleason, who retired from the stage to write. He's doing the same thing in the same picture, booked for a second week, beginning tomorrow, at the Columbia.

It just goes to show the power of suggestion. Mention of the name "Metropolitan," of course, at once prompts the addition of Opera House." That may not be precisely what we have down at the corner of Tenth and F, but music is having its innings there, nonetheless. Hot on the heels—and if this weather keeps up, I mean hot—of "Men of the Sky," the current offering, comes Children of Dreams," which is said to be almost of the caliber of grand opera in one or two of its musical passages.

And if I were to dig through my files and bring to light all of the irate feminine correspondents who have upbraided me from time to time for slighting allusions to their little tin idol, Mr. Vallee, who kept his marriage a secret from them for almost a week, what a lot of fun might be had getting even by quoting Shakespeare to them!

I mean, needless to say, that bit that goes: "What a tangled Webb we weave when first we practice to deceive!"

Or am I bringing home the Bacon?

Freeing of Pigeons Will Name Akron

Mrs. Hoover to Release Birds at Dirigible Ceremony.

Akron, Ohio, July 9 (A.P.).—Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the President, will sponsor the new Navy dirigible Akron, August 8, by opening the door of a cage, releasing white pigeons into the air.

The ceremony will be unique in this lighter-than-air center, blimps built here always having been named by breaking a bottle of liquid air on the control cabin. Sponsors of airships have always worn gloves to preclude any possibility of receiving a frozen hand while handling the liquid air.

In the case of the First Lady it was decided that not even the minor risk should be taken.

Mrs. Hoover is expected to arrive here by special train. The President will not attend.

Ohio May Protest Kassay Passport

Man Accused of Threats to Destroy Dirigible Asks Papers.

Cleveland, July 9 (A.P.).—A protest against granting a passport to Paul F. Kassay, acquitted at Akron on a charge of syndicalism, may be filed with the Attorney General's office at Washington, it was reported among Federal court attaches today.

Kassay, a former Hungarian naval officer, has applied for a passport after being refused permission to file his application because he neglected to bring his citizenship papers.

It was generally expected the district attorney would point out that although Kassay was freed at Akron when the court ruled the criminal syndicalism statute unconstitutional. The ruling has been appealed to the State Supreme Court. He was charged with violating the law by uttering threats to destroy the new naval dirigible being completed at Akron.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

DIET FOR CHILDREN'S TEETH.

DRS. Bunting, Jay and Hard have been supervising the diet of many hundred children in a fair number of schools, orphanages, and homes in Michigan. They have continued this experiment for a moderate length of time. They are convinced that tooth decay will not occur in children if the diet is right. They say: "The forgoing records of preliminary studies in the control of dental caries strongly suggests that the feeding of adequate and well balanced diets which are suitable and available to any public institution or private home, will arrest the progress of dental caries."

Put in another way, this means: If children are fed properly their teeth will not decay. If they are decaying that is proof that the diet is improper. Changing the diet to one that is correct will stop the process.

They give the following as a proper diet for a child:

First day—breakfast: stewed raisins (no sugar), cereal, buttered toast, milk.

Dinner: barley soup, beef stew with vegetables, boiled potatoes, shredded cabbage, green pepper salad, buttered rusks, milk, orange.

Supper: vegetable soup, baked potato, cottage cheese, buttered beets, buttered toast, milk, raw apple.

Second day—breakfast: stewed apricots, cereal, buttered toast, milk.

Dinner: vegetable soup, roast beef, boiled potatoes with jackets, green beans, bread and butter, milk, apple and celery salad.

Supper: cream of spinach soup, scrambled eggs, cabbage salad, buttered rusks, milk, orange.

Third day—breakfast: cereal with sliced bananas, buttered toast, milk.

Dinner: broth with crackers, bacon, baked potato, shredded cabbage and raw carrot salad, milk, bread and butter.

Supper: cream of pea soup, baked spaghetti with sliced, hard boiled eggs, fresh tomatoes, milk, buttered rusks, apple.

Fourth day—Breakfast: Prune sauce, cereal, milk, buttered toast.

Dinner: Roast beef, boiled potatoes, creamed onions, bread and butter, milk, apple and raisin salad.

Supper: Vegetable soup, baked rice, buttered peas, raw celery, buttered rusks, milk, orange.

Diets for the other three days in the week follow the same general lines. They call for plenty of vegetables, meats, breads, cereal, fruit and milk. They differ from the ordinary diets given children principally in that they are better balanced. Probably they contain more milk, fruit, meat and vegetables than most children get. On the other hand, they are lower in carbohydrates than the diets given children ordinarily. Especially do these investigators limit sugars. When it is necessary that the child have a sweet they prefer honey to those made with sugar. They insist that the bread and cereals be made of grains from which the germ has been removed.

CHILD NOT HARMED.

Mrs. M. M. writes: All through the first three months of my pregnancy I was overburdened with work and worry over a sick family. As I had little time to rest I soon found that I would go into tantrums due to jagged nerves. Hysterics would follow and then exhaustion. I would be very ugly one minute and worried the next. Now I am settling down to normal, but would like to know if the conditions during the early pregnancy would affect the mind or looks of my baby in any way.

REPLY.

Your experience as such will not harm your child. If you are of an excitable, hysterical, rebellious-of-restraint type your child may inherit your personality.

Wildcat Scratches Captor.

Rex, Ark., July 9 (U.P.).—While attempting to carry a wildcat, which he had trapped, home with him on horseback, Tony Fry, farmer, was severely scratched and received a fractured arm when the cat freed two of its legs, scared the horse, which threw Fry, and then scratched its captor.

AND AT THAT VERY MOMENT THE SAME MYSTERIOUS FIGURE REFERRED TO BY BEATRICE, HAD MADE HIS WAY UP THE BACK STAIRS TO THE SECOND FLOOR
AS HE REACHED THE THIRD FLOOR, THE DOOR OF ONE OF THE ROOMS SUDDENLY OPENED AND SERGEANT CASSIDY APPEARED WITH A PIECE OF PAPER IN HAND
OH, BOY, WAIT'LL THE CHIEF SEES THIS!!
DOWNSTAIRS INSPECTOR KEENE HAD JUST FINISHED ASSURING BEATRICE THAT HIS MEN HAD CAREFULLY SEARCHED THE GROUNDS —AND WITH ALL DOORS AND WINDOWS LOCKED, ACCORDING TO YOUR UNCLE'S ORDERS, IT IS SCARCELY PROBABLE THAT ANYONE COULD GET INTO THE HOUSE. NO, MISS WORTH, I FEAR WE SHALL HAVE TO LOOK FOR THE GUILTY ONE AMONG THOSE PRESENT AT THE SUPPER TABLE!

What Today Means to You

"CANCER."

IF July 10 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from noon to 3:30 p. m. and from 6:15 to 8:35 p. m. The danger periods are from 9:35 a. m. to 11:20 a. m., from 3:45 p. m. to 5:10 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 10:20 p. m.

The planetary aspects of July 10 indicate conflict, and difficult influences. The greatest danger seems to be in connection with financial matters. Speculation should be avoided, investment deferred, and strict economy practiced. Health conditions should be carefully guarded.

Children born on this July 10 will have uneventful careers until they attain adulthood. At that time, the stars say that they will assert themselves and get into lots of trouble. Time, however, will straighten out their difficulties, and the latter part of their lives will be as uninteresting and uneventful as that of their early years.

Born on July 10, your horoscope clearly denotes that you are quick to anger, slow to forgive, largely a creature of impulse, with strong likes and dislikes, yet, with it all, a charming and a lovable personality. No one can foretell, with any degree of accuracy, your reactions. With you it is safe to expect the unexpected. Yet none would have you different, not even those who happen to be the victims of your temporary outbursts of temper.

You are bright and witty, an avowed enemy of gossip and scandal, an outspoken and candid advocate of your own opinions, a loyal friend, and an unusually intelligent companion. You abhor sham and any form of deceit. You are no respecter of conventionalisms. You are absolutely truthful and aboveboard. If your actions were provoked by thought and consideration, instead of by impulsiveness, your success would be assured. Originality and living on a different plane of thought from that generally adopted rarely, if ever, brings grist to the mill.

If you have to work, you should "go it on your own." As a subordinate, you would have to sink your individualism in order to "hold on," but as a partner, you would be impossible. In the home, love will smooth the way, and your charm will outweigh your crankiness.

3 John W. Griggs—Attorney-General under McKinley.

Jane Corbett INTERPRETS the MODE

This smart ensemble coat of black wool crepe, with collars and cuffs of baby lamb, is worn with a black crepe de chine frock, printed with beige and gold flowers. (Courtesy of Jean Patou, Paris.)

New York, July 9.

IT isn't, "Are you going away?" but "When are you going away?" that's the proper question to ask around this time of the year. Because sooner or later you're sure to be leaving city dust and pavements behind you for the country, mountains or seaside. And whether it's for a week-end or a week or longer, you've got to plan your vacation wardrobe as well as what to wear to where you're going!

For a short trip and a short vacation, in order not to encumber yourself with too much luggage, it's a very good idea to arrange it so that your costume for traveling is of the type that will fit right into the activities of your vacation. A four-piece ensemble is ideal for this purpose. Molyneux made one recently consisting of a brown tweed top coat and skirt, a chamois-color closely woven wool jacket and a yellow and brown sleeveless blouse. Of course, a top coat of this type is indispensable for any resort to slip over light summer dresses for motoring, &c. And then the jacket blouse and skirt form an ideal costume for active sports, and just the blouse and skirt worn alone are smart in themselves. While the entire costume is beautifully adapted for the actual trip and any sudden changes in weather, by the simple process of peeling off or slipping on coat or jacket.

And then there are any number of space-saving devices for brightening and changing the aspect of summer frocks. A belt, for instance, with triangular vestee-like points of bright dotted crepe attached in front, to wear over dresses or under a suit jacket. A deep cape collar of white pique is extremely smart worn over sleeveless collared linen morning frocks.

No wonder ensembles are ever-popular, if they are as altogether delightful as the one from Jean Patou that I sketch for you today! This one has a coat of black wool crepe, with cuffs and an odd collar of black baby lamb, and with very clever incrustations to give fullness to the skirt. 'N' this baby lamb collar and cuff arrangement is so made that it is reversible! Then, the ensemble's frock is of black crepe de chine, printed with tiny flowers of biege and gold lame (lah-may). The skirt is flaringly pleated, and it, and the collar, cuffs and hip pocket of the frock are edged with plain black crepe de chine pleated frills! The black patent leather belt and the black buttons are two more touches to the frock's perfection!

• • • •

Wel, well, well! After writing all about that lovely ensemble coat at great length and intense particularity, I find I haven't room for the sketch of it today. So-o-o-o, watch for it on Monday! 'N' in the meantime I just have room to show you an adorable little evening scarf of pale coral crepe de chine, with ruffled flounces of black, hand-made lace. Cute, isn't it, the way it covers one shoulder and ties beneath the breast on the other side?

After all you're not going to buy a fox fur every week in the year, are you? Probably you're not going to buy one every year, either. So, of course, you would like to take the very best care of the one you have, so that it will always look nice for the length of time you are wearing it, and so that indeed it will still look nice when you are no longer wearing it as a fox fur and can use it for trimming.

Well, your fox fur will look 'sactly as nice as all that, and even nicer, if you keep it in the fox bag that's my very own invention—and the subject of this week's leaflet which will come to you just as soon as you send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post. You'll love this attractive, useful protective bag!

• • • •

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

MULCHING AND WATERING.

MOST beds or borders are benefited by mulching with peat moss or well-rotted stable manure. It is necessary if you use manure, which is in some places unobtainable, to shake out all the long straw before using; also chop it quite fine with the aid of a garden spade. Rose beds, cannas, gladiolus, hardy herbaceous borders and even verbena beds are all benefited by mulching.

It is not necessary to mulch soft plants like coleus or geraniums, as they grow very well without it. The work of mulching is very simple; all you need to do is to spread the material over the bed carefully to the depth of about one inch. This work pays in two ways, it keeps the roots moist and enriches the soil.

Most amateur gardeners are puzzled about watering. They consider that they do not go about the work intelligently. So for their comfort let me take this opportunity to state that there is no set rule. It depends to a great extent upon the character of the soil and what you have planted in the beds.

If the soil is good stiff loam and you have frequent showers, you need not supply any water. If your soil is sandy and the weather dry, it will be found beneficial to water every day.

Geraniums seldom need water when planted in good garden loam; with much water they grow too much and flower sparsely. Cannas require a rich soil and plenty of water. Coleus and plants of this character do not require much water. For them and for geraniums it is better to hoe frequently.

To water properly requires great care. If you use a hose, have just enough force to sprinkle the plants without watering the ground. Hold the sprinkler near the ground and see that the water goes just where you want it. In this way the ground will become thoroughly soaked. In the evening after sundown is the best time to supply water, as the plants have all night to take up the moisture—for water is soon evaporated under the combined effects of wind and hot summer sun.

First Virginia Apples In 1931 Sent to London

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., July 9.—The first carload of 1931 apples to be shipped from the Winchester district for export is being forwarded from New York tomorrow on the steamer American Trader for London, Eng. The apples were consigned by the Sibert Fruit Corporation to Barney, Springer & Co., London. They were Yellow Transparents, 2 inches and up, and inspected and graded as U. S. No. 1. (No grades under U. S. No. 1 are admitted to ports of the United Kingdom between July 1 and November 15.)

The fruit leaving tomorrow for England was grown in orchards near Winchester, and was picked and packed this week in bushel baskets. They are summer varieties and therefore will not be in competition with late fall Australian and Tasmanian apples now being marketed in England.

Culbertson on Contract

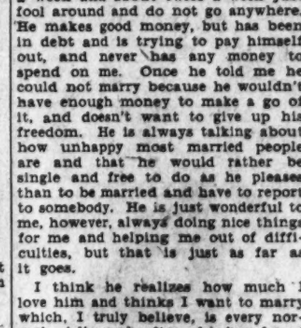
A HISTORY-MAKING HAND.

ORIGINALLY the sky was the limit for the number of Redoubles in Bridge. One evening in 1904 a hand was bid at the Whist Club, New York, as given below. Mr. Ralph Hickox, to whose courteesy I owe this hand, was the partner of the indefatigable Redoubler who sat East. Mr. W. E. Hawkins, a member of the board of managers, was an onlooker. Both Mr. Hawkins and Mr. Hickox have bravely weathered the storms of transformation through early Bridge to Auction and then Contract and are among the oldest and most popular members of the club. After the conclusion of the bidding and play, which caused tremendous excitement, a meeting of the board was called on the spot and it was unanimously decided to limit all Redoubles to one.

South—Dealer



South	West	North	East

Pass	Redbl.	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—In straight Bridge there was no informatory Double. All Doubles were for penalty.

2—At this stage North (who knew his partner to be very conservative and West a reckless bidder) rashly announced: "I will wait until doomsday to stop my redoubling." Alas, his doomsday was near at hand.

3—West, who held a certainty and was reaping now a rich harvest for dearly bought reputation of recklessness, scrutinized his hand carefully for the fiftieth time perhaps to see that his A K Q J sequence was still in place. Reassured, he stopped the bidding to count up the geometrical progression of profits. "It is best that we avoid possible misunderstanding."

4—By this time Mr. Hickox, who is of a philosophical nature, unable to make out whether his partner or opponent was insane, shut his eyes, relaxed and began to pass both in turn and out turn.

West led out his eight clubs, setting the contract 2 tricks. When the original value of 10 points per trick multiplied in geometrical progression was settled, the result was 5,120 per trick, making 10,240 points in all!

Surely, our present Contract rubbers are picayune affairs.

Today's Pointer.

Do not raise partner's Opening suit bid of one or two unless you hold at least four small trumps or three small trumps headed by an Ace, King or Queen

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Mr. Culbertson will be glad to answer questions on bidding and play of hands sent in by readers. Address him in care of The Washington Post, INCLOSING A TWO-CENT STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD.

Another Hardy Perennial.

DEAR Frances McDonald: Please rescue me if there is still a chance. I have been going with a man some five years older than myself for five long years. I am now 25 years old. I can not begin to tell you how much I think of him, and he seems to like me, but, Dear Frances McDonald, he has never once told me he loves me, even though I weakened and told him. I know I never should have done it. Now, if a man can not find in five years whether he loves a girl or not, it seems to me he never will know, or, in other words, there just isn't a chance. If I go out, which is not more than three times a year, he gets mad and pouts and makes me so unhappy that I then don't care to go out any more. And I really do not enjoy being with anyone else but him. We go to a movie about once a week and about twice a week just fool around and do not go anywhere. He makes good money, but has been in debt and is trying to pay himself out, and never has any money to spend on me. Once he told me he could not marry because he wouldn't have enough money to make a go of it, and doesn't want to give up his freedom. He is always talking about how unhappy most married people are and that he would rather be single and free to do as he pleases than to be married and have to report to somebody. He is just wonderful to me, however, always doing nice things for me and helping me out of difficulties, but that is just as far as it goes.

I think he realizes how much I love him and thinks I want to marry which, I truly believe, is every normal girl's goal after she has found the one she loves. However, I believe he is the type of man who would just go with a girl for the best part of her life, and then after she is too old to interest any one else, would gradually let her down. Now, is that right? Although you love a man, should you let him take the best part of your life by just going with you? I have given up every boy friend for him, and of course do not know any boys now. He is terribly jealous and so am I. We have a lot of quarrels, but we always make up in the end. And when I say we have been going together for five years, I mean that for those five years we have been going together constantly. Don't think he has dates with other girls, either, except maybe occasionally when we fuss, and maybe I have one, too, then, which is very seldom. Help me.

"UNHAPPY."

Did you read our advice to Constance, whose erstwhile lover has been hanging on for six years without any explanation as to why it should be her doorstep instead of any other that is being worn thin by his impatient feet?

I would like to take all you patient damsels out into some nice sunny field and turn the fire hose on you.

You, for instance, state that you believe your particular hero would "just go with a girl for the best part of her life and then, when she is too old to interest any man, just let her down." And in the next breath you say you love the insect. What do you mean when you speak of love? Are you talking about his clothes? Certainly not his character.

If you had ever known even one real man you would despise this caricature. You girls have not the least conception of the glory of being loved. You might as well be asleep, drugged with some deadly narcotic. With women all about you worshiped, adored, you are content to go to a movie with some nit-wit and spend your life wondering what is going on in his mind when one glance could tell an expert that he had no mind.

Wake up. You are no chattel. You are no supine slave to an idea. Be a human being on your own account and get what is coming to you from life. You might as well be in love with a picture in a book. Better, in fact. Get out with new people. Change your whole outlook. Cut this man out of your life, for he is nothing but a mirage at best and a hallucination at worst. This is not sympathy, but it is what you need. May it do some good, which I doubt.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Spear" (also written "Speares") is of English origin. It is one of the relatively few English names whose original meanings are indicated by their present forms. It means "the spear," and was originally given as a nickname to soldiers and guardsmen who carried that weapon. However, it has been found that not infrequently this name has become confused with "Spyer." "Spear" and "Spears" do not seem to occur in the earliest English records. An Oxfordshire church register of the year 1662 records the marriage of John Spier and Jane Price.

The family name "Spyer" occurs frequently in early English records. Although this name has come into English through the French, it is ultimately of Germanic origin, its source being the Old High German verb "spehon," meaning "to spy." "Spyer" may therefore be translated "the spy," "the watchman" and "the scout," and it obviously indicates the occupation of the persons who were first so called. It should be remembered, however, that "Spyer" has frequently become confused with "Spear," so that in studying the ancestry of some families it has been found to be impossible to determine which of these two was first given. Instances of "Spyer" in early English records are Robertus Spyer (1379) and Richard Spyer (1515).

The family name "Squibb" is found in early English records, but it is ultimately of Scandinavian origin. It was first given as a nickname to denote disdain, and it may be translated "the poor kind of fellow" or "the petty fellow." A certain John Squybbe is mentioned in a register of Oxford University for the year 1536.

"A Word to the Wives"

Is P.A. Holding Your Husband Back?

JOHN MARSHALL is typical of thousands of husbands. Hard working, ambitious and progressive, yet he has seen three other men in the past year promoted ahead of him for positions he was particularly well fitted for. There is no question but that P. A. (personal appearance) is holding him back. A new suit . . . a new hat . . . a new topcoat . . . new shoes would easily solve his problem.

*"P.A." (Personal Appearance) is easy to obtain and easy to keep. Wives who want to see their husbands forge ahead can help tremendously by having their husbands read the men's apparel advertisements in

JUNE GAIN REPORTED IN LIFE INSURANCE

Acacia Mutual's Head Sees Trade Upturn Forecast in Policy Increase.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

William Montgomery, president of Acacia Mutual Life Association, announced yesterday that the month of June was the best 30-day period experienced this year by the association. According to Mr. Montgomery's statement, placed business during June amounted to approximately $4,000,000, with the net gain substantially greater than for any other month of 1931 and the net lapse total markedly reduced.

"The results for the month of June bear out our conviction of gradual but steady and impressive improvement in business conditions generally," Mr. Montgomery said.

"The statistical record is proof of a significant upward trend. However, while vitally important, the statistical record alone does not reveal the betterment that is taking place. We regard it as highly significant and encouraging that sentiment is undergoing a decided improvement, augurring well for continuation of the forward movement.

Optimistic on Outlook.

"On the basis of recent results and especially upon the excellent showing made during June, we believe we are fully justified in looking forward with conservative, but nevertheless real, optimism.

Acacia Mutual Life Association, which Mr. Montgomery has headed for 38 years, has branches in principal cities throughout the United States. Its home office is located at First street and Indiana avenue northwest.

The National Coal Association, from incomplete car loading reports from the railroads, estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended July 4, as about 6,000,000 net tons.

Gross sales for the month ended June 30 were $14,832,160.69, as compared with gross sales for the same period of last year of $15,826,311.38, showing a loss of $994,150.69, equivalent to 6.28 per cent.

Germany Pays Bank Debt of $46,000,000

Berlin, July 9 (A.P.).—The German government today returned to the Reichsbank 184,000,000 marks (approximately $46,000,000) which it had borrowed to help it over the recent critical period.

Spanish Stocks Drop.

SUIT ASKS SETTLING OF BLACK'S ESTATE

Publisher's Brother Seeking Construction of Will on Newspaper Holdings.

Baltimore, July 9 (A.P.).—Proceedings to have construed provisions of the will of the late Van Lear Black, publisher and world flier, were instituted today in Circuit Court.

The action was taken by Harry C. Black, his brother, as the result of the renunciation of the will by Van Lear Black's widow, Mrs. Jessie Cary Black, who elected to claim her statutory one-third of the estate, under Maryland law.

Mrs. Black, it was revealed, has made claim to one-third of 24,750 shares of stock of the A. S. Abell Co., publishers of the Baltimore Sun papers, which Van Lear Black bequeathed to his brother. Harry C. Black, who was named executor, stated that the property in his hands was valued at $2,472,744.

Van Lear Black was drowned last August when he fell from his yacht when off the coast of New Jersey. His aviation trips took him around the world from Holland to the East Indies and from London to Capetown.

Other questions laid before the court included whether the widow's renunciation may cause a scaling down or in other manner affect special bequests of about $700,000.

Mrs. Black's claim is that by electing to exercise dower rights she is entitled to a third of the Abell company stock and also a third of special bequests.

STOCK PRICES GAIN IN NARROW MARKET

Fractional Upturn Is Rule on Favorite Issues; Steel Closes Higher.

New York, July 9 (A.P.).—Stocks had difficulty deciding which way to go today, and the uncertainty kept them in a narrow rut. After rallying and sagging alternately during the five dull hours the market closed higher, although fractional gains were the rule in the favorite issues. Nevertheless, final prices were generally the best of the day. Sales totaled 1,500,000 shares.

Commodities manifested a recurrence of their old complaint, weakness, which was discouraging in view of their strength only a week or so ago. Cotton, at its lowest, was off about $1.50 a bale under active selling prompted by easiness in Liverpool, rains in the Southwest and rumors, later denied, that the Farm Board was liquidating. Closing quotations were $1.10 to $1.25 a bale lower. Wheat was depressed ½ to 1⅜ net, partly on increased receipts and reported Russian offerings. July corn dropped sharply, but September's losses were small and December closed a shade higher.

The visits of the Reichsbank's president to London and Paris in search of a huge long-term credit provided the chief topic of conversation in Wall street, which believed that Dr. Luther would be accommodated with an amount sufficient to meet Germany's needs. It seemed inevitable to bankers that the $100,000,000 short-term credit, expiring a week from today, would be renewed.

Statement of Reichsbank.

The weekly statement of the Reichsbank was more reassuring than its immediate predecessor, for the gold ratio rose to 43.6 per cent compared with the legal minimum of 40 per cent so closely approximated a week ago. There were gains in holdings of both foreign exchange and gold. The Bank of England's reserve ratio jumped sharply, but there was no change in the London discount rate.

In the share market, motors received an upward tilt from the earnings statements of Auburn and Nash. Chemicals, however, offered the outstanding group performance, rising rather strongly. A gain of 1¾ in Commercial Solvents was prominent, although Du Pont, Union Carbide, Davison and Drug were up a point or two. Miscellaneous strong spots included Endicott Johnson and Atchison. Oils virtually stood still, while the rail section made a reasonably good showing.

United States Steel touched 94⅝ on the downside, but closed at 96⅞, up ¾. There were similar net gains in American Can, Radio, National Biscuit, General Motors, Allied Chemical, Case North American and American Telephone. Western Union, Borden, Consolidated Gas and Chrysler were up a point. Fox Film and Gillette encountered steady selling.

Reserve Bank Buying.

The Reserve banks pursued less aggressively in the last week their new policy of buying Government securities, for the gain was only about 4,500,000. Holdings of the New York banks showed a small decline. It was assumed that the system felt there was no necessity for expanding credit too rapidly during a dull summer. Brokers' loans were down 24,000,000 in a week of declining stock prices, and there were no large new bond offerings to stimulate borrowing.

Domestic industrial news was scarce. Car loadings were higher, but the increase was seasonal, in that grain and coal contributed most of the gain.

Improvement of the German mark featured the foreign exchanges. Swiss and Dutch rates lost their buoyancy, indicating that investors in those countries were less insistent about bringing home the French franc were firm.

FRIDAY JULY 10, 1931 SPORTS

NATS ROUT RED SOX, 14-1, AS YANKEES HALT MACKS

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE national open golf title as a negotiable instrument took the rap when George Von Elm faltered on the finishing holes in the play-off at Inverness the other day and permitted Billie Burke, nee Burkowski, to inherit the crown that had graced the heads of such keen business men as Hagen, Armour, Sarazen and Farrell, not to mention Jones, the amateur.

Like life, marriage and shooting craps, the national open title's value depends exactly upon what you make of it. To Von Elm, the business man golfer, with more than a dash of color and showmanship, the crown might easily have been converted into the $50,000 commodity that Hagen, Sarazen and Armour made of it with their clever exploitation of the honor.

To Burke, no lack-luster performer, but no darling of the galleries and uninitiated in the methods of prying the shekels out of the devotees in the provinces, par for the national open title is likely to be considerably below the figure attained by the game's showmen, including Bobby Jones who remained an amateur until the combined effect of three open titles and four major triumphs in 1930 netted him a quarter of a million dollar movie contract.

2 Depression Eras

The title in the hands of Willie MacFarlane, the first man ever to beat Jones in a play-off, and the lusterless Cyril Walker, suffered two periods of depression owing to the holders' inability to capitalize on the round of exhibitions that are inherited by every winner. MacFarlane and Walker, instead of stalking the golf fan in his native lair as Hagen, Armour and Sarazen did with their excursions into the hinterlands the length and breadth of the nation and even in foreign climes, waited for the fans to come to them and waited in vain.

Ambitious clubs and promoters did not show the same eagerness to book McFarlane and Walker for local appearances that they always evinced whenever Hagen, for example, came into the title. There was nothing of the color and personality of Hagen that could interest the galleries in McFarlane and Walker.

No bevy of prospective managers was there at Inverness to greet Burke at the finish with contracts duly filled out to the dotted line. Except for a Hagen or an Armour or a Sarazen, the provinces are no longer fertile for the round of exhibitions. There are too many other good golfers, ranking with Burke, who hold forth in every section, for the galleries to pay to see a national champion in the person of the young Pole play the game.

Waited for Hagen

But for Hagen, Armour and Sarazen, there was always the generous turnout with appetites whetted for Hagen's drives and putts, for Sarazen's booming brassies and Armour's magic irons. And there was the prospect, too, that Hagen would keep them waiting an hour and a half at the first tee with characteristic promptness while they could fume and fulminate until the great Haig put in an appearance when all would be quickly forgotten, which is to forgive.

The title in Von Elm's hands might easily have revived the declining interest in the hinterlands. The blond giant from the Pacific Coast is a dashing figure on the links, a stylist, with a background of having beaten Jones in the national amateur. And he has all the shots in his bag.

Von Elm would keep himself in the spotlight, which in the case of a national open golf champion on tour is a profitable rather than a pitiless glare as they call it when the gay young thing's diary is unearthed. The blonde Lothario from the Western links catapulted himself into public notice with both feet last September with his declaration that amateur golf was a highly organized, highly commercialized project, a show for which $50,000 is paid in but not 1

Canada Open Field Led by Alliss' 67

Eleven in Field Break Par; Farrell Near the Leaders.

MISSISSAGUA COUNTRY CLUB, Toronto, Ont., July 9 (A.P.).—Percy Allis, pro at the Wannsee Club of Berlin, smashed his way into the lead in the Canadian Open Golf Championship today with a brilliant first round score of 67.

The stocky Briton, one of the late starters, clipped five strokes off par for the Mississauga course, to wrest the lead by a single stroke from three United States aces, Tommy Armour, British open title-holder; Walter Hagen of Detroit, and Wiffy Cox of Brooklyn. A stroke further back at 69 was Johnny Farrell, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., United States open king in 1928.

Par Beaten Only Once Previously.

Old Man Par at this course had been beaten only once previously, but before the assault of the crack golfers of five nations it took a terrific drubbing. No fewer than eleven stars bettered par figures of 72 today and ten more equaled it.

Bracketed at 70 in a tie for sixth place behind Farrell were Willie Spitall, of Toronto, and Albert Estony, of Lockport. Mortie Dutra, Long Beach, Calif.; Ed Dudley, Concordville, Pa.; George McLean, Yonkers, and Jules Huot, of Kent, Quebec, all turned in 71s.

The 72 bracket included Horton Smith, of Joplin, Mo.; Ted Bishop, of Wildwood, Mass.; E. R. Whitcombe and Sid Easterbrook, of England; Aubrey Boomer, of France, and five Canadians, C. R. Murray, of Montreal, who won the title in 1906; A. J. Hulbert and Andy Kay, of Toronto; Willie Lamb, of Uplands, and Gordon Brydson, of Willodale.

Tony Manero, of West Long Branch, N. J.; Emmett French, of Southern Pines, N. C., and Bert Hodson, of England, all had 73's, while Leo Diegel, of Agua Caliente, four times winner of the crown, took 40 strokes on his first nine, and had to come home in 34 to stay in the running with 74. Charles A. Whitcombe, captain of the British Ryder Cup team, and another

Tigers Defeat Browns, 11-7; Homers Help

Detroit, Mich., July 9 (A.P.).—The Detroit Tigers showed a flash of their early season form today when they fell on the St. Louis Browns and defeated them, 11-7, in the second game of their series here.

Whitehill went the route for Detroit and allowed but three hits during the first seven innings. In the eighth he weakened and the Browns got six runs, two of them being homers by Kress and Schulte. Detroit got into the home run column in the third when Doljack connected with the ball for the circuit.

National League's Pitchers Lead in Shut-Out Victories

Giants, Blanked Six Times, Have Whitewashed Foes in Nine Games; Macks, Alone in Majors, Have Missed Zeroes.

Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, July 9.—As the National League race gets tighter the race in the junior circuit becomes "looser," with the A's continuing to apply themselves to the selfish business of losing the other contenders and leaving them far behind.

Only three and a-half games separate the first and fourth teams in the older loop. There's a fifteen and a-half game gap between the first and fourth teams in the American League, and the A's are heading toward the second half of the competition with a five and a-half game advantage over the runner-up Nationals and an eleven and a half bulge over the Yanks.

It's an old story, this thing of the National League staging a pretty free-for-all scramble and the American League having its annual parade and placid follow-the-lead procedure.

It's good fun for the National League while it lasts, but it isn't fun for the National League when its eventual winner, worn by the hot pace, staggers into the autumn world series with a reasonably fresh and fit American League title holder.

Before this season started, both leagues took measures to modify the ball so that the long-distance hitting, that to some had been getting rather a nuisance, would not be so pronounced. The National League did a little more tinkering with the ball than the American League did.

Plenty of Homers Recorded.

There are still plenty of homers in both circuits, with the American League's share slightly the larger. But it is felt that the new ball has aided the pitchers, and if anything the National League pitchers have been aided the more. And that may be one of the reasons why history is repeating itself in the National, with another very interesting four-team scrap.

There have been quite a number of shutouts so far this season. There have been 36 whitewash jobs registered in the National League and 24 in the American. That may form an index of the situation. A shut-out is something in the way of the unexpected. The National League teams are always running into the unexpected and coming croppers, to the complication of the race.

All teams in the National League have administered shut-outs, and had shut-outs slapped against them.

In the American League neither the Yanks nor Red Sox have yet spilled the whitewash on any rival.

All the American League teams have been blanked except the A's, the only team in the majors with this distinction. This may go toward explaining the Macks' class. They're an all-fired hard team to keep from making runs.

And the A's lead their league in administering shut-outs. They've slapped six on their rivals—three by Grove, two by Earnshaw and one by Rommel.

The Indians rank next to the A's with five shut-outs handed to their rivals; followed by the Nats, with four; the Tigers, four; the White Sox, three, and the Browns, two.

Giants Excel in Shut-outs.

The Giants, though, are the champ calsomine artists, with nine slapped on their foes—three each by Walker and Fitzsimmons, two by Hubbell and one by Berly.

The Giants, though, have had to "accept" six shut-outs from their foes. They have good pitching themselves but they frequently find that the other clubs have mighty good pitching, too.

The Giants on one occasion scored a double shut-out over the Braves; and just recently, on the Fourth of July, they assimilating the same dose from the Dodgers.

The only double shut-out in the American League was hung up by the Cleveland Indians over the Red Sox, 13 to 0 and 10 to 0, Clint Brown doing a five-hit trick and Willis Hudlin a one-hit trick.

Incidentally, that 13 to 0 game stands as the biggest score so far in a shut-out game. And Hudlin's one-hit job is the only one of the sort to date in the majors.

The Indians can also boast the only no-hit game in the majors, Wes Ferrell's famous 9 to 0 toppling of the Browns on April 29. Incidentally, Ferrell hasn't turned in a shut-out since that game.

In the National League there has been nothing better than two-hit shut-outs. The National has had four such—two by Hubbell, one by Bob Smith and one by Phelps. There have been three two-hit shut-outs in the American League (by Grove, Earnshaw and Blaeholder).

Pitchers who had gotten away with shut-outs, though splattered by quite a few hits, are Vance, who blanked the Giants with ten hits; Lloyd Brown of the Nationals, who blanked the Red Sox with ten hits, and Rommel of the A's and Sorrell of the Tigers, each of whom pitched nine-hit shut-outs.

Four-Hit Games Plentiful.

There have been more four-hit shut-outs than any other kind, thirteen in all—ten in the National League and three in the American—and that's what swells the National League grand total of whitewashing.

Both of the Boston teams are ace recipients of shut-outs. The Red Sox and Braves have each been blanked eight times this season. Shades of the old Boston Nationals, who went through the 1894 season without being shut out once!

The Yanks, several years ago, got through a whole campaign with only one shut-out. But they've slipped since them. Wasn't it back in 1929 that they were blanked three times in one series by the Browns? This year Earnshaw and Uhle have been the pitchers to bedaub them.

Shut-out pitchers may be coming into their own again this season to some extent, just as there has been a one-man revival of base stealing by Ben Chapman; but really tight games are not nearly so frequent as they were 10, 20 or 30 years ago.

DON BETTERS SPEEDBOAT RECORD

Briton Tops 110 Miles on Rivieria After Many Trials.

GARDONE, Riviera, Italy, July 9 (A.P.). — Kaye Don, British sportsman, broke his own world speed-boat record today by piloting the Miss England II over a measured course at a rate of 110.223 miles an hour. Don set the previous record of 103.49 miles an hour in Argentina.

Don made two runs over the Lake Garda course at speeds of 107.878 miles per hour and 112.569 to smash the record.

Today's record-breaking run marked the end of nearly three months of efforts here by the British sportsman. Don brought the Miss England here May 5 to compete in the international speedboat regatta sponsored by Gabriel D'Annunzio, but motor trouble balked every attempt he made to set a new record.

A new engine was installed in the boat last week and other mechanical adjustments were made. On Saturday he averaged 109.43 miles an hour over a measured course but motor trouble prevented him from making the run in the other direction as required in record attempts. Today, with perfect conditions prevailing, Don brought his boat to the course and 10 minutes later had established his new mark.

England Gains Lead Over Zechs at Nets

Prague, Czechoslovakia, July 9 (A.P.).—England won both singles matches today to open the final European zone Davis Cup play with Czechoslovakia, and all but clinched a place in the interzone final with the United States in Paris, July 17, 18 and 19.

H. W. ("Bunny") Austin's victory over Roderick Menzel, 3—6, 6—2, 6—8, 6—3, 6—3, was the more exciting of the two singles triumphs. The youthful Englishman pulled himself out of many tight places. Fred Perry had an easier time with Ladislaus Hecht and won, 6—1, 8—6, 6—3.

The intensity of the play moved the crowd to almost constant applause and gutteral grunts of "beautiful" (in Czech) despite the appeal of authorities for decorum in applause. Their cheering was so loud that Austin, bred in a less vociferous English tennis atmosphere, once put his fingers to his ears to drown out the noise.

After one doubles match tomorrow, two more singles will be played Saturday.

Oklahoma Club Owner Curtails Night Games

Oklahoma City, July 9 (A.P.).—Jack Holland, owner of the Oklahoma City (Western League) Club, has decided that night air and flood lights retard the development of young baseball players.

He announced yesterday his team will go on a daylight schedule July 10, with the exception of "ladies' night" games each Monday and Friday, which will not be abandoned because of their popularity.

"The majors are becoming harder to convince of a player's worth as adjudged by averages compiled by day-night baseball," Holland said. "The night game holds back the development of young players, for the ball is harder to see, both at bat and in the field. The night air is none too good for the players.

"The novelty of night baseball is wearing off to the extent that it does not pay to develop players on only a night baseball diet."

Race Betting Bill For Mobile Vetoed

Montgomery, Ala., July 9 (A.P.).—Gov. Miller today vetoed a legislative bill to legalize horse racing with "co-operative or mutuel pools" in Mobile, and the Senate sustained his action by a vote of 20 to 8.

The governor sent a message to the Senate, saying he vetoed the measure "because I can not conceive of a more vicious law."

Vanderbilt's Bodyguard Calls to Mind Varied Field For Pinch Hitters in U. S.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Peter Arno, the victim of that hypothetical wound from young Neely Vanderbilt's figurative pistol, reports, on his return from the front in Reno, that young Vanderbilt, instead of taking boxing lessons from Jack Dempsey, to the end that he might give him, Mr. Arno, a bust on the nose, has hired a bodyguard, or pinch hitter.

This draws attention to a trend in this country. At first it was only the Presidents of the United States who had bodyguards. They were furnished by the U. S. Secret Service, and the continued use of such means of protection is quite legitimate, as the President always has carried the target, so to speak, for his political party. He is the victim of all the conniving and trimming of all the minor politicians of the same general political faith and deserves all the protection that the Department of Justice can throw about him.

Capitalists Engaged Personal Guards.

Next, during the period when capital and labor were so petulant about their disputes over wages and working conditions, it was deemed advisable to hire personal guards to attend some of the most important capitalists and industrialists, and this, too, became a custom. One night, in passing a solemn, brownstone house near Fifth avenue in the Fifties, and seeing a silent man in a rusty suit standing by the front stoop, I took him for a lookout and asked him, "What have you boys got in here? Crap game?"

"No," said the man in the rusty suit, "John D. Rockefeller, jr."

In Florida, during Alphonse Capone's unsuccessful campaign for social recognition, I used to see parties of the same outward aspect but less pure in heart, no doubt, guarding the entrance to his place.

And, at the ringside in the Garden of late, a familiar sight has been a prominent public enemy chaperoned by a lesser public enemy as bodyguard. But recently, in the papers, there were reports that the bodyguard had been kidnaped by enemies of his own and peddled back at a high rate of ransom. So now the bodyguard needs a bodyguard. Great fleas have little fleas upon their backs to bite 'em, and little fleas have lesser fleas, and so on.

Must Finish Fights His Principal Starts.

The duty of a bodyguard is to finish fights that his principal starts, and the increase in the number of citizens who keep them presents a field of occupation for a large number of superannuated prize fighters, who, naturally, are unaccustomed to work. But doesn't a young man who keeps a protector at his heels miss something of the joy and excitement of life if, on promoting a quarrel for himself, he merely turns to his bodyguard with a yawn and says, "Sock him one, McGuire," and is there anything that a blase young millionaire can not have done for him nowadays?

Suppose, for example, that the young man's doctor tells him he Richards Tops Heston; Tilden Beats J. Mitchell.

Kozeluh, Kinsey and Burke Also Win in Straight Sets.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., July 9 (A.P.).—Upholding their lawn tennis records, Vincent Richards and Howard O. Kinsey struck off two of the seeded competitors from the list of tournament survivors on the turf of the West Side Tennis Club stadium here today.

Both of the former Davis Cup players were in top form as they fought their matches in the third round of the singles for the professional championship crown of the United States.

Richards, three times winner of the laurels, entered the quarter-finals by defeating Paul L. Heston, Washington, 6—3, 6—0, 6—4. Heston was seeded No. 7.

Kinsey, the Californian, mastered Charles M. Wood, of the Fairview Country Club, seeded No. 8. The score was 6—0, 6—4, 8—6. Throughout the three sets Kinsey employed every variety of chop and spin. His backhanders into the corners of the opposite court were brilliant point winners at all times.

Big Bill Tilden smothered James J. Mitchell, of Virginia, 6—0, 6—1, 6—0. Francis T. Hunter fairly blasted James Burns, jr., Cedarhurst, L. I., from the court by his terrific forehanders. Burns failed to tally a game.

Karel Kozeluh, the Czechoslovakian, trounced Rudolph Noble, Forest Hills, 6—0, 6—2, 6—0. Albert Burke, of France, won from John Cardegna, Ardsley, N. Y., 6—2, 6—1, 6—0.

Gomez Victor, 9 to 4, Over Athletics

Yanks Score Four in First, Bat Mahaffey Out in Seventh.

Gehrig Drives in Five Runs With Double and 21st Homer.

NEW YORK, July 9 (A.P.).—Vernon ("Lefty") Gomez, the Yank rookie who broke the Athletics' string of seventeen consecutive victories not long ago, had the champions at his mercy again today and the Yankees won the first game of the series, 9 to 4.

Gomez gave up only nine hits, six of which came in the last two innings. Leroy Mahaffey, who started for the A's, was knocked from the box in the seventh, when the Yankees scored five runs. Jim Peterson, former University of Pennsylvania athlete, made his major league debut by pitching the eighth inning for the Mackmen.

Lou Gehrig was the big gun in the winners' attack, driving in five runs with a double and his twenty-first home run of the year.

Giants Beat Phils, 9-3; Lindstrom Breaks Ankle

Philadelphia, July 9 (A.P.).—The New York Giants squared their series with the Phils today by pounding out a 9-to-3 victory behind Carl Hubbell's splendid hurling, but it cost them the services of Freddie Lindstrom, brilliant right fielder, for at least a month.

He broke a bone in his left ankle while sliding into third base in the fifth inning.

Dr. Eugene C. Murphy, attending physician at St. Agnes' Hospital, said tonight he believed Lindstrom would be unable to play before early in August. Before his injury Lindstrom had hit a home run and a single.

The game was nip and tuck for eight innings, but in the ninth the Giants fell on Collins and Fallenstein for six hits and as many runs.

In the Wake Of the Game

THE Nationals will try to make it two straight over the Boston Red Sox this afternoon, with a large "ladies' day" crowd expected to be on hand to see the fun. "Shano" Collins, manager of the Beaneaters, is expected to start Danny MacFayden, while Carl Fischer will do the flinging for the home team. Fischer turned in his ninth victory in Detroit on June 24 and has been trying to reach the ten mark ever since, but to no avail.

While shagging flies before yesterday's game, "General" Alvin Crowder was unable to get one of his eyebrows out of the way, the result being a job for Trainer Mike Martin. The injury was nothing more than a minor cut and will not prevent the pitcher from taking his regular assignment.

Myer opened the game for the Nats by easily beating out a swinging bunt down the first base way.

Pickering went back of third to make a fine back-handed stop of Bluege's hot bounder, but was in no position to make a throw and so the blow went as a safety. It scored West with the third run of the round.

Myer set some speed records on his homer opening the third, the drive going to the left of the scoreboard. It is too bad this blow did not come in one of the innings of Wednesday's game against the As, when it would have been more appreciated.

Manush was kept particularly busy in the first three frames, accepting four chances.

Pickering seemed to be asleep in the Nats' third. He had a chance to make a double play on Bluege's roller, but started to peg to first before finally shifting to make a force play at second. Then when Cronin and Bluege pulled their double steal he seemed lost after taking Sweeney's peg, his delay allowing both runners to advance.

TWENTY GRAND, IMPROVED, TO GO IN ARLINGTON CLASSIC

Whitney Star Pointed for Rich Race

To Be Shipped Today After Workout for $75,000 Stake.

Rowe Confident Colt Is Recovered From Back Injury.

By ORLO ROBERTSON.

NEW YORK, July 9 (A.P.).—Apparently fully recovered from the injury that threatened to throw him out of training for the remainder of the season, Twenty Grand, 3-year-old champion, will be shipped to Chicago tomorrow to begin final preparation for the $75,000 classic at Arlington Park July 18.

James Rowe, trainer of Mrs. Payne Whitney's big bay, made the announcement today after Twenty Grand's satisfactory workout over 2 miles at Belmont Park.

"He appears as good as ever," Rowe said.

Although no attempt was made to test the Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes winner for speed, Rowe was confident the colt would start in the rich Arlington Park Stake. The youthful trainer said he would await his final decision, however, until he sees how his star stands the journey and works out on the Chicago track.

Injury Responds Rapidly.

When Twenty Grand came out of his victorious race in the Dwyer Stakes at Aqueduct July 4 with a strained back, it was doubted if the Whitney ace would face the barrier again this season. The injury responded rapidly to treatment, however, and yesterday Rowe had him out for a short canter. His trial today was a slow one, but it convinced the trainer that the champion was in condition to be shipped West.

Twenty Grand's appearance in the classic probably will cause a lot of owners to change their minds about starting their 3-year-olds in the 1¼-mile battle. The race, however, will bring together A. C. Bostwick's Mate, conqueror of Twenty Grand in the Preakness and winner of the American Derby and the champion in the "rubber" race of the big stakes. Mate finished third behind Twenty Grand in the Kentucky Derby.

Ten Now Have Won Over $200,000.

Victory for either Twenty Grand or Mate will carry the winner into the golden circle of $200,000 or more winners, a circle now confined to ten American horses—Gallant Fox, Zev, Blue Larkspur, Sun Beau, Display, Victorian, Exterminator, Man o' War, Sarazen and Crusader. Twenty Grand has won $175,575 to date, while Mate has earned $158,675.

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Arlington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

ARLINGTON PARK RACE TRACK, Chicago, July 9.—Large fields have been entered in most of the events at Arlington Park tomorrow, which features a 1-mile allowance affair for the older horses in training. The headliner has attracted eleven sterling milers to contest the $1,800 purse on the eight-event program.

Miss B. Watson's consistent 4-year-old NOSTAW appears admirably placed in the mile of the feature. This clever Whisk gelding is picking up 4 pounds off his last effort, but this should not stop him from annexing the major portion of the purse. MARTIS, from the D. Bentham Stable, has been freshened up since his last attempt in the Inaugural Handicap and figures to offer stern opposition. The Warm Stable's THE NUT is attaining his best form and may prove dangerous.

FIRST RACE—In the opening dash, ALL ROWES, from the Hitt string, figures to graduate from this cheap field. The youngster raced well at Belmont Park and in her Chicago debut finished second to Modern Queen. WESSIE has turned in some fair efforts and is favored for the place, with FRENCH HONEY as the show possibility.

SECOND RACE—ICICLE, Mrs. K. E. Hitt's steady fencer, is given the call in the 2-mile steeplechase event. This Ed Crump gelding scored impressively in his last start over the hedges and rates the call over his five rivals. INCEPTION has trained well and should finish in the runner-up position. LIBERTIN shipped well from Canada, and on his recent form may gain a part of the purse.

THIRD RACE—Mrs. J. D. Hertz's highly regarded WELL HEELED, weakly ridden last start, figures to outfoot his rivals. UNENCUMBERED, a recent winner at this track, scored in slow time but holds the edge for the place. MORDEN has been reported ready and judging from recent trials may upset the calculations.

FOURTH RACE—Several contestants have shown improvement in recent efforts, but in this large field, EIGHTY TWENTY, ANNAPOLITAN and BUGS LEARY stand out over their opposition. They are selected in that order.

SIXTH RACE — PLEASE, which failed to crash the winner's circle last start, lost the decision by a length, but appears best in this race. Chief opposition should be furnished by A. Pelletier's TOTEM. This steady plater was overmatched last outing but in this company holds a chance to take down the important money. DARK ENTRY is dropping down here and should go well.

SEVENTH RACE—ROLLING SEA, from the O. L. Foster barn, following her two splendid victories at Washington Park, is given the call. The daughter of Atheling II was withdrawn yesterday. ALBAZANO turned in a smart victory last time out at one mile and at the added distance here should last to gain the place. DUELIST will appreciate the long route and may get into the picture.

EIGHTH RACE — BOB'S PLAY should annex the purse in the finale. The W. E. Hugg gelding surprised last start but against the same company should duplicate that effort. BOB RACK, a game router, should improve off his last performance at this track. DISDAME turned in a brilliant effort recently and has only to repeat here to prove troublesome.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NIGHT VINTAGE, $13.60, $4.98, $3.70; BLACK JEWEL, $3.78, $3.24; LANDWARD, $4.38.

NIGHT VINTAGE raised steadily and, finishing fast on the outside, caught BLACK JEWEL in the closing strides. BLACK JEWEL displayed good early speed and barely missed. LANWARD was in close quarters most of the way and showed a good effort. ETWANDA had much early speed and although tiring slightly near the end, finished close up. DARTEE met with interference. FIZE BANG was off slowly. STRATHCONA showed a flash of early speed. WISE MAGGIE broke down and, stumbling, threw her jockey approaching the stretch turn.

SECOND RACE—One mile (Hertz course, out of chute). Purse, $1,500 allowances. For maiden 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:50. Off at 2:50. Winner, F. M. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MORE POWER, $7.62, $3.12, $2.52; ANNAPOLITAN, $2.96, $2.30; THUNWIN, $2.80.

MORE POWER followed the pace of ANNAPOLITAN closely in the early stages and, wearing the latter down in the stretch, was going away at the finish. ANNAPOLITAN had the most early speed and opened up a good lead, but tired badly in the last furlong. THUNDER plodded along at even gait and was going fast at finish. ANIMESSIO never threatened the leaders. BACHELOR'S TOY and BASCILICA stopped badly.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,600 allowances. Cumberland Purse. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:22. Off at 3:24½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—OSCILLATION, $11.66, $5.44, $4.42; ANUBIS, $9.46, $5.06; MEXICO, $3.16.

OSCILLATION began slowly, but gained steadily in the early running and, reaching a prominent position at the stretch turn, wore down the early leaders to win drawing away. ANUBIS displayed good early speed and set most of the pace, but weakened slightly near the end. MEXICO dashed into a prominent position soon after the start and met with some interference in the stretch, but was going well at the finish. PORTDEN broke well, but could not keep up and soon was beaten by the leaders. MARKING BURGLES had some early speed. UMA swerved entering the stretch. THE CRANE was racing well up when he was carried wide at stretch turn.

FOURTH RACE—One mile (Hertz course, out of chute). Purse, $1,800; allowances. Arizona Purse. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:52. Off at 3:53½. Winner, S. W. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TRED AVON, $6.64, $3.86, $2.70; MAD CAREER, $4.64, $3.42; TRY IT, $3.14.

TRED AVON, always within striking distance of the leaders, came strongly when called upon in the last quarter and, easily passing MAD CAREER an eighth out, won with ridiculous ease. MAD CAREER forced to the front when HIS LAST began to tire at the stretch turn, seemed no match for the winner. TRY IT was allowed to drop far out of it in the early running and closed with a belated rush. HIS LAST tired badly. LA SALLE was in close quarters around the far turn.

FIFTH RACE—One mile (Hertz course, out of chute). Purse, $2,000; allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:22. Off at 4:25. Winner, Bilbee Stable's ch. g. (4), by White Satin—Uranda. Trained by A. L. Jones. Value to winner, $1,400; second, $350; third, $125; fourth, $75. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:46 4-5, 1:12, 1:37 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SATIN SPAR, $8.36, $3.48, $3.04; WILLIAM T., $2.86, $2.60; MINOTAUR, $3.20.

SATIN SPAR, prominently placed in the early running, caught ROCKET GLARE tiring at the stretch turn and, taking command, held away to the finish to win under mild urging. WILLIAM T. was in close quarters on the back stretch, then came to the outside at the stretch head and, finishing fastest of all, caught MINOTAUR in the last strides. MINOTAUR performed gamely and was going well at the end. PANCHO showed a good effort. THE CHOCTAW made up ground in the last quarter. PRINCE D'AMOUR and ROCKET GLARE were used up making the pace and both tired.

SIXTH RACE—One mile (Hertz course, out of chute). Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:56. Off at 4:59. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ENGLEWOOD, $20.96, $8.36, $6.04; CLARET, $8.02, $4.72; PEACE PRINCESS, $3.92.

ENGLEWOOD came fast after going a half mile and, passing CLARET in the stretch, was going away at the finish. CLARET broke quickly and in the first flight from the start took a good lead after leaving back stretch, but could not resist winner. PEACE PRINCESS showed improvement and was going well at the finish. TRAUMEL went fairly well. REGAL LADY had early speed, but was crowded back on far turn. ESME also met with interference and CLEAR WING was sharply shut off rounding the same bend. VERMICULITE began slowly and was never dangerous.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:27. Off at 5:28. Winner, Mrs. E. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SNOW DOWN, $11.88, $6.76, $4.26; DARTER, $11.50, $4.80; SEARINGTON $3.62.

SNOW DOWN drew away from PRINCESS EDITH approaching the stretch turn and, opening up a long lead when straightened out for the run home, won easily. DARTER saved ground in the early stages and was running fast at the finish. SEARINGTON also saved ground around the stretch turn. PRINCESS EDITH and WORKLESS tired. JIM ORMONT broke slowly, then dashed into contention, but weakened in the final run.

EDDIE YEOMANS GAINS FINAL ROUND IN DISTRICT TENNIS

Markey, Star Of Tourney, Defeated

Conquerer of Mitchell Loses Lackadaisical Match, 6-1, 6-2.

Mangan Leads Moorhead as Rain Ends Semifinal Play.

EDDIE YEOMANS, who for two years has been known outside the corporate limits of Washington as this city's best tennis player, strode into the final round of the forty-fourth District of Columbia championship yesterday for the first time in his career, when he put out of the running the tourney's biggest dark horse, Bud Markey, in straight sets, 6—1, 6—2, beforea handful of fans who endured the occasional sprinkles and the lacakadaisical play with admirable fortitude.

Markey, who eliminated Dooly Mitchell, seeded No. 1 and odds-on favorite to win the title, found himself pitted against a totally different brand of play than that of Mitchell's. Yoemans played Markey's own game, a conservative back-court attack, which saw him make few errors of either judgment or execution.

Yeomans Refuses to Miss Ball.

Markey, whose matches, generally, are won on the errors of his opponent, could do nothing against a player who refused to miss the ball. Evidently realizing this, after the loss of the first set at 6—1, Bud attempted to put on steam, only to find none in the boilers. His match with Mitchell the day before seemed to have drained him, and though he managed to get two games from Yeomans in the second set, he was never a serious threat.

Tom Mangan, 35-year-old veteran, who twice has held the District title, was having a rather easy time in doing away with W. Upshur Moorhead, the young Yale sophomore, who appears in one local tournament a year—the District—and there commits much fine tennis. It was a backcourt battle for the most part, Moorhead playing into Mangan's hands repeatedly by attempting to outsteady him with long upangled drives.

At 5—1 in Mangan's favor the rain, which had been gently spraying the courts, came down in earnest and the two players quit the premises. The match will continue from 5—1, with Moorhead serving, today at 4 o'clock.

Markey-Yeomans Win At Doubles.

Certainly the best tennis of the tournament developed in the third and remaining match played yesterday. In that match Markey and Yeomans, now combined in a doubles team, eliminated Bob Elliott and Maurice O'Neill in a three-set tussle, which bristled with free hitting and spirited play from the opening gong to Bud Markey's annihilating overhead which ended the affair. The winners gained their decision at 4—6, 6—3, 6—2.

Calumet Adam Wins Feature Pacing Race

Cleveland, Ohio, July 9 (A.P.).—The handicap pace, feature on today's Grand Circuit program at North Randall, was won by Calumet Adam, from the Calumet Farm Stable, of Lexington, Ky., with Driver Fred Egan at the helm. He was an odds-on favorite at 8 to 10.

The son of Peter the Brewer lost the first heat probably because of a bad start when Starter Al Pendleton gave the word with Neil Frisco, driven by Will Leese, turned sideways across the track. Egan in full stride was forced to take Calumet Adam onto the turf under the timers' stand to avoid a bad collision and when he finally got straightened out was in no position to beat Dean Wilson, which got away quickly and led throughout, paying 10 to 1 for the heat.

Calumet Adam won the second and third heats handily in 2:07 1-5 and 2:05 4-5.

Favorites bit the dust in the opening races. The first event, a 2:20 pace, went to Hollyrood Knight, from the stable of William Evans, of Syracuse, N. Y., driven by Philburn. He paid $154.50 for a $10 result ticket. The 2:13 trot was a straight heat victory for Young Senator, driven by Vic Fleming and owned by John Cahill, of Syracuse. He refunded $145 for a $10 result ticket. The 3-year-old trot went to Dimity, from the Pastime Stable, of Cleveland, driven by Will Caton. Will Dickerson, of Goshen, won the first heat with Sealing Wax.

cent going to the golfers who played their hearts out for glory.

"Business Man" Golf

He resigned from amateur ranks to be what he said was a "business man" golfer, the first of the specie, as vaguely distinguished from a professional. And he made good in his first entrance into paid ranks with a conquest in the $10,000 Agua Caliente open in which he met and defeated Al Espinosa, a confirmed pro, after a play-off.

Von Elm did not need that 72-hole play-off with Burke to demonstrate that he is a fighter on the links shaped to capture the plaudits of the gallery Only last year he carried Maurice McCarthy ten extra holes in the amateur before losing in the greatest long distance match in the history of the tournament. And five years before he engaged Roland Mackenzie in ar extra-hole match that established the previous record. Such a man is Von Elm and the open title in his hands would again be a valuable chattel.

SWANN'S OUT OF INSECT LEAGUE

15 Other Players Ineligible Because of Age Limit.

STRICT enforcement of the eligibility rules of the insect section of the Capital City League has forced one entire team and approximately fifteen players on other teams to withdraw from the organization. Play for the second half championship will commence tomorrow morning with three games scheduled on the Ellipse diamonds.

The entire personnel of the Swann's Shop team, with but few exceptions, was found to be over the age limit allowed for insect players, and the team was withdrawn from the circuit. Players on each of the six other teams found to be ineligible also were barred from participation in the league.

Birth Certificates Must Be Shown.

Only those boys who have presented a birth certificate to the league secretary at The Post will be permitted to play in tomorrow's and all future league contests. Managers using ineligible players will be suspended from the Capital City League for all time, and the players themselves suspended for the remainder of the season.

Managers desiring to retain over-age players for use in nonleague games will be permitted to do so. Many of the teams play older teams in independent games and the larger boys will be kept on the roster for duty in these frays.

INSECT SCHEDULE.

WAKE OF GAME

ing in the third. They let Marberry steal third just after allowing him to stretch his single into a double, although he did not run hard in order to save himself. As the aliens were trailing by a flock of runs, they were in hopes the weather man would butt in before a legal game could be played, and thus give them another chance.

Fans were worried until Marberry fanned Durham and Warstler in succession to end the fifth. This completed a legal game and there was no chance of weather wiping it off the books. It was sprinkling quite hard by this time.

After Marberry had gotten to third in the Nats' sixth, Umpire Brick Owens stopped the game to search for the resin bag so that Pitcher Durham could use it. It was found in Marberry's hip pocket.

Tommy Oliver got plenty of exercise yesterday, but he did not make a put-out until he snared Myer's fly opening the home eighth.

When Marberry was due up at the plate in the eighth Sam Rice hustled to the tee and announced himself as pinch-hitter. The pitcher could not see matters that way, though, and grabbed a bat and claimed his right of way.

After the game members of the Citizens' Military Training Camp, stationed at Fort Myer, who were guests of the Nats, marched out on the field and lined up while Manager Johnson, Shortstop Cronin, Outfielder West and Pitcher Hadley autographed a baseball. This will be awarded to the best all-around athlete at the camp.

From then on it was just a romp for the Nats, who added five more runs to their total in the last three frames. Cronin's homer came in the eighth after H. Rice and Manush had singled in order. West followed with his second triple but was left, although the Nats later had the bases packed due to two walks when Marberry grounded for the third out.

The Sox averted a shutout by molding a marker in the sixth, the result of Van Camp's single and Webb's double. After Miller had walked, a double play prevented further damage here, while another nullified Van Camp's triple in the eighth after Warstler had opened with a single and been wiped off of the bases. The twin-killing started by Masters in the ninth was the Nats' third of the game, none being credited to the Beaneaters.

Pirates Beat Cubs, 4-2; Kremer Wins in Duel

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 9 (A.P.).—Kremer and Teachout fought a mound battle here this afternoon, the former winning out to give Pittsburgh its second straight win over Chicago, 4-2. The Pirates, reposing near the cellar in the National standings, have taken six of their last seven contests.

The home team deadlocked the score at 1-1 in the sixth, added two more in a seventh-inning rally and scored their fourth run in the eighth. The Cubs tallied in the fourth and eighth.

SINCE the start of the current season, Frankie Fera has played a bang-up game around third base for the Clifton Barbers in Section B, Junior Division, of The Post's Capital City League. Frankie has often been commended for his quick thinking and acting that spells the difference between victory and defeat when a team is in a hole and a players blunder can turn the tide in either direction. The boy earned the reputation of a "smart ball player."

But Frankie made one blunder, one that has knocked the team out of a championship that appeared to be safely in the bag. He neglected to obtain a clear, and well defined interpretation of the rule regarding ages, and a check-up shows the boy to be two months over the prescribed limit. The rule reads that no player shall have attained his nineteenth birthday before June 15 of the present year in order to be eligible.

Eighteen When He Signed.

When Fera signed with the team he was only 18, and accordingly he figured that he was within the law, but he evidently failed to remember that he had a birthday coming before the deadline on ages. As a result, Fera is found to be ineligible, and his team, after winning seven straight games and losing only one, practically clinching the flag, now finds itself on the bottom of the heap.

A revision of the league standings places the Schwartz Jewelers on top with six wins against no losses, and places that team in a favorable position to come through with a championship. The Georgia Avenue Business Men's Team was suspended from the league for failure to comply with all of the regulations.

Frasier Tight in Holes As Chisox Beat Tribe

Chicago, July 9 (A.P.).—Vic Frasier was perfect in the pinches today, and the Cleveland Indians, leaving fourteen men on bases, were blanked by the White Sox in the second game of the series, 3 to 0. On three occasions the Indians filled the bases, but could not score. Frasier was at his best when in a tight spot. He walked nine men.

The Hose got only seven blows off Harder and Jablonowski, but bunched three in the first for two runs.

BETHESDA FIREMEN BOOKING

The Bethesda Fire Department Baseball Team is seeking a game for Saturday to be played on its home diamond. Teams interested should call Manager Murdock at Bradley 651, or Ford Young, jr., at West 2308.

BETHESDA'S BIG CHANCE SUNDAY

Title Hopes Hinge on Double Bill With Takoma Tigers.

STANDING OF THE TEAMS.

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Takoma Tigers	8	0	1.000
Chevy Chase	4	1	.800
Bethesda	5	3	.625
German's Bakery	2	7	.222
Old Colony	0	8	.000

WHETHER the Bethesda Fire Department team is to be a contender for the 1931 championship of the Montgomery County section of The Post's Capital City League, or just another team that flashed brilliantly for the moment only to fade when the real test arrives will be decided Sunday when the smoke-eaters tangle with the champion Takoma Tigers in a double-header on the Cabin John field.

The Firemen must take both games to gain recognition as pennant contenders, for the Tigers can still finish ahead of their rivals by splitting even Sunday and taking one of their two remaining games with the Chevy Chase Grays.

The latter team finds itself in a favorable position for the first time since the league inaugurated play this season. The Grays meet the German's Bakery tossers tomorrow on their home grounds in a single game, and Sunday oppose the Old Colony troupe in a double-header on the same diamond. Three victories for them and a double defeat of the Tigers by Bethesda will send Ed Morris' crew into first place. Or, should Chevy Chase come through with wins in all of its week-end engagements and Bethesda take one from the champs, Chevy Chase will be only a full game behind the flying leaders, the closest they have been all season.

Tigers Face Difficult Task.

There is a strong possibility that the Tigers will meet defeat for the first time when they tackle the firefighters. The latter walloped Old Colony, 5-0 and 7-4, in their games last Sunday, displaying a hefty batting punch and a tight defense. Old Colony only a week previous to this had forced the Tigers into extra innings in their two games before succumbing by scores of 3-2 and 11-7. Figuring on the margin of each team's victory, Bethesda must be accorded more than an even chance of lowering the cocky Tigers' colors.

Old Colony, although going into the fray as the under-dog, will provide the acid test for the Chevy Chase aggregation. The latter, regarded in many quarters as the only team capable of dethroning the champs, have played at a steady gait since dropping their first meeting with the leaders by a 5-4 score. Several changes in the roster, a general reorganization of the club and a few victories, have bolstered the morale of the club until now Ed Morris has the boys primed for a final drive on the pennant. It is not improbable that the Grays will come through this year and win where they failed by the slim margin of a half a game last season.

St. Louis, Mo., July 9 (A.P.).—Burleigh Grimes and Paul Derringer were in excellent form here today and the Cardinals took both ends of a double-header from the Cincinnati Reds, 3 to 1 and 9 to 1.

In the opening contest the Cardinals touched Si Johnson and Larry Benton for only five hits, one less than Grimes permitted, but the veteran spitballer had his batters scattered.

Backed by better hitting, Derringer had easy sailing through the aftermath.

CELTICS NINE FACE HARD CONTEST

Alexandria Club to Play Col. Heights on Sunday.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., July 9.—The St. Mary's Celtic Baseball Team will meet the Columbia Heights nine Sunday at Baggett's Stadium in the feature attraction here, it was announced today.

Last year the two clubs met and the Celtics eked out a 1-to-0 victory. "Shaut" Taylor pitched for the Washingtonians, while Lefty McIntire gunned for the Alexandrians. This was the first game of a double-header, and also one of the best games staged in Baggett's Field all season.

Taylor has rejoined his former teammates, leaving the Celtics after last week's game, and, according to word from Washington, will be given the shot at the locals. Taylor is anxious to trim Ludlow & Co. Lefty M'Intire is slated to hurl for the Green and Gold team.

The Celtics will hold a special drill tomorraow afternoon at 5 o'clock, Bagett's Stadium. All players are requested to report.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

WOMEN HALT PLANS FOR FIRE AUXILIARY

Prince Georges and Other Groups to Form County Chapters Only.

Abandoning their plans to form a State-wide ladies' auxiliary to the Maryland State Volunteer Firemen's Association, members of the auxiliaries of four counties yesterday decided on an attempt to form similar groups in each of the counties in the State.

The decision was reached at a meeting held in Ocean City, Md., where the State association is holding its annual convention. The ladies' conference, which was held under the leadership of Mrs. Anna A. Burnett, of Branchville, president of the Prince Georges County auxiliary, was attended by delegates from similar organizations in Cecil, Alleghany and Worcester Counties.

Noble F. Rushe, of Hyattsville, was defeated for the presidency of the State organization. Mr. Rushe, who is chief of the Hyattsville department lost out to Dr. George Colborn, jr., of Princess Anne. The convention also voted to hold its 1932 meeting at Frostburg, Md.

Another Prince Georges resident, Carl C. Young, was active at the convention yesterday, taking part in the discussion of the fire-fighting school to be held at the University of Maryland on September 2, 3 and 4. Mr. Young, who lives in Mount Rainier, is president of the Prince Georges association. Others who took part in this discussion were Jesse A. Fisher, of Annapolis, and Dudley Page, of Frederick.

So far, 82 companies have registered and more are expected to arrive for the parade, which will be held this morning.

County police are investigating the possibility that the break in the electric line which caused four hours of darkness in Marlboro last Sunday was caused by thieves who attempted to break into the liquor storeroom in the courthouse.

Monday morning it was found that an attempt had ben made on the lock with a screwdriver, but Chief J. J. Crowley said that no liquor had been taken.

Electric light service was interrupted Sunday when wires broke near an auto accident in the vicinity of Mellwood on the Marlboro pike. Poles near the break had not been hit by cars, however, according to Policeman Oscar Beall, who went to the scene of the accident. After the wires had fallen, Policeman Beall remained at the scene to warn cars away from them until an emergency crew from the electric company could arrive and repair the break. It is thought that the attempt on the liquor stores was made while the town was in darkness and the policeman was away from his office in the courthouse.

The incident has served to direct attention to State's Attorney Alan Bowie's recent ruling that all liquor seized in raids must be kept until after trial. Until Mr. Bowie came into office last fall it had been the custom to destroy on the spot large quantities of liquor seized in raids, keeping only enough for evidence. It is no secret that at least some members of the new police force disagree with the necessity for keeping all contraband, although they are bowing to the ruling. Those in favor of immediately destroying large quantities of contraband are using this attempt on the stocks to show that keeping large amounts of evidence will attract thieves.

Replacement of the Riggs Mill Bridge, the Prospect Avenue Bridge and Hill's Bridge with new structures and the widening of Riggs road from Agar road to the old Powder Factory road has been decided upon by the State Roads Commission as a part of this year's construction program.

In addition to the widening of the Riggs road, several dangerous turns south of the present bridge will be removed and the road straightened. The road will be given concrete shoulders on the portion to be widened.

All three of the bridges will be built with a roadway width of 27 feet, and all will be of concrete. The improvements of Riggs road were decided upon after it had been inspected by Maj. Brooke Lee, of the commission, and J. Enos Ray. They are estimated to cost about $55,000.

The estimate for the new structure at Hills Bridge, on the old Marlboro-Annapolis road across the Patuxent River, is $36,000. The present bridge, an iron one, had a roadway width of only 13½ feet, and bears the bulk of traffic from Washington to the Chesapeake Bay resorts. Because of its narrowness, traffic can go only in one direction when wide buses or trucks are on the bridge.

The Prospect Avenue Bridge is in Brentwood, across the Northwest Branch. It will cost about $20,000 and bids will be asked as soon as plans are drawn up.

Elections in the Riverdale Volunteer Fire Department have resulted in the choosing of C. Taylor to head the department as chief. He will be assisted by C. Lamott, assistant chief.

M. P. Hughes was elected secretary, while H. Stansfield was chosen treasurer. L. Kolmer was selected to head the financial committee and S. Kernan was chosen as delegate to the advisory board of the county association.

Because he decided he did not want the position, Robert V. Yost has withdrawn from the mayoralty contest of Colmar Manor, according to an announcement by the board of election supervisors. This leaves Mrs. O. B. Wessburg and Burt M. Bromley, the present mayor, as the only candidates in the election to be held next Tuesday.

John N. Torvestad and George W. Cox are the only candidates for the two posts to be filled on the town council, so that the only contest is for the mayoralty. The board of supervisors, who announced the withdrawal, is composed of John A. Johnson, M. E. Rian and Carl Walzl.

Among 1,500 firemen from Maryland and Virgina in attendance at annual convention of the Maryland State Volunteer Firemen's Association at Ocean City, Md., are following delegations from Montgomery County volunteer fire departments.

Bloodhounds Catch Alleged Dynamiters

West Virginians Charged With Blowing Up Home Where Eight Slept.

Special to The Washington Post.

Franklin, W. Va., July 9.—Bloodhounds were used to trail suspected dynamiters of the home of Kennedy Raines, near the Dunkard Church on North Fork River, near here, last night, and as a result Ezra Warner, and Stanley Warner, brothers are under arrest, and Ernest Vandevander is sought. Stanley Warner was captured in flight after officers fired to stop him. Ezra was arrested later when he came here seeking release of the brother.

The explosion at the Raines home occurred after Mr. and Mrs. Raines and their family of six children had retired for the night. They were all awakened by the blast which tore away the front porch and otherwise damaged the building. Bloodhounds from Staunton, Va., were secured and trailed to the Vandevander home where the three men were found. All fled immediately, the two later being captured.

The men denied the charge. Officers said this is the second time that Ezra Warner has been implicated in felonies through the use of bloodhounds, the previous occasion being when he was involved in the burning of a rick of straw near the Virginia border.

30-FOOT DRIVE SET FOR ROCKVILLE PIKE

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4208.

Widening of the Rockville pike to 30 feet between Bethesda and Rockville has been authorized by the Maryland State Roads Commission, it was announced yesterday. Cost of the project will be approximately $175,000.

A traffic count made by the State Roads Commission established that the Rockville pike is the heaviest used artery in the county. Three State routes, the Urbana-Clarksburg, the Ridgeville-Damascus and the Dickerson roads, now connect Rockville and Frederick, with cars from all three converging into the Rockville pike, which must csarry all of the traffic from the wets as well as from the Norbeck-Rockville pike, which brings in much of the traffic from the eastern section of the county and Baltimore.

Southern end of the pike at Bethesda has been widened to a 40-foot road, and wide, separated roads carry the traffic into Washington by way of Wisconsin avenue, Connecticut avenue and Sixteenth street. It is believed by State Roads Commission members that the pike should be widened in time to care for the expected crowds of motorists from the west who will journey to Washington and Virginia for the bicentennial celebration next year.

Widening will be accomplished by adding concrete shoulders 5 feet wide on each side and filling in with a new coat of bituminous material in the center.

The Rockville pike is an historic old trail over which the troops of Braddock, accompanied by the youthful George Washington, and the early pioneers to the West traveled. It now is lined along the section which is to be widened with a number of the most imposing estates in the country.

New building construction authorized in Montgomery County totaled $2,320,845 in the fiscal year ended June 30, according to a report made public yesterday by Berry E. Clark, clerk to the Montgomery County Commissioners. While this figure is not a record it ranks well among the top years, according to Mr. Clark.

This construction work was authorized in the period of depression which affected building trades throughout the Nation, Mr. Clark said, and so was considered particularly good. The total is divided into $2,054,395 for new buildings in the suburban section and $266,450 in the rural section of the county.

A total of 442 building permits was issued, of which number 361 were in the suburban area and 81 in the northern or rural section. Fees collected in the issuance of the permits totaled $1,778, the report shows.

County Police Continue Drive on Bus Drivers

Continuing their drive on bus drivers who are guilty of traffic violations, Prince Georges County police last night arrested the fourth driver within ten days. The man arrested yesterday gave the name of Joseph Nimphius, of New York. He was charged with speeding and failing to keep to the right of the road.

Nimphius posted collateral on the two counts and was released to take his bus into town. Police said there were about ten or twelve passengers on the bus. The arrest was made by Policeman William E. Clifton. Charges against other drivers ranged from possession of liquor and driving while drunk to speeding and reckless driving.

MALTBY, ATTORNEY, HELD IN CONTEMPT

Washington Man Is Cited by Maryland Court Upon Lawyers' Charge.

Fred A. Maltby, Washington attorney, was held in contempt of court yesterday by Chief Judge Hammond Urner in Circuit Court at Rockville. The action followed filing of a complaint by Harold C. Smith, Rockville attorney, and Harry S. Barger, Washington attorney, which alleged that Maltby had acted in the capacity of attorney without having been admitted to the District Supreme Court or Maryland bars.

Attorneys Smith and Barger contended that Maltby had interfered in a case in which they represented Morris A. Bealle, former editor of the Montgomery Independent, and had settled the case out of court with the intent of depriving them of their rightful fees and remuneration and that his actions constituted practice of law in the District of Columbia and the State of Maryland "in which he has no right to engage in such practice."

The complainants further complained that Maltby is engaged in the daily practice of law in the District of Columbia and that by signs on his door and stationery and listings in the telephone directory showing that he is an attorney at law he holds himself out to be a practicing lawyer, "all notwithstanding he is not a member of the bar of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, and notwithstanding such membership is a prerequisite to his right to so practice in said District." They stated that because of his practice he was in their belief in contempt of court and asked the court to take appropriate action.

Judge Holds Contempt Clear.

Maltby told the court he had been advised by Attorney Roger J. Whiteford, counsel for Maj. E. Brooke Lee, county administration leader of Montgomery County, that he could proceed with the case between Bealle and Maj. Lee, which resulted in settlement of a libel suit filed by Bealle against Maj. Lee and the Maryland News, a newspaper controlled by the Lee interests.

Judge Urner stated that he considered Maltby in contempt of court and gave him until next Thursday to produce mitigating circumstances which might have a bearing on his case before passing sentence or imposing a fine.

Judge Urner meanwhile took under consideration a motion to strike from the record allegations in a petition filed for Bealle by Maltby which the defendants, Harold C. Smith, E. Barrett Prettyman, Vivian V. Simpson, Edward Peter, John E. Oxley, Robert L. Tolson and Charles C. Jones, and the Montgomery County Printing & Publishing Co., Inc., claim are scandalous and irrelevant. The suit seeks to have the court direct the defendants to turn over to Bealle certain stock in the Montgomery County Printing & Publishing Co., which he claims is due him as the final payment in the sale of the Montgomery Independent to that company.

Maltby Argument Stricken.

The judge ordered stricken from the record an argument against the defendant's motion which had been filed by Maltby prior to the contempt proceedings yesterday morning.

Maltby at the same time filed a suit against Attorneys Smith and Barger alleging that he had been libeled in a complaint filed with the justices of the District Supreme Court and the grievance committee of the District Bar Association by these two lawyers. The suit asks $50,000 damages.

Maltby says in the petition that a complaint similar to the one presented to the Rockville court had been filed in the District which had greatly harmed him in his practice of his profession. He asserted he is a member of the bar of the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia and of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, and that he has not practiced in any manner which was unethical.

Virginians Plan Church Reunion

Baptists Will Celebrate Preddy Creek's 150th Anniversary.

Special to The Washington Post.

Gordonsville, Va., July 9.—Baptists throughout the State are expected to attend home-coming day at Preddy's Creek Church near here, on Sunday next, when the 150th anniversary of the church will be observed.

As a part of the program a short history of the church will be given by the Rev. E. T. Cox, the present pastor, who is also pastor of the Gordonsville and Barboursville churches. Mr. Cox will make an address, his subject being, "The Church as a Divine Institution."

This old church was organized in 1781, chiefly from members of the Blue Run Baptist Church, about two miles north of Barboursville, in Orange County, the Blue Run Church being one of the oldest churches in the Piedmont section of Virginia, having been organized in 1769. The Preddy's Creek Church in the early days of its history increased fast in its membership. Thomas Jefferson and James Madison often attended services there, the latter's brother, Gen. Madison having been a member of the Baptist denomination.

2 Hurt, 1 May Die In Tractor Wreck

Farm Machinery Pins Men in Roll Down 300-Foot Embankment.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 9.—Frank Reed, 27, was critically injured, and a brother, J. T. Reed, less seriously hurt late Wednesday when a tractor and wheat binder they were moving along a highway toppled over the side of the road and rolled down a 300-foot embankment to the edge of the Potomac River near here.

The men were riding the machinery at the time, and Frank Reed was caught almost squarely under it. They were rushed to separate hospitals here. An emergency operation failed to relieve the more seriously injured man. Physicians held no hope for his recovery.

Cinder subroading gave way and caused the machinery to topple, it was said. The men were moving the equipment from their father's farm where they had just completed harvesting.

ALEXANDRIANS ASK SEWER LAW CHANGE

Property Owners Put Their Case at Hearing Given by City Council.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

As a result of the hearing granted yesterday by the city council to a large number of interested property owners, it is considered certain that the proposed new sewer ordinance, which provides that owners whose property is connected through private sewers to the city-owned sewers shall pay a tax of $1.20 a front foot for the use of city sewers, will be changed, and it is considered probable that a flat rate will be adopted for sewer tapping. The ordinance also provided a charge of $2.20 a front foot for direct connection with city sewers.

That the matter was considered serious is evidenced by the number of persons attending the meeting, and the sentiment against the proposed ordinance which was expressed. Every member of the council, it is understood, favors a change to a less drastic ordinance, and City Attorney Carl Budwesky read several amendments which he proposes to submit to the council for approval.

Mayor Edmund F. Tiver, who presided, announced that the question would be given further careful consideration, and assured those present that no hasty action would be taken. The Alexandria Chamber of Commerce sent a communication stating that the chamber is unalterably opposed to the new ordinance as proposed; that the matter has been referred to a committee of that body which will report back shortly, and asked that the matter be held open until recommendations could be submitted. In view of this and of the desire of the council to give the matter further study, Mayor Tiver stated last night that action would not be taken at the next regular meeting, next Thursday, as would ordinarily be done.

Among those who spoke in favor of a revision of the ordinance were Harry B. Caton, J. A. S. Sinclair, George W. Zachary, Harry Kirk, Miss Inez Jenkins, G. H. Walter, Mr. Bectel, J. Kent White, Charles Strickland, J. T. Whitlock, Delaney Hammond, Fred C. Goodnow, Alfred Thomson and Frederick Flynn, practically all residents of the newly annexed territory, who would be affected by the ordinance.

A majority of those who spoke are in favor of a reasonable adjustment by the adoption of a flat rate for sewer tapping, but thought the rate as proposed was unreasonably high, since many of them had purchased their homes, with sewer connections arranged by the builders, and were under the impression that no further charge would be made when their sewers were connected with the city service.

The Alexandria Chamber of Commerce has gone on record as backing Dan S. Hollenga, its business manager, in his recent protest against the proposed construction of a road from the Richmond - Washington highway, through Fairfax to Annandale, thence to Washington, as proposed by the State Highway Commission, fearing that the construction of such a road would divert traffic, and consequently business, from Alexandria. The chamber has extended to Mr. Hollenga a vote of confidence and pledged its aid in carrying his protest to a conclusion.

With reference to an announcement that the officers of the Fairfax Chamber of Commerce would visit the Alexandria trade body, presumably for the purpose of discussing the proposed road, the local body has extended an invitation to the Fairfax officials to visit the next meeting of its members, on July 15, at 8 p. m., in the George Mason Hotel.

The first Alexandria Fire Department company to vote to participate as a company, rather than as a part of the department as a whole, in the parade at the Virginia State Firemen's convention to be held in Winchester in August, was Potomac Company, No. 2, which will go to the convention with 40 certified members and 20 additional men. Rescue Squad, No. 1, of that company, will also participate in the parade. Other companies of the department will decide later whether they will participate.

The delegates from No. 2 company to the convention are Lieut. L. P. Strobie, S. D. DeVaughan, Sergt. J. E. Cobean, and R. S. Roseberry, and alternates are Lieut. W. K. Roberts, Sergt. J. W. Clore, R. W. Lloyd and J. R. Elliott.

The company has also adopted an amendment to its constitution providing that no person under 21 years of age may become a member.

The Winchester department, which has charge of the convention, has ruled that instead of whole departments competing for the prizes, valued in excess of $4,000, that competition shall be restricted to single companies, which they claim will place all companies on an equal footing. This is not in accord with previous practice, however, and Alexandria entered a protest, without avail.

Police Capt. W. W. Campbell yesterday forwarded to Attorney General John R. Saunders, at Richmond, a report on liquor seized and arrests made in Alexandria for the period from July 1, 1930, to June 30, 1931, which shows that there were 617 arrests for violation of the prohibition law; 230 cases of drunk in public, 644 search warrants were issued; 504 gallons of whisky seized, 130 gallons of liquor found in vacant and abandoned automobiles, 804 gallons of liquor destroyed, 667 bottles of beer destroyed, and there is on hand approximately 480 gallons of liquor and 116 bottles of beer. There were three automobiles confiscated in this period.

A temporary injunction has been granted to William Groom, of Sterling, Va., in the corporation court of Alexandria, against Charles Henry Smith, Charles King and E. E. Lawler, trustees of the estate of Charles F. Coffey and Georgia Coffey, restraining them from disbursing, paying out or otherwise disposing of any of the assets of the estate.

Mr. Groom also brought suit against the trustees to recover $1,281.14, together with $470 counsel fees. The case is scheduled for a hearing on July 20.

The estate of Mrs. Mary T. Harryman, whose will, dated in 1922, was admitted to probate in the circuit court here yesterday, is valued at between $40,000 and $50,000, and is left to her two children, Mrs. Richard L. Ruffner, of Alexandria, and Dr. William K. Harryman, of Hackensack, N. J., share and share alike. Richard L. Ruffner is named as executor, and has qualified.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

WHAT MRS. WILEY POST AND MRS. HAROLD GATTY MAY HAVE REALLY THOUGHT.

"Oh, I think it was just glorious. I knew they'd come through."—Mrs. Post, after the flight.

"I was never so thrilled. Harold never fails in anything."—Mrs. Gatty, after the flight.

MRS. POST (shortly after the hop-off from Oklahoma)—Well, they're off, and I suppose all we can do is hope for the best.

Mrs. Gatty—If they break their necks, they can't say we didn't warn 'em.

Mrs. Post—Wouldn't you think they'd be more reasonable? They get a silly idea in their heads and off they go around the world, leaving us alone to like it or lump it. I think it's terrible.

Mrs. Gatty—They're old enough to have more sense.

Mrs. Post—That's what I say. But you know how obstinate Wiley is.

Mrs. Gatty—Harold is that way, too. Just pig-headed, once he gets his heart set on something. There's no use arguing. I tried to tell him for the last week that this round-the-world trip was a crazy idea, but he wouldn't listen to me.

* * * *

MRS. POST—I don't blame 'em for liking to fly, but they've got all the room they need right here over Oklahoma. Why go all over the world?

Mrs. Gatty—That's just what I said to Harold. He just grunted and said I didn't understand.

Mrs. Post—It isn't fair to us. Suppose they got killed? Where would we get off, then? They never stop to think of that. It makes me furious.

Mrs. Gatty—Sometimes I have my suspicions about this round-the-world story.

Mrs. Post—Me, too. How do we know they're on any round-the-world trip?

Mrs. Gatty—All we can do is to watch the papers. What I can't understand is what difference it will make even if they do fly around the world in nine or ten days. What of it?

Mrs. Post—Some other fellow will come along and do the same thing in six or seven. That's always the way.

* * * *

MRS. GATTY—Harold tells me a lot of stuff about the scientific value of such a trip, its importance to aviation, and so forth, but I don't swallow it. They just want to get away from home, that's all. All men are alike.

Mrs. Post—How do we know who they'll meet on such a trip?

Mrs. Gatty—We don't. They say they're not going to stop any place longer than it takes to buy gas, but you know how men are when they get away on a trip.

Mrs. Post—We ought to put our foot down. I'm going to tell Wiley that he's got to choose between me and this crazy business of flying around the world. It's too dangerous. They may get through, but if they do, it'll be luck.

Mrs. Gatty—Absolutely.

Mrs. Post—I wish there was a law against any such things as world flights.

Mrs. Gatty—So do I. They just don't make sense.

NO HITS, NO RUNS.

Said Cornelius Vanderbilt to Peter Arno,
"Let's shadow box and also spar. No?"
Said Peter Arno to Vanderbilt Junior,
"We might get hurt and I'd hate to runior."

POST and Gatty spent the Fourth on a yacht. Their sensations must have been those of the flea who hopped off the rabbit to try a trip on a rocking horse.

The Chinese have refused to permit further explorations in the Gobi Desert by Roy Chapman Andrews. It seems pretty cruel to ask Mr. Andrews to go through a season without any dinosaur eggs.

IT'S A GOOD TRICK—IF THEY DO IT.

Lynchburg Annuls Contract for Dam

Delays in Work Cause of Cancellation; New Bids Called.

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., July 9.—Contract for raising the city water works dam seven and a half feet on Pedlar River, was declared abrogated today by the city council and bids for a contract to complete the work were called for next Tuesday.

A bonding company, on Hundley's bond to extent of $74,500, the amount of the contract, is liable for completion of the work without loss to the city, it was said, after several efforts had been made by the city to expedite the job. Work costing $40,000 has been paid for and only seventeen or eighteen days remain yet for completion of the contract, when a $50 a day penalty accrues. The city estimates the work is 50 per cent finished.

Laborers refusing to go to work yesterday at the dam precipitated action on the city's part. The council was advised that Hundley has checks out for $3,400 for labor and material.

Girl Dies in Car Wreck.

Lynchburg, Va., July 9 (Special).—A touring car being towed to the city this morning about 2:30 o'clock broke its towline near Concord, dashed through the highway guard rail and Annie Laurie Banks, 15 years old, Negro girl, was almost instantly killed. Her skull was crushed. Several other occupants of the car in tow escaped with cuts and bruises.

HANDCUFFING GIRLS IN SCHOOL ADMITTED

National Training Institution Head Says Irons Were Used on Unruly.

The National Training School for Girls at Muirkirk, Md., has several times resorted to the use of handcuffs for its unruly inmates, as charged in the Wickersham report, Supt. Lottie I. Richardson admitted yesterday. The cuffs were only put on, she said, when it was necessary to keep particularly unruly girls from damaging the building.

Miss Richardson, who is also head of the National Training School for Girls, on the Conduit road, which is for colored girls, refused to discuss any of the other charges contained in the Wickersham report. The report had severely criticized both the girls' institutions and also took a rap at the National Training School for boys.

No comment on the report would be made by her, Miss Richardson said, unless George P. Wilson, director of the District Board of Public Welfare, was present. The schools are run under the supervision of the board.

Col. Claude D. Jones, superintendent of the boys' institution, located on the Bladensburg road, said the crowded conditions mentioned in the Wickersham report could not be helped by the officers, and trustees at this time.

"We are alive to the situation here," he said, "and the board of trustees is doing all it can to have them corrected. The report of the Wickersham commission criticized the central dining room and kitchen, but stated that appropriations for new service buildings have been requested by the administration."

Col. Jones said the appropriation had been sought last year for a new kitchen and dining room, but the Budget Bureau evidently thought the new dormitory cottage and vocational shop for which appropriations were made, were sufficient for the year. He said there was every reason to believe the budget will allow for the kitchen and dining room this year.

Search Is Continued For River Hero's Body

A five-day search for the body of William McVearry, 20, of 309 Todd place northeast, who was drowned Sunday while saving the life of a companion in the Patuxent River, near Point Edward, Md., continued fruitless last night.

McVearry plunged into the river when John Glascoe, 21, of Hyattsville, Md., fell into the water from a boat from which they were fishing. The river has been dragged each day since that time, but no trace has been found of the body up to last night.

Small Baby's Body Found Near Pike

Hurts When Hurled From Passing Car Thought Death Cause.

Lack of any clothing or other identifying marks on the body of a white baby found near Camp Springs yesterday was hampering the efforts of Prince Georges County police to find who apparently threw the child from a passing auto.

The body, which was still warm when found, was that of a baby about two days old. Pending an inquest to be held by Judge Horace A. Taylor, the body was taken to the Ritchie Brothers undertaking establishment, at Ritchie Station.

According to police, the child apparently died as the result of injuries received when thrown from the car. It was found along the Southern Maryland pike only a few feet from the road. Policeman Elon Turner is investigating the case.
